BERLIN ULTIMATUM TO REDS

DETROIT LEADS IN CURING ILLS OF EDUCATION

Reorganizes Public School System.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Many educators rate Detroit as the foremost large American city in adapting its public school system to the new developments. Like Chicago and other centers, this city has had a tremendous growth in school attendance in recent years, only here the problems were more pronounced than elsewhere because of the rapid expansion of the city due to the development of the automobile industry.

In one ten year period the city population of Detroit doubled while school attendance trebled. The school plant had a great overload, thousands of pupils had to be put on half day sessions as in Chicago. As was the case elsewhere the increase has been most pronounced at the top—in the upper grades.

Adapt 6-3-3 Plan.

In 1919, after a comprehensive survey of the school system, the board of education formulated a series of general policies covering a period of years. These provided for a ultimate reorganization soon what is known as the "6-3-3 plan." Briefly, these called for the establishment of:

1—Eleven elementary schools with a socialized curriculum for the first six grades.

3—Three intermediate schools or junior high schools for the seventh grades 7, 8, 9, with a curriculum to meet the needs of adolescents.

3—Senior comprehensive high schools taking in the three grades 10, 11, 12, with socialized and differentiated curriculum and vocational guidance.

It was the first instance in which the school authorities in a large American city adopted the platoon form of organization as an official policy and planned a building program in accordance.

Many Cities Adopt System.

At present fifty-four cities have one or more schools operating on the platoon plan, but Detroit is the one big city that has developed it most extensively. It not only bears on the school housing problem, but its great aim is to adjust the public schools to meet the changing conditions in American social and industrial life.

In some schools it includes all six lower grades and in others it does not extend below the third grade. It is all based on the idea of the social aims of education. It restores, however, the balance between fundamentals and subjects that have been woven into the curriculum of late years, and it teaches the three R's as effectively as the old type school ever did.

Utilizes All Rooms.

In building economy the platoon system utilizes all the seating capacity of a schoolhouse and none of the special rooms are idle. It is pointed out that it can be readily installed in any school that has an auditorium, special rooms, and playgrounds, and that it will increase capacity at least one-third without adding anything off the pupil's school day and, in fact, it lengthens the school day to six hours—a three hour session in the morning and a three hour session in the afternoon, usually the morning session runs from 8:30 to 11:30 and the afternoon from 12:30 to 3:30.

The school is divided into "home rooms" where these subjects are taught—reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling, and language—and "special rooms" where other subjects are taught.

Pupils in Two Groups.

The school membership itself is divided into two groups or platoons. While one group is engaged in the "home room" or regular room, the other group is attending classes in the special rooms. Thus at any given time half of the pupils are in the "home room" and the other half are engaged in special activities.

Each individual pupil spends ninety minutes of the morning under the control of the "home room" teacher and the remaining ninety minutes of the morning in the "special" activities, devoting thirty minutes in three separate "home rooms" and ninety minutes in three special rooms.

In the "home room" the teacher has the pupil under her control three hours a day and continues to exercise the influence" over him, which every section of school reorganization fears may be lost. Also the home room teacher has a chance to become a specialist in the formal subjects—music, art, and the rest are given by the teachers in the special activities.

INJUN SUMMER

[Copyright: 1912: By John T. McCutcheon.]

(This famous cartoon first appeared in The Tribune in the autumn of 1907. It is republished in response to many requests.)

Yep, sonny, this is sure enough Injun summer. Don't know what that is, I reckon, do you?

Well, that's when all the homesick Injuns come back to play. You know, a long time ago, long afore yer granddaddy was born even, there used to be heaps of Injuns around here—thousands—millions, I reckon, far as that's concerned. Reg'lar sure 'nough Injuns—none o' yer cigar store Injuns, not much. They wuz all around here—right here where you're standin'. Don't be skeered—hain't none around here now, leastways, no live ones. They been gone this many a year. They all went away and died, so they ain't no more left.

But every year, long about now, they all come back, leastways, their sperrits do. They're here now. You can see 'em off across the fields. Look real hard. See that kind o' hazy, misty look out yonder? Well, them's Injuns—Injun sperrits marchin' along and dancin' in the sunlight. That's what makes that kind o' haze that's everywhere—it's just the sperrits of the Injuns all come back. They're all around us now. See off yonder, see them tepees? They kind o' looks like corn shocks from here, but them's Injun tents, sure as you're a foot high. See 'em now? Sure, I knowed you could. Smell that smoky sort o' smell in the air? That's the campfires a-burnin' and their pipes a-goin'. Lots o' people say it's just leaves burnin', but it ain't. It's the campfires, an' th' Injuns are hoppin' 'round 'em t' beat the old Harry.

You just come out here tonight when the moon is hangin' over the hill off yonder an' th' harvest fields is all swimmin' in th' moonlight, an' you can see the Injuns an' the tepees jest as plain as can be. You can, eh? I knowed you could after a little while.

Jever notice how the leaves turn red 'bout this time o' year? That's jest another sign o' redskins. That's when an old Injun sperrit gits tired dancin' an goes up an' squats on a leaf t' rest. Why, I kin hear 'em rustlin' an' creepin' 'round among the leaves all the time; an' ever' once in a while a leaf gives way under some fat old Injun ghost an' comes floatin' down to the ground. See—here's one now. See how red it is? That's the war paint rubbed off'n an Injun ghost, sure's you're born.

Purty soon all the Injuns'll go marchin' away agin, back to the happy huntin' ground, but next year you'll see 'em troopin' back—th' sky just hazy with 'em an' their campfires smolderin' away jest like they are now.

TEACHER SEIZES GIRL'S ATTACKER

Woman Leads Posse in Capture of Youth.

Led by a young woman school teacher, a posse of angry Lake county farmers and their wives captured Everett Schlosser at daybreak yesterday following an all night search for him and a 15 year old high school girl whom he had taken automobile riding.

Schlosser — 25 years old and the son of a Wadsworth, Ill., farmer—was taken to the Waukegan jail under heavy guard while several score men and women murmured of lynching. He was charged with criminal assault and his bonds were set at $10,000.

EVERETT SCHLOSSER.

The girl, Gertrude Portegues, had left a dance at Thomas Corners on Friday night to go for a short ride with Schlosser. When she had not returned at midnight her parents became anxious. Neighbors were aroused with the aid of Miss Ines Clark, the school teacher, and a search was started.

Seeing the posse approaching, Schlosser threw the girl from his car and attempted to drive through the crowd. A deputy sheriff placed his machine across the road. Schlosser was forced to slow down, and as he did so Miss Clark and Gertrude's father jumped upon the running board.

A fight followed. Biting, kicking, and swinging his fists, Schlosser tried to throw off the angry swarm of men and women. Deputy Sheriff Delbert Weale struck him on the head with a club and sent him sprawling into a ditch. A minute later another deputy, Lester Tiffany, succeeded in clicking the handcuffs on Schlosser's wrists.

"Lynch him!" was the cry when members of the party noted Gertrude's hysterical condition.

Others aided Sheriff Edwin Ahlstrom and his deputies in saving Schlosser from violence and he was hurried to the Waukegan jail. There a guard was assigned to protect him.

Gertrude was taken home and put under a physician's care.

SHOOTS SECOND AS TRIO BURSTS INTO 'GROCERY'

Third Bullet Strikes Own Grandfather.

A 17 year old boy, wise in the ways of moonshining and gun play, killed Police Sergeant Laurence Harnett and dangerously wounded Sergt. Stephen J. Barry when the detectives raided his father's "grocery" establishment at 914 West Polk street yesterday afternoon.

Then the youth slipped past Harnett's lifeless body, darted down a narrow passageway, and disappeared. In spite of the thorough search which was started immediately by detectives and policemen, neither the boy, Joe Montano Jr., nor his father could be found.

"Hanging Case Complete."

Late last night Assistant State's Attorney John Sbarbaro, after examining numerous witnesses in the criminal court building, snapped his brief case shut and tersely announced:

"I consider that I have a complete hanging case against this Montano boy."

The shooting occurred in the kitchen of a drab three story structure in the heart of the Italian colony, a little way west of Halsted street. There Joe Montano, father of a large family and proprietor of a small grocery store, has been making a comfortable living in ways not unknown to the police.

Joe's father-in-law, John Montano—for Joe married into a family of his own name—has long been a familiar sight in the Maxwell street police district as he drove his expensive car back and forth from the shabby grocery on Polk street. Diamond rings are wont to gleam on John Montano's fingers.

Called "Moonshine Hole."

And there are rings on the fingers of Mrs. Madeline Montano, his daughter, and Joe's wife. When she goes shopping she wears a fashionable squirrel skin coat.

The police were acquainted with the reason for the Montanos' prosperity. Time and again residents of the neighborhood had written to Chief Collins and Mayor Dever and the federal prohibition agents about it. Some of them hinted at political influence and told of policemen who had been seen staggering from the grocery store.

"It is nothing but a moonshine hole," read a letter which was on Chief Collins' desk yesterday afternoon.

Place Raided Frequently.

The place had been raided often. In fact, John Montano and his diamonds were taken less than a week ago in one of these numerous invasions of the grocery store. He was out on bond in connection with this case.

Yesterday afternoon Sergts. Harnett, Barry, and Frank Fuerst, all of Chief Collins' personal squad, paused near the corner of Polk street and Blue Island avenue. Despite a belief which had spread throughout the Italian quarter that here in America a man's home is his castle and may be defended at all times against forceful entry—even by police—the three detectives decided to call on the Montanos without the formality of a search warrant. The mayor had decreed that the town should be dry and a few wet spots persisted. Their duty was plain to them.

Plan to Trap Occupants.

There, in the shadow of a brick walled building, the three detectives laid their plans. Fuerst and Barry should enter the grocery store by the front door Harnett would hurry down an alley, climb the fence, and be ready at the rear to stop all flight.

They parted and went their ways.

As Fuerst and Barry stepped over the threshold some one in the back room saw them. The store was deserted. A few shelves of canned goods—not enough to keep even a small family from poverty—lined one wall. A flour bin was open. Beside the curtained door which led to the rear a dilapidated coffee grinder stood on a table.

Family Prepares for Battle.

The two detectives, looking past the curtains, saw a man hastily empty the contents of two bottles into a sink. They drew their guns and rushed across the floor.

"Cut that out!" ordered Sergt. Barry. "Leave those bottles alone."

At that instant Mrs. Madeline Montano stepped forward and blocked

STEINMETZ LEFT ESTATE OF--FAME

Scorned Pay; Asked Only Tiny Drawing Account.

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 27.—Dr. Charles Proteus Steinmetz, electrical wizard, who died in his home here yesterday morning, left virtually no estate, it was learned today. His books and papers, an electric automobile made in 1912, and a $1,500 insurance policy, the same as is issued to all veteran employes of the General Electric company, apparently comprise the entire worldly wealth of the scientist and inventor.

Could Have Made Millions.

The man who "made lightning" probably could have made millions, but apparently he never drew a salary. When he entered the employ of the General Electric company a score of years ago, he said:

"I do not wish to work for money. Let me draw it as I wish and if I draw too much, tell me. Do not fix an amount. If I think of money I will not work as well. Build me a house, if you wish, and a laboratory. That is all I want."

Body to Lie in State.

The body will lie in state tomorrow afternoon in the house which the company provided. Brief tributes will be paid from city church pulpits tomorrow morning. Flags will be at half-mast and public buildings will be draped. On Monday afternoon private funeral services will be held in the home.

It was learned today that Oscar Asmussen, a friend of the inventor in Switzerland, led Dr. Steinmetz to come to America thirty years ago and paid the expenses of the voyage.

COOLIDGE SEES HOPE IN VISIT OF LLOYD GEORGE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27.—[By the Associated Press.]—The visit of David Lloyd George to America has been "a piece of good fortune for both his country and our own, and for the cause of international accord," President Coolidge said in a letter read tonight at a dinner given by the Overseas Writers to the former British premier.

"It is necessary for me to express to you," the President wrote, "my regrets that it is not possible for me to join you this evening at the dinner you are giving for Mr. Lloyd George. It would have been a notable pleasure to share in the tribute to your illustrious guest from overseas.

Aids International Friendship.

"I am very certain that his visit to America has been a piece of good fortune for both his country and our own, and for the cause of international accord. During his stay among us, he has voiced the appeal for that better understanding among the nations which must be at the base of all good relations.

"It has been a fine thing for our people to become better acquainted with this eminent leader in civilization's struggle to maintain itself; and I hope he will feel that his effort in bringing his message to us has not been entirely a vain one."

Lloyd George Visits Gettysburg.

The field of Gettysburg was visited today by Mr. Lloyd George. Accompanied by Dame Margaret and Miss Megan Lloyd George, he made the run from Washington by automobile.

Secretary Weeks acted as the official guide, relating incidents associated with the three days' fighting. Lloyd George spent some time at the Bloody Angle, where the confederate advance was stopped, and in the military cemetery, where Abraham Lincoln delivered his famous address.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL KILLS HERSELF IN GARAGE AT HOME

Anna Grosch, 15 years old, a student at Cicero High school, shot and killed herself in a garage in the rear of her home, 6532 West 26th street, sometime yesterday afternoon. Her father, John Grosch, becoming alarmed at her prolonged absence last night, went to the garage to get his car to make a search for her.

He found her body on the floor. In one hand was gripped a .38 caliber revolver from which she had fired a bullet through her abdomen. In her other hand was a note which read: "Dear Father: It's all over. Good-by."

According to her parents, the girl had been deeply interested in her school work, was in good health, and had no love affairs. They were unable to furnish a motive.

BAN JOHNSON'S WIFE ATTACKED WITH HYSTERICS

Mrs. Byron B. Johnson, 432 Oakwood boulevard, wife of Byron B. [Ban] Johnson, president American League baseball clubs, became hysterical while alone last night and aroused neighbors by her screams.

The Wabash avenue police were notified and when they arrived they found a crowd had gathered and were watching Mrs. Johnson, who was throwing out movable pieces of furniture from the first floor window of her apartment.

"Policemen succeeded in quieting Mrs. Johnson and then carried in her bull pup, three rocking chairs, two flower baskets, and two dining room chairs which she had thrown out of the window in her hysteria. After quieting Mrs. Johnson the police dispersed the crowd.

SAXON CABINET DEFIES ORDER TO QUIT OFFICE

Bavaria Is Asked to Restore Troops.

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Oct. 28, 1:30 a. m.—(Tribune Radio.)—Chancellor Stresemann's ultimatum to the Saxon cabinet probably will be refused today, The Tribune learns. Premier Zeigner returned to Dresden at 11 o'clock last night and called together as many cabinet members as he could reach. After a session lasting until 1 o'clock this morning a decision was taken to decline the ultimatum. The entire cabinet, with the leaders of the Saxon Socialist and Communist parties, will meet at 10 o'clock this morning to approve the decision officially.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—Chancellor Stresemann began a fight today to establish the authority of the German government throughout the nation.

He sent an ultimatum to Prime Minister Zeigner of Saxony demanding the retirement of his Socialist-communist cabinet.

He sent another ultimatum to Bavaria demanding that Dictator von Kahr restore the reichswehr in Bavaria to the jurisdiction of the Berlin government and that Gen. von Lossow, whom Bavaria made its military commander when Berlin ousted him, be removed. This note was more polite in its language.

Socialists May Join Reds.

Chancellor Stresemann's ultimatum to Saxony probably will be followed by a similar one to Thuringia.

His action widens the breach between the Socialist members of the cabinet and those of the right parties and gives the Socialists another urgent reason for withdrawing and forming their threatened coalition with the communists throughout the nation.

The Socialists still hesitate, however, for they know what a coalition means immediate dissolution of the reichstag and the appointment of a military dictator. They are not strong enough to fight a dictator, backed by the reichswehr.

Shortly after the ultimatum reached Saxony twelve civilians and one soldier were killed and twenty civilians wounded in a clash between communists and the reichswehr at Freiburg, a little Saxon town near the Czecho-Slovakian border. The battle started when the police director called in the reichswehr to disperse rioters who had attacked a motor truck laden with provisions.

Due to Red Activities.

The ultimatum to Saxony follows communist developments in the last fortnight in Germany, which made necessary the reinforcement of the reichswehr in Saxony and brought on the series of riots throughout Germany, resulting in Hamburg, for example, in the death of seventy-five persons. It marks the first stern measure of the civil dictator under the enabling act.

Chancellor Stresemann's ultimatum practically demands that the Socialists form a coalition with one more bourgeoisie party to replace the communists or step down entirely and permit the conservatives to form a new Saxon cabinet.

It is an answer to the declarations of the Socialists and communists in Saxony, Thuringia, and Brunswick that their workers' governments would form a Red heart of Germany, from which would grow a Red government for the entire land.

If the Dresden government does not resign before tomorrow evening, Chancellor Stresemann informed Prime Minister Zeigner that a special imperial commissar would take over the civil authority and maintain it until constitutional conditions were restored.

RUHR RIOTS GROW

VINCENT SHEEAN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

DUSSELDORF, Germany, Oct. 27.—[Tribune Radio.]—Hunger and unemployment have plunged the Rhine and Ruhr valleys into a famine upriser. Disorders have been steadily increasing during the past twenty-four hours.

French tanks and armored cars patrolling with machine guns controlled the mobs in Dusseldorf, Bochum, Gelsenkirchen, Essen and Witten, but the time is approaching when the sight of machine guns will not be enough and the French will be compelled to mow down the crowds, army officials fear.

The official casualty lists in the riots today were:

ESSEN—Five dead and seventeen gravely wounded and scores less seriously wounded.

BOCHUM—Two dead, five gravely wounded and many slightly hurt.

GELSENKIRCHEN—Two dead, an unknown number wounded.

DUISBERG—Five Germans and one Belgian soldier killed and about twenty seriously wounded.

BENRATH—One killed and several wounded, many were wounded at Witten and Mulheim.

Krupp Accepts Mob's Demands.

Count Krupp von Bohlen and Holbach, paroled from a French prison and the directors of Kruppa in Essen, surrendered to their workers' demands today, following 24 hours of rioting and paid out four entire weeks' salaries.

The workmen remained in the besieged administration building throughout the night, systematically destroying the company's books and much furniture. The German police were inadequate to cope with the situation. French armored cars patrolled the streets just outside of the affected area without making any effort to control the mob.

Fritz Homarnan, administrator of Krupp's, told THE TRIBUNE the vast establishment with its 43,000 manual workers and 9,000 clerical workers, must close in the immediate future in face of the increasing financial losses. All unmarried men were discharged today.

"Count Krupp von Bohlen und Holbach is holding daily conversations since his release from jail with representatives of the French authorities in order to arrive, if possible, at an agreement," Herr Homarnan says. "But the outlook is extremely dark. When we are forced to close, which will be soon——"

He left the sentence unfinished and pointed out of the window to a ragged mob surging up the main street to the Krupp factories to get their pay.

All Hugo Stinnes' and Fritz Thyssen's factories and mines, which remained open until today, closed after another meeting of the industrials. In closing up other factories at Bochum, 15,000 men were thrown out of work.

French Expect New Riots.

In the streets of Essen a seemingly endless crowd of bitter faced Westphalians constantly were kept in motion by police and troops. The French authorities believe the communists and unemployed are only awaiting night in order to attack again. Armored cars and tanks and troops are massed at strategic points.

From Essen to Duisberg along the River Ruhr town after town presented the same picture. Crowds of unemployed standing aimlessly in the streets, while workmen boarded up the fronts of shops broken into last night and this morning.

The French withdrew their guards from the rathaus at Dusseldorf tonight and turned the building over to the German police. The French authorities have disarmed the police, leaving them only their sabers, and also have expressly forbidden them to resist an attack by the Rhineland separatists. Separatist troops are massed at the railway station and are expected to seize this city tonight.

Ex-Kaiser Near German Border.

DOORN, Holland, Oct. 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Former Emperor William and ex-Crown Prince Frederick William, accompanied by two other personages, left the ex-kaiser's home here at 4 o'clock last evening in an automobile in the direction of Arnhem, about ten miles from the German border, and returned at 2 o'clock this morning.

Turkish Cabinet Resigns Following Erivan Attack

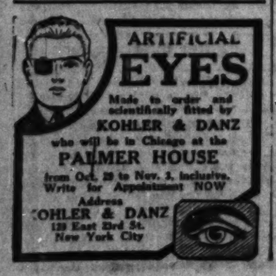

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

ANGORA, Turkey, Oct. 27.—The Turkish cabinet resigned today on account of general dissatisfaction, precipitated by the incident of an attack upon the Turkish embassy at Erivan, Armenia.

Invention Makes Warm Friends.

That much dreaded task of getting out of a warm bed on cold wintry mornings to open up the furnace or boiler is now both unnecessary and old fashioned since the invention of an ingenious regulator which is aptly known as the "Little Draft-Man." This amazing device is almost human, for at any time of the day or night it will automatically open the drafts while the owner is peacefully sleeping in anticipation of a warm, comfortable home upon arising. Any one can install it in less than five minutes. The Little Draft-Man Co., Dept. R, Grand Rapids, Michigan, is meeting with big success and needs representatives in all localities to demonstrate this draft regulator and will send this device and full particulars to any one interested in taking over their sales in this territory. Write them today.—Advertisement.

ANTENNA STRIKES ELECTRIC WIRE; ONE DEAD, 2 HURT

Boy's Action Saves Two in Grip of Current.

One man was electrocuted yesterday and another burned so badly he may not recover when a radio aerial they were attempting to string from a tree to the rear of 5339 Leland avenue came in contact with a high voltage cable of the Commonwealth Edison company. A third man who came to their rescue and attempted to drag one of them away from the wire by his foot also was badly burned.

The dead man was William J. Quinn, 3846 Filimore street, an accountant for the Peabody Coal company.

Two Saved by Boy's Action.

The injured are Albert F. Goeppinger, auditor for the Peabody Coal company, in the rear of whose home the aerial was being strung, and Andrew B. Osminskowski, 5342 Wilson avenue, a neighbor, who ran to the rescue of the two men when he saw them writhing in the back yard entangled in the sparking wire.

That all three did not die was probably due to the efforts of M. C. Tiefty, 5549 Winchester avenue, a boy, who pushed the live wire away with a stick, and Miss Elsie Gafke, 5334 Wilson avenue, who notified the Commonwealth Edison company to shut off the current and summoned the police and a pulmotor from the fire department.

Quinn had volunteered to assist Goepinger in putting up the radio antenna, and the two were attempting to throw it over a limb of a tree when it fell and dangled across the high voltage cable. Both men had hold of the aerial at the time. They were knocked down by the shock, and, unable to release their grips, were writhing on the ground when Osminskowski saw their plight. Rushing from his home, he seized Quinn by the foot, and immediately the current gripped him and held him with the other victims.

Woman Phones Alarm.

Miss Gafke, who is a school teacher, heard their cries, rushed to a window, and then to a telephone and summoned aid.

All three were unconscious when the firemen arrived and gave first aid. Quinn, who was 30 years old and married, died on the way to the Montrose hospital. Goeppinger and Osminskowski were removed to Swedish Covenant hospital, where Goeppinger was still unconscious from shock at a late hour last night. Goeppinger is married and has three children.

BERLIN LOAN BY U. S. BANKS PART OF HUGHES PLAN?

Economic Parley Expected After Debt Is Fixed.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—With acceptance of the Hughes plan for an expert commission to study reparations assured by Great Britain and Germany, and apparently assured by France, Belgium, and Italy, though lacking formal official confirmation here, the state department today was marking time, though hopeful of early developments.

While the text of the French reply to the British government has not yet been received at the department, officials stated there has been nothing to change their informal announcement of yesterday that the terms of the French acceptance are satisfactory to this government.

Have Yet to Decode Reply.

Chargé d'Affaires de Laboulaye of the French embassy here, who transmitted to Secretary Hughes the substance of the French reply to Great Britain, is expected to transmit the text of the note itself as soon as it has been received and deciphered.

The general outlines of the program to be followed in the effort to solve the question of the economic rehabilitation of Europe, as envisaged by President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes, became apparent for the first time today. This program, of course, is tentative, but officials here are unable at present to see how there can be any great variation from it, if the practical results which Mr. Hughes has insisted upon are to be realized.

Great American Loan.

The program includes the commission of experts, which France has agreed to permit the reparations commission to name, a general economic conference of all powers directly interested in reparations, and in all probability a loan to Germany, to be floated largely by American bankers, in case the first two phases of the program are successfully passed.

Even though all arrangements for the commission of experts to inquire into the capacity of Germany to pay, go through on schedule, as they now seem likely to do, it is pointed out that an economic conference of the kind suggested by Mr. Hughes in his note would be necessary. Under the terms of the Versailles treaty the reparation commission has no authority to change the total amount of reparations.

U. S. MAY HELP FARMERS SELL GRAIN ABROAD

Coolidge Makes Study of Wheat Grown.

Washington, Oct. 27.—Desirous of being able to present to congress in December a concrete program of agricultural relief, President Coolidge was given serious consideration of the proposal that the War Finance corporation finance the sale of surplus wheat to Europe.

Two steps in this program have been made in directions given the special commission headed by Eugene Meyer Jr., director of the finance corporation, now in the northwest to promote formation of cooperative marketing associations and to consider reductions in freight rates on export grain.

Coolidge Gets Proposal.

The proposal was laid before Secretary Wallace several days ago by a group of middle western grain men and later outlined to the President. Prior to this visit Mr. Coolidge had been acquainted with the general features of such a plan by C. H. March of Litchfield, Minn., who has made a special study of agricultural problems.

Mr. Coolidge today held two conferences with Mr. March, who is a weekend White House guest. Secretary Hoover also talked with the Minnesotan and Secretary Wallace, who said today that the proposal appeared to have strong support, probably will discuss the plan within a few days with the executive.

The principal question in the mind of the President is understood to be whether such a plan would meet his requirements that all relief measures be economically sound. On this point he was given assurances by Mr. March.

Another question involved is whether such an operation could be taken over by the war finance corporation without further authority from congress. Mr. March expressed the view that action by congress probably would be needed.

Farmers Need Law.

"We have three principal classes in the United States—the manufacturing class, the laboring class and the farming class," Mr. March asserted in a statement. "With the end of the war deflation in money return faced all of these classes. To aid the manufacturer congress passed a tariff act and to help the workers meet the deflation an immigration law was enacted. Something still must be done for the farmers.

"Because the farmers have not been helped there is real distress in the west."

Mr. March told the President that approximately 900,000 farmers left the farm in 1922 and that from a million to a million and a half would leave this year, unless something was done to relieve the situation.

Red Revolution to Sweep Germany, Trotsky Asserts

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 27.—Neither France nor England will be able to send enough troops to suppress the German revolution, which is rapidly developing, according to War Minister Trotzky in his latest speech before the Moscow workers.

The Red army leader is continuing his strenuous speechmaking campaign, often addressing half a dozen meetings daily. M. Trotzky is informing the Russians that the German proletariats are in a majority and that a great revolution is only a question of days. He points out that there is no middle class ready to oppose a German soviet government because the wealth of the middle class is already in the hands of the capitalist class, who will shortly be fleeing abroad from the wrath of Red revolutionary tribunals.

Hails German Revolt.

M. Trotzky assures the workers that there is little likelihood of war since Poland is unwilling to get caught between the jaws of the proletarian armies of Germany and Russia. He closes all his speeches by saying:

"Hail the German revolution and European peace."

The significance of this statement is that Russia intends to move troops to Germany should the outside powers attempt to interfere with the German communists.

Communists Lose Strength.

MOSCOW, Oct. 27.—[By the Associated Press.]—Though the communists continue in the majority in the city and factory soviets as the result of the elections just held, the rural soviets in the Moscow district show the nonparty members to be in a tremendous majority. From 946 rural soviets 84 communists, 48 young communists, and 2,894 nonparty members were elected.

According to the paper, Laboring Moscow, a group of traders in the village of Klasma, near Moscow, came to the election meeting and were ordered by the chairman to withdraw, as, according to the soviet constitution, tradesmen have no voting rights. They refused to obey, asserting that by right of revolutionary initiative they would elect a member of the village soviet. The election was cancelled by the authorities and the traders will be brought to trial.

FRENCH SEE NO SUCCESS IN NEW INDEMNITY QUIZ

Paris Press Attacks U. S. for Intervening.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Oct. 27.—The proposed reparations conference is already doomed to failure, according to high French officials.

While outwardly accepting the Anglo-American plan to reexamine the entire problem of German indemnity, the French are so restricting the scope of the activities of the proposed committee of experts that it will be impossible to achieve success, a man connected with reparations affairs said. Secretary of State Hughes himself, he added, has given Premier Poincare most powerful ammunition to shatter the conference through his preliminary warning that it cannot deal with the question of allied war debts to America.

Acting on this basis, the French declare the conference cannot consider interallied debts either. Since both Premier Poincare and Prime Minister Baldwin are on record as stating that allied war debts are indissolubly mingled with reparations, and since neither France nor Great Britain can fix their minimum demands on Germany without knowing exactly how much they must pay their creditors, the American reservation is expected to furnish the pretext for crippling the conference.

Paris Press Turns on U. S.

Through its sudden decision to mix in European affairs the United States government has placed itself liable to being blamed again by Europeans for the world's economic, financial, and commercial chaos. The French press tonight is beginning to insinuate that Washington's refusal to permit a discussion of the interallied debts killed all chances of success for the reparations conference, since the German indemnity total is swollen and is irreducible because the allies must pay most of what they obtain from Germany to the United States.

Qual d'Orsay today revealed a marked change in the French attitude towards a conference since yesterday. Without hesitation French officials refer to the proposed conference as a "meeting of a committee of experts," indicating that they look at it as just another minor subcommittee on reparations which will spend a long time on unlimited expense accounts, taking costly junkets and then frame a voluminous report which will not bind the government and probably never will be read.

Think U. S. Made Mistake.

The feeling in American circles here is that Secretary of State Hughes and President Coolidge committed a mistake in agreeing to be dragged into this distinctly European question where even neighbors like France, Italy and Belgium cannot agree and with the British so opposed to the Poincare program that the entente is practically broken.

The root of the whole divergence is the different viewpoints of France and all the other allies towards Germany. The French feel the two problems, reparations and security, cannot be divorced.

Security does not bother Italy, Great Britain, or Belgium. They want reparations and the world markets restored and the French attribute to the United States the latter motive as the real reason for offering to help.

Ruhr Is Stumbling Block.

The French will not give up their grip on the Ruhr, Germany's richest district. The British have declared this occupation illegal. If the British and American experts figure on the Ruhr's returns toward reparations, while under French exploitation, French authorities say this will be recognition of the legality of the occupation. The British are certain to oppose any such action.

British and American quarters expect an indication of the French attitude towards the problem Tuesday, when the reparations commission will consider Chancellor Stresemann's note requesting a reexamination of the German capacity to pay. If Premier Poincare really is ready whole heartedly to solve the problem it is expected that the Berlin government's request will be granted.

It is feared, however, that the French dual objectives, reparations and security, will result in clouding the issue, as Premier Poincare stalls for time, waiting for developments in the separatist movements in the Rhineland, Bavaria, and Saxony.

BOOTLEG "GROCERY" AND FIGURES IN FATAL BATTLE

Standing at his left is his wife, while next to her is Joe Jr., who did the shooting which resulted in the death of Detective Sergeant Harnett and in the wounding of Detective Sergeant Barry and the slayer's grandfather, John Montano. At the extreme right is John Montano, 14, who described his 17 year old brother's role as gunman. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Rose Montano, grandmother of Sergt. Harnett's slayer, who took active part in the fatal battle in the rear room of the Montano "grocery."

John Montano, grandfather of Joe Jr. The boy's first shot directed at Police Sergeant Barry, struck the elder Montano in the left arm.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Interior view of Montano "grocery." The sparsely stocked shelves are said by police and complaining neighbors to be part of an obvious camouflage for bootlegging operations by which the Montanos are said to have made profits beyond the experience of completely equipped groceries. The curtained entrance to the back room, said to be the moonshine dispensary, is shown, with a dilapidated coffee grinder on guard near by. It was in this rooom that young Montano shot two raiding detective sergeants after other members of the family had engaged one of them in battle. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

the narrow doorway. She struck a belligerent attitude and asked the detectives what they wanted. They told her.

"Show me your search warrant," she demanded.

When Sergt. Barry shook his head she rushed to the kitchen and grabbed a pot of hot water. Turning, she threw it at the detectives.

Boy Appears with Gun.

Simultaneously the boy, Joe Jr., entered the kitchen from the back yard. In his right hand was a revolver.

"Put down that gun!" commanded Barry. "Don't be funny. We're only looking for evidence of bootlegging, and here you're trying to make things serious."

The detective's revolver convinced the boy and he lowered the gun. Barry made no effort to take it from him, but walked across the kitchen to examine the contents of a bottle.

Three Attack Detective.

"Go out and see what's keeping Harnett," Barry ordered Fuerst, who was standing in the door. As soon as the latter detective had left, Joe Montano and his wife and father-in-law attacked Barry.

Two of them picked up pokers from the stove. The old man grabbed a flatiron. At the same instant Joe Jr. fired.

The first bullet wounded the boy's grandfather in the arm. The second entered Sergt. Barry's abdomen.

Meanwhile Harnett, climbing over the back fence, had rushed to the rear door and entered. As he did so the boy turned and fired a third time. Harnett staggered a few steps and dropped beside a narrow passageway leading to Polk street. Then, according to the story which witnesses told Assistant Prosecutor Sbarbaro, the young killer ran out the door and vanished.

Comb District in Vain.

Although wounded, Sergt. Barry managed to reach the sidewalk, where he called to a passing automobile. He was taken to the county hospital. There surgeons decided not to operate, believing the detective has a good chance to recover.

Calls to the Maxwell street police and Chief Collins' office and the detective bureau flooded the Italian quarter with policemen. A man hunt was immediately started. The entire district was searched.

The chief, informed of the shooting, announced a renewed warfare against the bootleggers. In confirmation of the letters he had been receiving, detectives found several score bottles of moonshine, a jug of wine and some cans of alcohol in the apartment above the grocery store.

"The shooting of those two brave men, representing the flower of the police department, shows how defiant and desperate this type of criminal is," declared Chief Collins. "We are going after the bootleggers and moonshiners all the harder. We'll clean them out completely."

Woman Defends Husband.

State's Attorney Crowe directed his assistant, John Sebarbaro, to take immediate charge of the investigation. John Motano and his wife, Rose, Mrs. Madeline Montano and her 14 year old son John were taken to the prosecutor's office for questioning. Mrs. Julia Onesto of 940 West Polk street, a neighbor, and Michael Camp of 839 South Morgan street, an 18 year old boy who was in the building at the time of the shooting, also were held.

"My boy Joe, he wasn't at home," the young slayer's mother persisted throughout a grilling that lasted two hours. "He left home in the morning. He was playing ball.

"My husband, he wasn't being either," she added, and all of Sebarbaro's questions couldn't budge her from her declaration.

Boy Tells of Conflict.

From Joe's 14 year old brother, however, the assistant prosecutor and Capt. David Fitzgerald of the Maxwell street station got a more ingenuous story. He admitted outright that his father and brother had been making moonshine. They sold it at prices ranging from 15 cents to 20 cents a drink. They sold as many as 100 pints of moonshine each day in addition.

"Joe was in the yard when the cops came," the boy said. "He came in and shot them. Then he ran out the back door. Yes, sir, my father was in the kitchen, too."

Following the inquisition all except the neighbor woman were ordered held.

Arrest May Bring Capture.

Meanwhile Sergts. Kelly and Frawley, scouring the neighborhood in the vicinity of the Montano grocery store, made an arrest which is expected to lead to the slayer's capture.

Following a taxicab carrying two men, they caught up with it at the corner of Sholto and Harrison streets. One man attempted to escape, and a revolver dropped to the floor of the cab.

He said he was Alexander Cucco and that he was hurrying the other occupant, Dr. Eugene J. Chesrow of 2913 Jackson boulevard, to his home in Melrose Park. An emergency case. There was a woman who was very sick.

The detectives accompanied the two men to Melrose Park and found the "sick" woman walking about the house, fully dressed. Convinced that young Montano had been wounded in the gunplay and that Cucco was trying to bring him medical aid, Sergts. Kelly and Frawley took him to the detective bureau for questioning.

While the man hunt and the inquisition were in progress last night, friends and neighbors in two sections of the city were trying to comfort the families of the slain sergeant and his wounded comrade.

Family of Three Bereaved.

In Sergt. Harnett's home at 4753 Jackson boulevard is a young widow and two small daughters—Catherine, who is 5 weeks old, and 4 year old Lorrane. Their father, who was 28 years old, had been in the department only six years.

Sergt. Barry, the wounded man, is a veteran of many a police battle. He went on the force in 1909. In the days when the late John Wayman was state's attorney he was in charge of the squad which raided the 22d street levee district until it was finally forced to go out of business. He is also noted as the policeman who procured an acetyline torch on that Saturday morning when the Eastland toppled over in the Chicago river, and cut a hole in the vessel's side to remove the bodies of the victims.

At 7927 North Robey street a wife and an 11 year old daughter are sobbing and praying for Steve's recovery.

INCREASED TAXES ASSURE LARGE SURPLUS FOR U. S.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Federal income taxes paid in the first four months of this fiscal year exceed by $81,233,279 the revenues for the corresponding period last year.

Income tax collections from July 1 to Oct. 25, the latest date on which such data is available, treasury officials added, amounted to $446,677,093. In the corresponding period a year ago the collections were only $365,443,814.

If proportionate increases in this and other revenue sources are maintained the government's surplus by June 30 probably will reach $400,000,000, instead of the $300,000,000 predicted.

A steady rise in customs revenues is reported. Since July 1 customs duties have amounted to $173,354,739, an increase of $1,326,063 over the corresponding period last year.

SWAIN REGAINS HIS $10,000, BUT ELOPEMENT'S OFF

Girl and Money Found; Then Wife Bobs Up.

Polish is the language spoken by Miss Victoria Grackowjaski when she is not visiting a dance hall at Emma and Noble streets as Miss Victoria Grace. It is the language of Detective Sergeants Felix Kosinski and Michael Lyng. It is also the language of Anthony Karczewski of 10424 Indiana avenue. And all four know that money talks.

Accordingly when Karczewski burst into the detective bureau Friday night and mentioned something about $10,000, Kosinski and Lyng were all ears.

A Romance Gone Awry.

Karczewski talked fast. He had met Miss Grace in the west side dance hall three months ago. Friday evening they were on their way to Milwaukee to be married. At State and Adams the bride-to-be had suddenly remembered she hadn't packed everything in her grip. She had asked Anthony to wait, and, by the way, it would be safe for him to stand on the corner with $10,000, so he'd better put the money in her grip for safe keeping.

So he had handed over ten $1,000 bills. He had waited and then taxied out to her home to find she had moved three weeks ago.

Find Girl and $10,000.

But the part of the conversation that caught the detectives' ears was Karczewski's offer of a reward of $1,000 for the return of the $10,000. Without being assigned to the case, they worked all night on it, with the result that at 6 o'clock last night they found Miss Grace at 3057 Diversey parkway and the ten $1,000 bills under her mattress.

"I just wanted to teach him a lesson," she said. "I was keeping the money safe for him."

Karczewski refused to prosecute and paid the detectives $500 each for regaining his money.

P. S.—The reason Karczewski refused to prosecute or sue for breach of promise is that he has a wife and three children. Mrs. Karczewski was in at the finish and collected the remaining $9,000.

WOMEN VOTERS WANT ALL U. S. VOTERS TO VOTE

The school of citizenship being held from Oct. 30 to Nov. 2 by the University of Illinois, coöperating with the Illinois League of Women Voters, will have as one of its speakers Mrs. Maud Wood Park, president of the National League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Park said, "We must 'sell' the idea of voting to every possible voter."

Prof. James W. Garner, head of the department of political science, is one of the speakers from the university who is lecturing at the school. Four days of lectures and conferences, planned by the university, and of luncheons and teas arranged for by the Champaign County League of Women Voters, will comprise the course.

MONKEY GLANDS MAY MAKE MEN MONKEYS, FEAR

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 27.—[By Associated Press.]—The practice of monkey gland operations, should it be extended and carried down the generations, may change man back into the monkey from which he evolved, warns Prof. Clementi Onelili, director of the Buenos Aires zoölogical garden.

Prof. Onelili writes:

"The time may come when the substitution of the secretions of such inferior animals as monkeys will become more widely practiced and so many monkey men produced that after a few generations the characteristics of the human species would show variations. A genus of satyr might result."

STEVENS BALKS AT EXTRADITION TO JOLIET CELL

Order by Indiana Court May Be Asked Today.

Walter Stevens, Chicago gunman convicted of attempting to murder an Aurora policeman, delayed his extradition from Indiana last night by refusing to affix his signature to extradition papers approved and signed by Gov. McCray of Indiana.

Five Kane county officials arrived in Crown Point, where Stevens is being held, at 10 o'clock bearing the extradition papers and $1,000 which the county had offered as a reward for Stevens' capture. Those in the party were C. L. Abbott, state's attorney; H. L. Bisenke, sheriff; A. G. Wirz, chief of detectives at Aurora; J. B. Amell, assistant state's attorney, and Harvey Gunsul, who was state's attorney at the time Stevens was prosecuted and convicted.

Judge May Act Today.

Under the Indiana law, unless a prisoner affixes his signature to extradition papers, he cannot be removed from the state until he has been arraigned before a Circuit court judge and identified in the record as the fugitive sought. The identity once established, the court orders the prisoner into custody of the authorities asking extradition.

State's Attorney Abbott announced he would make an effort to induce some judge in Crown Point to hold a short session today and complete the transfer of the prisoner. Failing in this, the Kane county officials will be forced to await the convening of court at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The reward will be paid to Sheriff W. N. Olds of Lake county, who captured Stevens, as soon as the transfer is made.

Chicago Takes No Action.

Until the Kane county authorities arrived to take charge of Stevens, with a view of lodging him in Joliet prison to carry out his sentence, there was some doubt as to whether custody would be claimed by the Chicago or Aurora officials. Stevens has been sought here for several weeks for questioning concerning the beer feud in which Georgie Meeghan and "Spot" Bucher were slain. The sentence imposed on the Aurora charge, however, takes precedence.

Stevens was convicted more than three years ago of the attempted murder of Policeman Lester Wedemaier of Aurora. He obtained release on bonds pending an appeal which was carried to the highest court. When he had exhausted all the court possibilities of freedom, he forfeited his bond.

Application was made for a pardon to Gov. Small soon after Small himself was acquitted of charges of embezzlement. Gov. Small is said to have expressed his belief in Stevens' innocence and to have directed his pardon board to take cognizance of the application. The report of the pardon board has never been made public.

With Stevens once in the penitentiary, it is expected the pardon plea will be resurrected and Kane county officials are preparing to oppose it.

STEVENS' RECORD

Bureau of identification records of Walter Stevens are by no means complete. It was said last night. This is laid to the political power Stevens has wielded throughout his long career: "on the gun," during which he obtained a court order compelling the police to take his picture out of the "rogue's gallery" and to destroy their record of his arrest. Although Stevens has repeatedly boasted that he was arrested more than 200 times and never as much as paid a fine. Following is a partial record of his major arrests and his activities in escaping punishment.

April 22, 1910—Charged jointly with "Mossy" Enright and William Gentlemen of assault with intent to commit murder. It was alleged they fired at Edward Mullen, 906 Larrabee street, on March 11, 1910, at 50th and Cana streets. They were classed as labor sluggers and terrorists. The grand jury returned a "no bill."

Boasts of Killing—Freed.

June 1, 1911.—Stevens was arrested in Gary, Ind., and brought to Chicago, where he and "Mossy" Enright were held for the murder of Gentlemen. Neither was convicted.

Sept. 1, 1912—Held at the detective bureau for the murder of Bernard Malloy. This killing was ascribed to labor warfare.

Dec. 5, 1916—Arrested with Albert Chase and Tom Innes for the murder of Louis Lichtenstein. Emil Noel, 5419 Prairie avenue, identified all three as the men who tried to obtain a bag of jewels Lichtenstein was carrying. Innes pleaded guilty and was a witness against Chase and Stevens. They were found not guilty, but Innes went to prison.

Identified as Bank Robber.

Jan. 30, 1918—Indicted for the Heller-Rose jewel robbery in the Marshall Field Annex building. Later he was identified as one of the automobile bandits who in November, 1918, held up the Commonwealth Savings bank, 7460 Vincennes avenue.

Feb. 8, 1919—Surrendered to State's Attorney Hoyne and was released on $25,000 bonds. Rewards for his arrest at that time aggregated $27,000. He told then how he had been shot by Sergt. William T. Russell on July 23, 1918, when he tried to crush the detective between two automobiles.

May 20, 1919—Arrested for the murder of Policeman Alfred Olin in Aurora, where he had been spending much time as a salesman.

May 22, 1919—Identified as one of men who on Dec. 24, 1918, robbed Moses Iralson, diamond broker, in the Chicago Savings Bank building, of $100,000 in jewelry. Iralson later refused to prosecute.

June 17, 1919—Found not guilty of the murder of Olin because of an alibi. He claimed that on Oct. 29, 1918, the night Olin was murdered and Policeman Wedemaier, also of Aurora, was shot, he was at home in Chicago and in bed because of gunshot wounds inflicted by Sergt. Russell.

June 18, 1919—Arrested for assault with intent to commit murder on Policeman Wedemaier.

Shoots Timothy Malloy.

Aug. 10, 1919—Shot Timothy Malloy, brother of Bernard Malloy, in both legs.

Sept. 23, 1919—Arrested for the Malloy shooting by order of Chief of Police Garrity.

March 4, 1920—Found that Stevens bonds on which he had been obtaining continuances were worthless.

March 27, 1920—Arrested with Charles Thulis, at whose home is found $25,000 in property stolen from freight cars.

Aug. 13, 1920—Arrested and partially identified as one of several who robbed a Plainfield, Ill., bank.

Convicted, Freed on Bonds.

April 11, 1920—Convicted of the Wedemaier attempted murder. Released on bonds pending appeal.

Feb. 1, 1921—Arrested for robbery. An indictment was voted but the case was stricken from the docket.

Oct. 10, 1922—U. S. Supreme court affirms sentence in Wedemaier case.

Oct. 12, 1922—Gov. Small, who had a few months previously been acquitted at Waukegan on charges of pocketing interest on state funds was reported to have said he believed Stevens to be innocent of the Wedemaier shooting. He directed Chauncey Jenkins, state director of public welfare and head of the pardon board, to inquire into the possibilities of issuing a pardon to Stevens. Jenkins and Will Colvin came to Chicago to see Henry Barrett Chamberlin of the crime commission in an effort to induce that organization to withdraw its opposition to the pardon. Chamberlin refused.

It was reported the pardon board considered the advisability of the pardon and reported to Gov. Small, who never made the report public. The intimation was that nothing would happen until Stevens surrendered.

March 16, 1923—Police of Miami, Fla., hunt Stevens, still a fugitive from Aurora officers, as slayer.

Oct. 24, 1923—Arrested in Cedar Lake, Ind., by police of Chicago where he is wanted for alleged participation in the so-called "beer war murders of Thomas O'Connor, George Meeghan, and George Bucher.

Oct. 26, 1923—Application made to Gov. Small for extradition papers, and they are issued.

DANCE, KEEP YOUNG, SAYS BOURNIQUE, 81, PIONEER INSTRUCTOR

Generations of Chicagoans took their first dancing lessons from Augustus E. Bournique, who celebrated his eighty-first birthday anniversary yesterday in his home at 559 Sur street.

E. A. BOURNIQUE.

The courtly French dancing master has made his home in Chicago since he was 10 years old. His schools of dancing, deportment, and physical culture have been regarded as an institution. Of late their direction has been under a son, Alvar L. Bournique.

Mr. and Mrs. Bournique celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary last June.

"Dance and stay young," is Mr. Bournique's motto. "I have danced all my life," he says. "I have never had rheumatism. I have taught children mostly, and they have helped me keep a hold on youth."

BURNS OIL IN ANY STOVE, RANGE OR FURNACE.

New Device Burns 96% Air and 4% Kerosene—Better Than City Gas.

A wonderful new invention that burns common kerosene (coal oil) in any stove, range or furnace, and that gives two or three times the heat at one-half the cost, has just been perfected by the Standard Oil Burner Co., Dept. 31, 103 North Main street, St. Louis, Missouri. This simple and inexpensive device does away with all drudgery connected with tending ordinary coal and wood fires. The company offers to send a burner at a special low price on thirty days' free trial to the first user in each community to help them introduce it. They even offer to give one away free. COFFIN, LYONS, FAHERTY MEET IN MILWAUKEE

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Ernest H. Lyons, one of the $580,000 a year city experts of the Thompson-Lundin administration, has been traveling out of the state to confer with Capt. Percy H. Coffin, who has been wanted by the special grand jury for several weeks.

E. H. LYONS.

Subpoena servers have been unable to find him and he has been reported in St. Louis, Kansas City, and other places. Lyons paid Coffin 10 per cent of his expert fees, and then sundry sums. The investigators want to ask Coffin "why?"

At a prominent hotel in Milwaukee last week there were present:

These at Milwaukee Hotel.

Ernest H. Lyons, who insisted on two claims to the grand jury that his "conscience is clear" and that he must have immunity from prosecution for bribery in connection with the expert-ing before testifying. He obtained immunity.

Clarence Darrow, who defended Fred Lundin in the school scandal case, and is now said to be attorney for Capt. Coffin.

Patrick H. O'Donnell, attorney in the school scandal trial, who principally defended the phonograph purchases in which State Commerce Commissioner Patrick H. Moynihan was interested. A writ of attachment was issued yesterday for Moynihan because of his failure to appear before the grand jury recently.

Michael White, head of the paving firm bearing his name, which is said to have presented Capt. Coffin with $10,000 in salary.

Michael J. Faherty, former president of the board of local improvements who hired the experts and who recently is reported to have purchased 100 acres in the path of the proposed elevated extension to Niles Center.

Capt. Percy H. Coffin, head of the state tax commission and former business manager of the board of education and president of the city civil service commission, whose income last year was said by State Senator Barbour to have been "around $100,000."

Another man, whose identity, name and business or concern in the grand jury investigation Mr. Lyons is said to have been unable to remember for the benefit of the grand jurors.

Former Conference Recalled.

But this is not the only time that Expert Lyons has conferred with some of these men. When Lyons first appeared before the grand jury he promised to produce his books, which are said to have been in a safety deposit vault in Fowler, Ind.

The night before Lyons was scheduled to produce his books he conferred with Attorneys H. O'Donnell and Darrow and Capt. Coffin in the Great Northern hotel in Chicago, although at that time subpoena servers were hunting for Coffin. Lyons' books were looked over at this meeting before they were produced for the inspection of the attorney general's staff.

Arthur S. Merigold, another expert who received rich fees, is said to have been away from Chicago since May 23 last. He bought a nice place at Lake Geneva beside that of Edward C. Waller Jr., another Thompson-Lundin expert, who received $580,000 in one year.

W. ROCKEFELLER ESTATE IS SOLD FOR GOLF CLUB

New York, Oct. 27.—[Special.]—The country estate of the late William Rockefeller near Tarrytown, N. Y., ranking second only to that of his brother, John D., at Pocantico Hills, which it adjoins, has just been sold to a group for conversion into a golf club. The property, which is reported to have been held at $1,000,000, is three miles north of Tarrytown.

The manor house, Rockwood hall, designed in the style of the Elizabethan period, is described as a veritable fortress and as a house within a house. For there is an outer wall of granite, then an air space, and finally an interior wall of brick, three feet thick at the base and two feet thick at the second and upper stories.

PUT REDINGTON ESTATE'S VALUE AT $1,250,000

William H. Redington, late president of the Sanford Manufacturing company, ink manufacturers, left an estate of $1,250,000, it was announced yesterday when his will was filed for probate. Most of the estate is left in trust, the income to be paid to his widow, daughter, and relatives. Upon their death nearly $500,000 will be given to charitable and educational institutions.

Mrs. Redington and her daughter, Mrs. Harold T. Griswold, will share the income from the residuary estate after a few other specific bequests are paid. Two nieces of Mr. Redington, Mrs. Horace R. Johnson of New York City, and Mrs. Florence Drew of Seattle, receive the income from separate trust funds of $20,000 each. The family nurse, Mrs. Emma K. Hiatt, is bequeathed the income from a $25,000 fund.

Charities that will share in the estate upon the death of the heirs are the United Charities of Chicago, the Y. W. C. A., the Glenwood Manual Training school, the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, the Chicago Commons association, the Children's Memorial hospital, and the Chicago Lying-in hospital.

Fred W. Low, a broker, who shot and killed himself in the Alexandria hotel a week ago, left an estate of $45,000, according to his will, which provides that the bulk of the estate be given to his uncle, Henry A. Christie of Kenilworth, Ill. The will contained a request that he be buried beside his mother in Sandwich, Ill.

An inventory of the estate of William L. Phelps, late head of the milling company bearing his name, schedules assets of $275,000. Included in the inventory is forty barrels of whisky, which is stored in a warehouse. The booze is listed as a "doubtful" asset.

Civilians and Military Join in Memorial Services.

There is a homely old adage which runs: "Speak softly and carry a big stick; you will go far." If the American nation will speak softly and yet build, and keep at a pitch of the highest training a thoroughly efficient navy, the Monroe doctrine will go far.

Peace is a goddess only when she comes with a sword girt on thigh.

I wish to preach, not the doctrine of ignoble ease, but the doctrine of the strenuous life, the life of toil and effort, of labor and strife; to preach that highest form of success which comes, not to the man who desires mere easy peace, but to the man who does not shrink from danger, from hardship, or from bitter toil, and who out of these wins the splendid ultimate triumph.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

America as a nation and Chicago as Americans celebrated Navy day yesterday on the sixty-fifth birthday anniversary of Theodore Roosevelt, the President who preserved the navy and by its strength cast the influence of the United States over all nations.

Yesterday was Navy day by presidential proclamation and, to Chicagoans, by proclamation from Mayor Dever.

The Great Lakes band, naval reservists, and R. O. T. C. cadets all joined in honoring the navy and the President who made it great.

From the Board of Trade broadcasting station two of President Roosevelt's close friends—Mrs. Medill McCormick and Brig. Gen. Thinks T. R. Would Be Distressed.

Roosevelt would be distressed and disappointed, Gen. Moseley said, could he see America "completely absorbed within her own borders, shirking responsibility and leadership in the adjustment of a disorganized world.

"Can you not hear his warning as he points to the decision we must soon make," said Gen. Moseley, "either to resume our seat in the councils of the world and lead in its readjustment and new progress toward peace, or, failing that, to be wise enough promptly to prepare to defend ourselves alone, on land, on the seas, and in the air, in the isolated position of our own choosing?"

Sees Inspiration in Home.

Mrs. McCormick spoke of the value of Roosevelt's home as an inspiration to coming generations. She scored the apathy of the average citizen, citing the fact that in the last presidential election less than 52 per cent of the men and women eligible to vote cast their ballots. She quoted from Roosevelt's speech before the Liberal club in Buffalo in 1893:

"'The first duty of an American citizen is that he shall work in politics; his second duty is that he shall do that work in a practical manner; and his third is that it shall be done in accord with the highest principles of honor and justice.'"

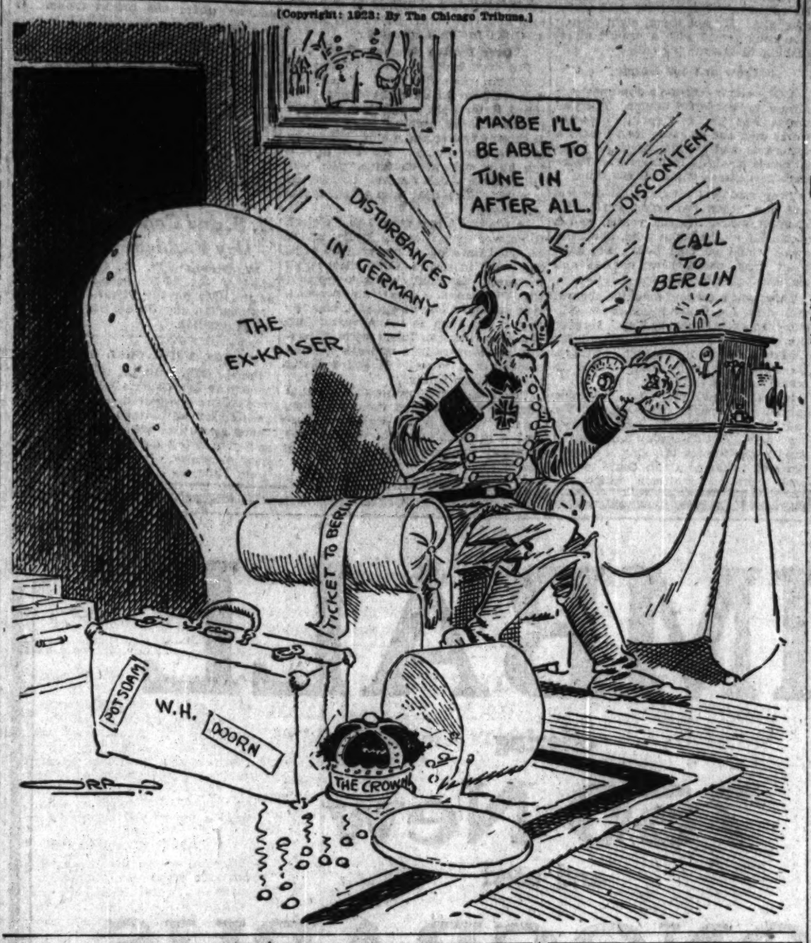

Rodman Urges Bigger Navy.

Unless congress comes to the aid of the navy during the next session, the United States fleet will be very far from its required strength, declared Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman, retired, who passed through Chicago yesterday morning en route to the east from Minneapolis, where he spoke Friday night in the interest of the Navy league.

He explained the purpose of his visit as an effort to interest the middle west in the necessity of securing a balanced navy. The United States, he said, has enough battleships to maintain the 5-5-3 ratio which was decided upon at the disarmament conference, but is greatly lacking in cruisers, airplane carriers, and fleet submarines.

"It is important for the people of the middle west to realize that the navy is just as necessary to them as it is to the people who live along the coast," Admiral Rodman said.

GETTING A THRILL OUT OF EVERY LITTLE SOUND

KEOKUK DAM TO SUPPLY POWER TO ILL. CITIES

An electric, double circuit, steel tower transmission line, carrying 66,000 volts, will be built from the big power dam at Keokuk, Ia., to Galesburg, Ill., by the Illinois Power and Light corporation, officials of the company announced yesterday.

An extension of the line, carrying 33,000 volts, also will be built from Galesburg to Galva, a distance of twenty-three miles, it was announced. The entire length of the new line development will be ninety-six miles.

The improvement will cost $250,000, it was said. Work will begin at once, and it is expected the line will be finished within a year.

The Galesburg and Galva power houses will be kept intact as reserve plants.

BARLING PLANE SETS RECORD IN WEIGHT LIFTING

Dayton, O., Oct. 27.—Carrying the greatest load an airplane has ever lifted from the ground, the Barling bomber, world's largest flying machine, established an international weight carrying, altitude and endurance record at Wilbur Wright field today.

Nineteen bombs, weighing 6,692 pounds, were carried in the ship's hold as she nosed upward, after a run of only thirty seconds. The craft remained in air one hour, nineteen minutes and eleven seconds, during which time an altitude of 5,000 feet was reached.

FINED FOR STREET CAR FIGHT.

Arrested for starting an altercation in a street car because a passenger "stared hard at him," Frank Lewis of 16 West Chicago avenue was fined $10 yesterday.

COOLIDGE PENS ENCOMIUM FOR TEDDY'S SHRINE

Late President's House in Gotham Dedicated.

New York, Oct. 27.—[Special.]—President Calvin Coolidge's tribute to Theodore Roosevelt, in the form of a letter, was read today at the dedication of Roosevelt house, 28 East 20th street, by Mrs. John Henry Hammond, president of the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial association.

"It is a source of deep regret that it is impossible for me to take part in person in the dedication of Roosevelt House," Mr. Coolidge wrote. "On a previous occasion I indicated my deep interest in the project now happily completed.

"The great collections will bring before the eyes and minds of the generations to come the aspirations, the achievements, the exuberant, and captivating personality of the great interpreter and apostle of the American spirit.

Expresses Nation's Thanks.

"To do that is to render a great service. If I might speak for the American pepole it would be to express their thanks.

"It was no mere poetic fancy which impelled the ancient Greeks to people the firmament with their mythical heroes. A great national hero, a Washington, a Lincoln, a Roosevelt does shine like a star to the people who come after him. In them they find light and by them they can steer their course over uncharted and stormy seas.

"The fame of other men may fear the onslaught of time, but the fame of Roosevelt need not fear it. The glory of his statesmanship may be obscured by the passage of the centuries; but the memory of the man himself will endure; for great as his achievements were, the man was even greater than the work.

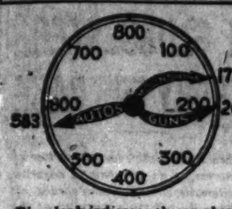

Teddy's Rare Equipment.

"Such gifts as his are rare, such a combination of gifts is still more rare, and those gifts, backed by a certain elemental force, projected on the last generation a personality which holds a place which not our own nation only, but all nations reverence.

"We Americans have deep cause to be grateful that sixty-five years ago today Theodore Roosevelt half of the north, half of the south, a son of the east, an adopted son of the west, came to this nation to shape its destinies in a critical hour.

"Roosevelt, like Lincoln, was in a true sense a preserver of our national unity. Lincoln saved us from sectional cleavage, Roosevelt saved us from class cleavage."

Pennsy Boosts Clerks' Pay, Rail Board Is Informed

Wage increases aggregating $1,892,112 annually and affecting 30,493 clerical employés have been granted by the Pennsylvania railway system, the United States railroad labor board was informed yesterday. They are effective as of July 16, 1923. Monthly men with experience of a year or more were boosted $5 a month, while those with the same experience working on an hourly basis are to receive an increase of 2½ cents an hour.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR. Beats Electric or Gas.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and thirty-five leading universities and found to be superior to ten ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke, or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene [coal oil].

The inventor, L. P. Johnson, 809 West Lake street, Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on ten days FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.—Advertisement.

Widow Dies as Truck Skids and Fells Four at Street Car

Mrs. Elizabeth White, a 53 year old widow of 2536 South Lawndale avenue, was fatally hurt and three other persons sustained injuries yesterday when a Morton Salt company truck skidded into a group boarding a street car at Wabash avenue and 22d street.

John Kavale of 3218 South Lawndale avenue was thrown beneath the truck as it swerved on the wet pavement, and his left hand was caught between the machine's power chain and a cog wheel. An acetylene torch was required to cut the chain before he was freed. Two other persons sustained minor injuries.

The injured were taken to Mercy hospital, where Mrs. White died. Joseph Fotra of 5610 South Halsted street, the driver of the truck, became hysterical in reporting the accident. He said he had applied the brakes of the truck as the car stopped. He was held.

County's Toll Now 582.

Crashing of an automobile containing four high school boys into a street car Friday night claimed its second victim during the day when Alphonse Thasky, 16 years old, of 836 Sheridan road, died in the American hospital. This death raised the total of motor fatalities in Cook county since Jan. 1 to 582.

An inquest into Thasky's death and that of Albert Rothschild, driver of the car, was postponed until Nov. 9 by order of Coroner Oscar Wolff, who said a complete investigation was being made. The other two boys, George Cohen of 635 Waveland avenue, and Abraham Vihon of 651 Sheridan road, are still in a serious condition.

Young Rothschild, driving his father's automobile, swerved around a truck directly into the path of a street car about half a mile from the Lake View High school, where three of the boys were students.

Coroner Sounds Warning.

"The law states that the Rothschild boy was old enough to operate an automobile," declared Coroner Wolff, "but parents should use discretion in permitting children to drive, making certain that respect for speed laws has been impressed upon their minds. It is appalling that the lives of two boys should be sacrificed. Their deaths should be a warning to parents."

H. L. Hecker, 64 years old, of 2711 Winnemac avenue, president of the Crystal Manufactured Ice company, 2569 East 72d street, died last night in the Halsted Street Industrial hospital from injuries received on Thursday, when he was struck at Clybourn avenue and Halsted street, by a truck belonging to the Chicago Forging and Manufacturing company, 2000 Southport avenue.

Julius Kraft of 1747 North Artesian avenue was probably fatally injured and his companion, Miss Erna Ruprecht, 16 years old, of 414 Garfield avenue, Oak Park, was hurt when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a concrete pillar support at the elevated road viaduct at 52d street and Ogden avenue, Cicero.

Felled by Mail Truck.

William J. Schutts, 63 years old, of 1126 West Monroe street, was injured when struck by a mail truck driven by Daniel A. Martin of 6913 Cornell avenue at Madison and Curtis streets.

TWO STILL OWNERS FINED $120.

Anthony Stella and James Foretti, who were arrested Friday night when police raiders found them operating a still in their home at 836 Orleans street, were fined a total of $120.

STUDENT DEATH MAY BAR AUTOS FROM ILLINOIS

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—The death of Philip H. Sharp of Urbana, freshman student at the University of Illinois, who was shot last night by another student, employed as a Champaign policeman, may result in the banishment of all student automobiles from the campus vicinity by order of the university, it was reported today.

It is known that university authorities have been considering the measure for some time, in the light that student owned cars have been a detriment to scholastic standing as well as to safety. Last night's tragedy came as a climax to several incidents, though not of the same character, and the report persists that some restriction will be made.

Thomas Arkle Clark, dean of men at the university, refused comment today, though he has previously sent out warnings to parents not to permit their sons and daughters to drive automobiles here.

Young Sharp was shot by Motorcycle Policeman J. D. Hillyer, himself a university freshman, it is said, while attempting to avoid arrest after taking an automobile tire and other equipment from a car in the Champaign business district. Alexander Schulz, son of Prof. W. F. Schulz of the university department of physics, who was Sharp's companion, fled in an automobile while Hillyer was firing. He was arrested this morning on a charge of grand larceny, but was later released on $1,000 bond.

COLUMBIA, GEM OF GLOUCESTER, READY FOR RACE

James B. Connolly, famous writer of sea stories, is on his way to describe the International fishermen's race off Halifax. He tells this morning of the trip of the Columbia contender to the scene.

BY JAMES B. CONNELLY.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—An invitation came to me to sail on the Columbia from Gloucester to Halifax. I made a pier head jump Thursday morning to get aboard. It was a bleak morning after much easterly wind, but the wharves of Gloucester were crowded to cheer us as we sailed out to bring back the International fisherman's cup if we could. Last Monday in sailing out, the Columbia hit bottom off the end of the breakwater. Capt. Ben Pine pointed out the spot Thursday and then to prove it was an accident, sailed over the same spot again. A colorful man, Ben, who will throw up all the business in the world to go cup racing, also a rarity among fishermen—a man who neither smokes nor drinks.

Skippers Common Sailors.

We had some notables in our gang—twelve extra skippers at least, including Mat Langworthy, and little Dan McDonald with his record of 62 lives saved from small vessels at sea. None of these captains were honorary berth holders. They hauled on sheets and halyards and stood their watches like anybody else. Little Dan, if he had let him, would have steered the vessel all the way to Halifax. She was the darling to steer, he said, touching only two spokes of her wheel during one stretch of twenty miles.

The power fisherman, the Edith Rose with her four lower sails set and both engines going, had left Gloucester an hour ahead of us and we never thought to see her again; but at 5 o'clock that afternoon we overtook and passed her, she still with her four lower sails set and both engines going.

Beautiful Night at Sea.

The red sun set dead astern of us and the full white moon rose dead ahead. Our first night out was one of the most beautiful that any of us had ever seen at sea. The air was very clear and the sky without the sign of a cloud. It was light as day, so light that the sea showed a blue color almost as if in day. The only white in it was when the Columbia would lift her bows and go splash, and send the white spray flying over both bows. Her tall spars and high sails seemed to reach almost to the stars.

We carried two logs. Burgess, the designer, had a special one of his own, he placing no faith in strange logs where the speed of his pet vessel was in question. Burgess delighted the crew by taking his morning bath up on deck. He called for volunteers to dash water over him. He got them, eight strong men each armed with a draw bucket, rushing to answer his call. "

Crew in Good Humor.

A Gloucester crew on a cup quest are always in wonderful humor. The Columbia had her full racing crew of thirty men and so many men aboard a fisherman and no fishing to do gives all hands plenty of loafing time. There were two games going all the time.

They made out all right till the second day, when the going got lively. A swell would lift the vessel, and a squall hit at the same time, and then away would go coal hods, spit kids, paint cans, cards, loose change and players to the lee lockers.

There was a singing machine aboard, with little Joe, a 230 pound fresh halibuter, to keep it cranked up. Having the choice of records, Joe played for six hours on end in the night watches. He stopped then because he had to take a trick at the wheel.

It was on Friday that Columbia earned the crew's admiration. We had several soft hours, logging under ten knots. But Thursday morning the wind began to pick up; also, it showed signs of holding. Capt. Gillis took a peek around after lunch, which was at 11 o'clock, and said: "Boys, she'll be abreast of Sambro at 10 o'clock tonight." Sambro was then 140 miles away, 140 miles in eleven hours, thirteen knots an hour. Everybody smiled at Gillis for an enthusiast.

Over Twelve Knots an Hour.

But even while we were smiling the Columbia was picking up. It had been doing eleven knots right along. We timed it for fifteen minutes, thinking it was making perhaps twelve knots. It showed twelve and a half. We began to take more notice. We took to timing by a stop watch for a mile, two miles, three miles, for five, ten, fifteen minutes. The boat was going faster and faster.

In the two hours from 3 to 5 o'clock it showed twenty-seven knots, which included time lost in swaying up sails. The wind increased, Columbia's speed increased. Gradually we woke up to it that we were on a great sailing vessel.

It was not alone its speed, it was the way it stood up to it. A vessel that can show thirteen knots without having its scuppers held under is a great wonder of a vessel. It sailed faster than thirteen knots.

There was one burst at 8 o'clock that evening when we had Columbia down to four lowers, and I would not care to put in print how fast we did think it sailed, but for ten minutes there it fairly smoked.

The vessel had its rail jumping in at the time, the only time on the passage it did wet its rail, and it was a wide belt of white roaring past its quarter under the bright moon. It was down to her four lowers at this time, not because it was too much for the ship, but Capt. Pine had no mind to risk carrying something away.

Columbia made a great passage. It came from Gloucester harbor to Halifax harbor in thirty-five hours. Ten of these thirty-five hours had been soft sailing hours, light winds and with no thought of a record passage in the beginning. It had sailed wide courses, logging 375 miles in all.

MILE A MINUTE POLICE AUTOS TO OUTRACE CROOKS

17 to Be Bought; 2 All Dolled Up.

The Chicago police are going after the criminals—and going fast. If the crooks hope to escape, they had better step on the gas, because the police propose to buy seventeen more motor cars at a cost of $41,-332. These are to be Cadillacs, Marmons, Packards, and Coles, and all except two are represented as being capable of going sixty miles an hour or faster.

CHIEF COLLINS.

Fifteen of these cars are to be assigned to the detective bureau. The plan is to increase the number of detective squads and give each a speedy machine, that the detectives may cruise around the city looking for crooks. The other two cars are to be assigned to police officials.

The city council, at its next meeting, will be called upon to approve the purchase, the finance committee having already made its recommendation. The detective bureau now has seven cars and the additional fifteen will be sufficient, in the opinion of Chief Collins, to meet its present needs.

Finery for Notables.

Two of the cars are to be eight cylinder Cadillacs of the vestibule sedan type. These are to cost $4,774.40 each, including an extra bumper. The bumpers cost $54 each, but undoubtedly these should be acquired for the protection of a car of this price. Among the extra articles of equipment supplied with this car without additional cost are a cigar lighter, mirror, one spare rim, automatic windshield wiper, shock absorber, and four wheel brake.

It is assumed that these cars, as occasion necessitates, will be used to entertain official visitors to Chicago and therefore should be complete. One alderman suggested—not in a spirit of criticism, but for the purpose of maintaining the high plane of Chicago's hospitality—that city officials should have insisted that each Cadillac also be equipped with a vase for flowers.

Here Are Crook Chasers.

All of the other autos are touring cars. One of these will be an eight cylinder, costing $3,165. Two will be six cylinder Marmons, costing $3,106 each; two will be Packards, six cylinders, costing $2,866 each, and ten will be eight cylinder Coles, costing $2,-231.50 each. That makes a total outlay of $47,968.84, but it is offset by five old

MILE A MINUTE POLICE AUTOS TO OUTRACE CROOKS

17 to Be Bought; 2 All Dolled Up.

The Chicago police are going after the criminals—and going fast. If the crooks hope to escape, they had better step on the gas, because the police propose to buy seventeen more motor cars at a cost of $41,333. These are to be Cadillacs, Marmons, Packards, and Coles, and all except two are represented as being capable of going sixty miles an hour or faster.

CHIEF COLLINS.

Fifteen of these cars are to be assigned to the detective bureau. The plan is to increase the number of detective squads and give each a speedy machine, that the detectives may cruise around the city looking for crooks. The other two cars are to be assigned to police officials.

The city council, at its next meeting, will be called upon to approve the purchase, the finance committee having already made its recommendation. The detective bureau now has seven cars and the additional fifteen will be sufficient, in the opinion of Chief Collins, to meet its present needs.

Fleury for Notables.

Two of the cars are to be eight cylinder Cadillacs of the vestibule sedan type. These are to cost $4,774.40 each, including an extra bumper. The bumpers cost $54 each, but undoubtedly these should be acquired for the protection of a car of this price. Among the extra articles of equipment supplied with this car without additional cost are a cigar lighter, mirror, one spare rim, automatic windshield wiper, shock absorber, and four wheel brake.

It is assumed that these cars, as occasion necessitates, will be used to entertain official visitors to Chicago and therefore should be complete. One alderman suggested—not in a spirit of criticism, but for the purpose of maintaining the high plane of Chicago's hospitality—that city officials should have insisted that each Cadillac also be equipped with a vase for flowers.

Here Are Crook Chasers.

All of the other autos are touring cars. One of these will be an eight cylinder, costing $3,165. Two will be six cylinder Marmons, costing $3,106 each; two will be Packards, six cylinders, costing $2,860 each, and ten will be eight cylinder Coles, costing $2,331.50 each. That makes a total outlay of $47,946.10, but it is offset by five old cars turned in for an aggregate allowance of $6,135.

The Marmon cars are to have all the extras of the Cadillacs, and also a clock, and speedometer. The only omission is the cigar lighter. But that indicates good judgment, because these cars are to be used by the detectives, and if they ever speed the cars at sixty miles an hour they would not have much spare time to use a cigar lighter.

He's Strong for Clocks.

The Packard cars are to have this extra equipment, one spare rim, motometer, windshield wiper, speedometer, and clock. The Cole cars will have as extras one spare rim, motometer, speedometer, clock, and shock absorber. These are the extras as listed with the aldermen.

A clock in each car appealed strongly to one alderman. He argued that with it the detectives could tell at what time they had caught a thief and would also know when to quit and start work. This alderman suggested that each car should also have a calendar.

Nov. 13 is also the date set for the reassembly of the British parliament. The Italian chamber of deputies has been called to meet on Nov. 8.

BIRTH CONTROL DELEGATES PLAN MARCH ON MAYOR

Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen yesterday refused an invitation of Mrs. Margaret Sanger, head of the American Birth Control league, to address the midwestern states' conference which tomorrow starts a three day session at the Drake. Mrs. Sanger's invitation suggested that Bundesen outline to the 2,500 delegates who will attend the conference his reasons for refusing a local group, headed by Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter and Dr. Rachelle Yahros, a permit for a birth control clinic at 1347 North Lincoln street.

"In addition to my personal disinclination to the idea of birth control," said Mr. Bundesen yesterday in commenting on his refusal to appear, "I am influenced by the fact that the case is still pending in the courts. Therefore, it would not be becoming of me to discuss it."

According to a report circulated yesterday the delegates plan to call in a body on Mayor Dever and Commissioner Bundesen tomorrow or Tuesday in an effort to obtain the permit for the local group.

HOUSE OF DAVID APPEALS $24,000 LOST JUDGMENT

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 27.—The sensational affair of the House of David reached the United States Circuit Court of Appeals here today when Benjamin Franklin Purnell and his wife, Mary, and their organization, known as the Israelite House of David, filed an appeal against a judgment of United States District Judge John Sater awarding $24,078.08 against them at Grand Rapids, Mich.

The award was made in the case of John Hansel and his wife, Margaret, former members of the House of David, which maintained a colony at Benton Harbor, Mich. Hansel sued for the return of property which he alleged he and his wife were forced to deed to the colony when they became members.

Hansel and his wife contended in the hearing before Judge Sater that when they left the colony of the House of David they were forced to take their departure scantily clad and poorly fed, with only $100 in their possession.

RETAIN THE SITTING JUDGES.

A principle respected in the Bar association's consideration of the qualifications of judicial candidates, and also, as a rule, by voters, is that of the reelection of fit incumbents. It is highly desirable that when a judge has demonstrated his fitness for judicial service that he should be retained as long as he is willing and remains fit.

The results of such a policy are twofold. It gives the administration of justice the benefit of experience and expertness. When a man first ascends the bench he cannot dispose of cases with the efficiency and dispatch which he acquires with practice. But as his experience increases he becomes learned in the law and expert in the handling of litigation. This is an immense asset to the courts, to litigants, and to the public, which we ought not to throw away. We save it by retaining judges who have proved themselves competent and honest.

Another advantage of this policy is that it encourages the better class of lawyers to seek a judicial career. It protects them in some measure from the accidents of political fortune and tends to insure them a just recognition of faithful and efficient public service. If this policy is departed from the courts will lose the service of valuable men, who will be discouraged from seeking judicial office. Of course, if a judge has shown he is unfit he should be retired as soon as possible.

THE TRIBUNE has urged the importance of this policy for years and followed it in its recommendations. We publish herewith the names of the sitting judges who are running for reelection and also those of Municipal judges running for higher places, and former judges who wish to return to the bench, who come within the principle of retaining experienced men:

SUPERIOR COURT.
(Dever vacancy.)
Former Judge Jesse Holdom.

CIRCUIT COURT.
(Morrill vacancy.)
Municipal Judge Robert E. Gentzel.

[His opponent is Municipal Judge John K. Prindiville, but Judge Gentzel received a slight preference at the bar primary.]

CIRCUIT COURT.
(Windes vacancy.)
D. J. Normoyle.

SUPERIOR COURT.
(Twenty to be elected.)
Judge Charles M. Foell,
Municipal Judge Wells M. Cook,
Judge Joseph H. Fitch,
Judge Jacob H. Hopkins,
Judge John M. O'Connor,
Judge William H. McSurely,
Judge Oscar Hebel,
Former Judge John P. McGoorty,
Judge Marcus Kavanagh,
Judge Albert C. Barnes,
Municipal Judge Hosea W. Wells,
Judge Denis E. Sullivan,
Judge Michael L. McKinley,
Municipal Judge Howard Hayes,
Judge Hugo Pam,
Municipal Judge C. A. Williams,
Judge Joseph B. David,
Municipal Judge W. N. Gemmill,

All of these men won preference at the bar primary.

UNEDUCATED COLLEGIANS.

Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn, former president of Amherst college, tells an audience in New York that America has neither proper appreciation of education nor a proper system for developing it. That will be a shock to many of the millions of college graduates in this country, and to many other complacent persons, but there is something in it.

Education is coming to mean in this country something a young man or woman can find on a university campus and carry away as he or she carries away a sheepskin. Hundreds of thousands of our young people are going to these institutions annually and remaining for four years, after which they leave with the idea that they are educated because they can, perhaps, read Herodotus or Anatole France in the original, and differentiate scientifically and safely between ethyl and methyl alcohol. The fact is that no knowledge of languages, history, literature, and science, however great, constitutes education.

Dr. Meiklejohn says, and we believe he is right, that true education "is the teaching of people to be free and yet to live together side by side in excellence." That is, the young man or woman who is truly educated not only has attained the knowledge outlined in the academic curriculum, but has developed a mind with which to apply that knowledge in daily intercourse with mankind. There is too little of that. Education ought to teach people to think as well as to know. It is more essential to use the brain as a productive machine than as a filing cabinet.

When minds are stocked with information, and trained to use that information for the improvement of the conditions of life, we will become an educated people, and not until then. It is not sufficient to know a thing. We must be able to apply knowledge. The degree of controlled activity of the human mind and character is the exact degree of excellence in education. Too many college graduates are less well educated than high school graduates four years their junior.

NOT KNOCKING THE LADIES.

A woman writing for Collier's Weekly says there are 20,000,000 organized women in the United States and that their failure to arise under a flaming leadership in the war against war is amazing and discouraging. She is probably right as to organization. There is a woman's club to every city block and probably a half dozen to every township, many of them federated and interlocked.

The 20,000,000 may not believe with the writer that their leadership fails because of unworthy motives of selfishness and timidity, but it would be our guess that many millions would agree with her other assumptions and statements. It is a naïve map of the emotional jungle in which the democratic mind thinks it does its thinking.

The assumptions are that women are the ancient and particular enemies and victims of war, that profiteers are the hereditary promoters of it, that they now in this country are promoting the next war which will take the young sons of as many of the 20,000,000 as have sons, that the 20,000,000 could arise with their votes and voices and end war for all time everywhere, that the male political leadership of the country in the face of this red issue is either flabby or treacherous, and that the leaders of the women themselves with one or two exceptions can't fight war because they have social or political or economic ambitions.

This always has been and probably always will be a country disarmed before each war it has undertaken. Its congress lives in a pork barrel and doles out just enough money to keep a constabulary army in existence. Its navy is reduced by international agreement, promoted by the United States, to keep other countries from thinking we would use our wealth to threaten them. The United States coat of mail is a nightshirt. It is just as fully prepared to take to the camp and field as a field mouse is to slap a hoot owl in the face. All the militarists in the United States could be run up an alley by the pacifists of any one city block.

Whenever there is a prospect of war the government spends years searching for any possible compromise to avoid it and sometimes finds that the greatest difficulty is holding back the unarmed citizenry which is seeing red and desirous of knocking some one's block off. The women generally are as mad as the men, and the young and pretty ones go out on the streets with white feathers to pin on civilian coats.

The best chance war profiteers, whoever they are, had to coin American blood into money in the next ten years was by fomenting the bad situation with Japan soon after the world war, and if they tried they certainly were handed their hats and a kick. That might have been a good war as wars go, about all profiteers could ask for in one, and if they could not get anything better than the naval limitation and Pacific treaties out of it the pacifists need not lose any sleep for a while.

There are no war intrigues in the United States for either women or men to rise against. They might rise against the French military establishment, but we suspect the French boys would be going into the barracks just the same.

Women as women voters are not saving the country from any of its real or imaginary ills because they are people just as the men. They are not distinguished from the men by any particular political vision, genius, or honesty. The men can have their reason addled by their emotions and prejudices and the women even more so. Women have no stake in peace which men have not and they do not get as raw a deal in war as the men get. When a tribe is mad the women are as mad as the men.

Russian women are not thinking in one fashion and men in the other, nor are German and French women on one side of the fence and German and French men on the other. Women have no particular mission in peace or international relations. The average woman voter is not vested with better political instincts, desires, judgment, or intent than her husband. She is not in politics because he muddled the job, but because he did not see any reason why she should not be politically recognized as an adult human being. They might as well muddle the job together. It won't be any worse or any better.

WASTING GOOD ROADS.

The breaking up of Roosevelt road under heavy suburban traffic must call the attention of all advocates of good roads to the problem of maintenance as of importance equal to the problem of construction. This great artery of traffic, modernly paved at high cost in 1916 and 1917, is already so full of ruts and holes in some sections that it hampers rather than facilitates traffic.

A question of responsibility for its upkeep may be somewhat to blame. But whatever the technical cause of lack of repair may be, the road presents a sad example of the folly of an inadequate system of road repair. We are wasting public funds by allowing good roads to go to ruin through neglect.

The important point is that roads must not only be well built but well kept. A minor crack today, if neglected, becomes a crevice tomorrow and a crevasse the next day. Disintegrated by weather and pounded by huge trucks, the pavement constructed at heavy cost soon becomes a liability rather than an asset. That is a feature of the good roads program in this state which has been given too little attention. It is one matter in which we might properly take a lesson from some European countries, where adequate patrols, properly equipped, are constantly on the watch for cracks, ruts, or holes in the roads, and are immediately at the task of mending before the break becomes extensive.

Illinois ought to have some such adequate and comprehensive system. At present authority and responsibility are too much divided. Roosevelt road has disintegrated under an arrangement which put responsibility for maintenance of the county built highway up to the villages through which it passed. A later bit of legislation makes the state highway department responsible for maintenance of all state pavements, but there is some doubt as to whether this applies to county pavements constructed with state aid. The whole question is too much involved.

The cost of repair, although much less than cost of original construction, is merely a high rate of insurance, justified for the protection of public property. It ought to be provided for on systematic and scientific lines. It would pay. At the same time it would be well to have an authoritative study of the comparative wear and tear on roads by various kinds of vehicles. There is little doubt that a twelve ton truck will damage a road more than a thousand ordinary automobiles. It seems reasonable that the truck should pay something like its comparative use of the road, or, in other words, that the ordinary automobile ought not to be taxed to build a road a hundred times more costly and substantial than it needs merely to take care of a semi-occasional superload.

Incidentally, this is a subject which has not been sufficiently dealt with in the Small $100,000,000 political roads program. That program has minimized the cost of repairs in its efforts to prove that automobile license fees will pay all the road costs proposed. It completely ignores such facts as that California, with ideal soil and climatic conditions for maintaining roads, this year appropriated over $15,000,000 with which to maintain a system of but $25,000,000 worth of comparatively new roads for two years. The facts are that Small's estimate of $2,650,000 a year for repairs on a completed system of roads which will cost the state $160,000,000 plus interest will not begin to keep the roads in repair, and that either we must be taxed directly millions more for maintenance annually or allow the roads to go to ruin. We must have an adequate system of road maintenance and it must be faced and financed without political bunk.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

Under the hunter's moon the woods are dappled and splashed and aisles of golden light reach to nearby thickets which are in far off lands of unreality. There are all the friendly spirits of the world in which man is not corporal but most alive. Out of the luminous webs and laces and mists of color come the masks of Halloween, the vigil of All Saints, when the russet leaves may rustle to lighter feet than may be heard at other times.

The wych hazel is bright with its yellow blossoms. The air is scented with the tang of burning leaves. Migration is close by in the seed bearing weeds or high in the sky. The junco is in the leaves, the wild goose flies towards the marsh. Halloween opens the door of the brown, kitchen month of November.

TO KEEP THEIR MOUTHS SHUT.

Small says he let Mike Boyle and Ben Newmark out of jail because they were victims of a conspiracy to discredit his administration. They must have been in it. They never said a word, but they indicted him and faced him with an accusation which he couldn't answer. They were in jail because they would not tell what they knew of the methods which freed him of the charge of embezzlement of state money.

The people of the state know why they went to jail. They were jailed for contempt of court. They would not answer questions before the Lake county grand jury. They were granted immunity if they did answer. They wouldn't give up facts to be used in the Criminal court, and the court punished them.

The man they were shielding was Small. They were in jail because of him. They could have gained their liberty by answering questions. They were not protecting themselves by their silence. They were punishing themselves to keep other people from punishment, and the ultimate beneficiary was the man who finally interfered with the processes of justice and pardoned them.

No person to whom Small appeals for votes can overlook this or explain it. Any citizen who intends to vote for Small for reelection knows exactly the kind of man his candidate is. With that pardon Small knocked down the walls of his house. He is self-exposed. A vote for Small will be a vote conscienceslessly given for the most rascally government the American republic can produce.

Many people doubt the veracity of charges in politics. They know that politics sometimes tries in a cruel fashion to destroy character and reputation. Here there is no doubt. Boyle and Newmark destroyed every bit which might have remained in any honest mind in the state.

If Boyle and Newmark were square before the law they need not have served a day in the Waukegan jail. The man they served was the man who pardoned them.

THE DANGER OF SENTIMENT IN IMMIGRATION.

Speaking before the American Legion convention in San Francisco, Secretary of Labor Davis urged even stricter immigration restriction than is now provided. Specifying the points upon which he believes our immigration program ought to be based, Mr. Davis put first "the examination of every prospective immigrant before he leaves his native land." That, he said, could be attended to by the governments abroad, who would thus protect their departing nationals from distress.

We can agree with the secretary of labor in principle. We ought both to restrict immigration and to impose no unnecessary hardships upon prospective immigrants. But Representative James B. Aswell of Louisiana, who has recently returned from an extensive tour of Europe, gives us another thought. He says "the governments of Europe are endeavoring to hold their really desirable citizens at home and are striving to unload on the United States the great mass of depraved and degenerates with which their cities are crowded."

That appears natural and probable. The point must emphasize the innumerable hidden dangers in contemplated changes of our immigration law. If it is true, we certainly cannot afford to put the selection of immigrants in the hands of the foreign governments, even for the humane purpose of saving them distress.

It makes clear that our immigration law, which expires next June and must be amended, replaced, or repassed before that time, must have the closest scrutiny from all angles. A safe and necessary rule, we believe, would be that sentiment for the immigrant must never be allowed to obscure the best interests of the United States. The moment sentiment comes into the question we are in danger.

THE BANK ROBBERS' HARVEST.

[Peoria Transcript.]

Another country town bank in Illinois has been robbed. One was robbed earlier in the week, and less than two weeks ago there was another looted. The record of the last month includes two more.

Politics and expediency combined to prevent passage of a state police bill at the last session of the legislature, and it is now harvest time for the bank robbers. Like other thrifty folk, they must live during the winter, and the fall nights in states where there is no state police force offer excellent opportunities for their labors.

The gleaners in Illinois glean because there was a little speck in the garnered fruit that was sent to the legislature.

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, of matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit, or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

SOME FIGURES ON BIRTHS.

SINCE more than two-thirds of our population now live in the area where births are registered to a degree that meets the federal requirements, it is possible to take stock on some population questions of interest.

Why is it that more than half the babies born are boys? As a matter of fact, at certain times and places, the excess of boy births is almost 1 per cent. The disproportion exists in all parts of the world where the facts are known. It has been observed that when times are hard and life is difficult, this disproportion increases. It increased during the war and shortly thereafter in nearly every country at war. However, in France, where the lack of boy babies threatens to end the power of the republic, there was no increase in boys during the war and the post-war year. While these are facts, they are not explanations of why there are more boy babies. In the language of the philosopher, "Th' ain't no reason. It's jes' so."

This question suggests another. Why is it that the male has a higher death rate than the female? Of the population under 1 year of age, a good majority are males. Of the population over 70 years of age a good majority are females. The answer is that during seventy years of life the death rate of the male is so much higher that a substantial majority is converted to a definite minority. The disproportion starts before birth. Of the babies dying before birth, at birth, and during the first day of life, a majority are males. But these are only facts, not explanations. They really upset some of the explanations and are cited because they do. The answer to this question is that given to the first, "Th' ain't no reason. It's jes' so."

The facts for this story are taken from the birth statistics report for 1921 of the United States bureau of the census. The next question is: "Is there any chance that the old American stock will form a majority of our population twenty-five years from now? The answer is "No." The best they can hope for is that they may constitute a respectable minority, using the adjective in two senses. They are now in the minority and their birth rate is low. There is no hope for them.

Is there any likelihood that Negroes will ever constitute a majority of the population? The answer is "No." City Negroes have a birth rate that is very little in excess of their death rate. The Negroes are moving to the cities. The excess of births over deaths among all Negroes, city and country, is lower than that of whites. There is no Negro immigration.

Will the majority of the population ever be Japanese? The Japanese have an excess of births over deaths that is far beyond that of any other racial stock. However, they are in such a minority that they can never catch up.

Among the white stocks which have the greatest excess of births over deaths? The Scandinavians (the Swedes, Norwegians, and Danes).

Will we ever attain the low baby death rate of New Zealand? There is a very good chance that we will. Oregon, many smaller cities, and a few of the larger ones have already reached the New Zealand standard, and several have surpassed it.

Which state has the greatest percentage increase of population by excess of births over deaths? North Carolina.

EXERCISE AND FRESH AIR.

Mrs. N. J. writes: I have a boy 8 years old who has a funnel chest. He had rickets when he was a year old and was sick about a year. Is there anything to do for that? We had x-ray taken of his chest twice. He is thin and not so awfully strong.

Is he in any more danger than the average person of taking tuberculosis on account of the shape of his chest?

REPLY.

Keep the boy in the open air as much as possible. Once a year, give him cod liver oil and lime for one month. Have him take exercise in a gymnasium several times each week.

To hold his shoulders back, and get him the best chest possible, he must swim, row and do work on bars, ladders and ropes for years.

He is in more danger of tuberculosis than the average boy.

You can make a strong man of him.

A CASE OF BATH ITCH.

M. M. B. writes: When I take a bath I prickle all over. It is almost unbearable for a time.

Is it nerves?

What shall I do for it?

I am over 70 but have always been quite healthy.

REPLY.

Bath itch.

Clean your skin with cold cream, avoiding soap and water. May be you can get by with bran water or borax water, without soap. Possibly you can bathe in water and soap, provided you use only high grade soaps, rinse well with plain water after bathing, and then apply a little grease.

HORSE AS LIVER MEDICINE.

F. W. A. writes: What is the best liver medicine or pills to take without calomel which will act on liver and remedy constipation?

REPLY.

Calomel does not act on the liver except as all purgatives act indirectly on that organ. You have no business taking any liver medicine or pills.

If you are constipated correct that by drinking an abundance of water and eating bran and vegetables and fruit.

If you think your liver is torpid eat less and exercise more. The best liver regulator is a riding horse. Pick out a shaker and travel a shaking gait.

BUILDING BABY'S TEETH.

Mrs. A. M. B. writes: What can be done to make teeth grow in a child's mouth? My little son is 13 months old, and although his teeth have been cut through his gums for over three months they do not seem to add any length to them. I feed him soups, vegetables, fruits. He weighs thirty-two pounds, is healthy and robust in every respect, and his flesh is very solid.

REPLY.

Let him gnaw on meat and hard bread. Probably his teeth have not built up good, long roots.

If so, he needs to eat milk, cereal, bread, and vegetables to supply him with ample lime.

NOT A CITY JOB.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—[Friend of the People.]—I have just completed a residence building, and after cleaning all the débris out of my yard I piled it in a large heap at the rear, to be removed by the ash man. Nobody has called for it yet. What department of the city should I call for this? W. G.

The city is not obliged to remove the debris incidental to the construction of a new building. I would suggest that you require your contractor to do so. We remove the ordinary accumulation of household wastes, garbage, ashes, and rubbish, and regular service will be given covering this class of material.
THOMAS H. BYRNE,
Superintendent of Streets.

OF MANY COUNTRIES AND NAMES.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I left my country using some one else's name; made my way to America working on a ship and landed in August, 1916. Then I took my first paper intending to become a citizen of the United States, and after the revolution in my country I withdrew my intention of becoming a citizen of this country, hoping to return to my country again. During the conscription days in the United States again I used a name other than my own under which I still live. Now I realize the disadvantages of silly cowardice and I must restore my own name in order to be successful in life. Please tell what are the punishments for such conduct and how can I again legally restore my own name? B. L.

The facts are not stated clearly enough for us to determine whether you were subject to the draft nor whether you criminally evaded it, nor whether possible liability has been barred by lapse of time. We advise you to go over all the facts in a personal interview with an attorney.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DECLARANT MAY GO TO CANADA.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—[Friend of the People.]—My girl is leaving Scotland next July for the purpose of marrying me, and I have to go to Montreal to marry her off the boat, under some immigration rulings.

I have my first papers for citizenship. Will I have to have a passport to go to Montreal for the short time it will take to be married? G. A. N

A domiciled alien visiting Canada for a period of less than six months is not required to present a passport.

An alien coming to the United States from Scotland must produce a British passport visèd by the American consul in Scotland.

Inspector in Charge, U. S. Immigration Serv.

FRANCE.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—In the Bazaine trial today, the prosecution announced that it would not call for evidence as to events previous to the 12th of August. The President of the Court, however, at the request of the defense, allowed testimony to be given relative to the battle of Forbach. Gen. Montaubon, and other Generals of Division acknowledged that Bazaine ordered them to the assistance of Gen. Frossard, and variously explained their failure to carry out his orders. Gen. Frossard testified that Bazaine's orders to the Generals of Division were distinct, and they were responsible for their non-execution.

RUSSIA.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—The Baltic Gazette says: "The Russian Government has been obliged to order arrests among the Roman Catholic clergy in the Diocese of Chelm. A vast politico-religious conspiracy has been discovered among the clergy."

The export clearances for Europe from the ports of New York, Boston, Montreal, Philadelphia, and Baltimore, aggregated, were for the undermentioned weeks as follows:

The majority of Allen for Governor in Ohio is now announced to be 617. Welsh, State Treasurer, has 277 majority.

Theodore Tilton, having been summoned to appear before the Plymouth Church Investigating Committee, in the Beecher-Bowen scandal case, very neatly replies that he won't do anything of the kind, as he is not a member of the church.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY (FACSIMILES)

ELKINS, W. Va., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Miss Katherine Elkins, rumors of whose engagement to the Duke of the Abruzzi and to W. P. R. ("Billy") Hitt have been current in recent years, usually to be denied, was married to the latter this afternoon.

The ceremony was performed in the large ballroom at "Halliehurst," the home of Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins, widow of the former United States senator.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—The first policies in a state life insurance fund in Appleton were issued today by the insurance department of Wisconsin.

The city council last night followed up THE TRIBUNE'S exposure of quack doctors. It passed by a unanimous vote an order introduced by Ald. Nuzzo calling on the corporation counsel's office to submit to the aldermen at their next meeting a scheme by which advertising medical swindlers can be driven out of the city.

The board of education's experiment in teaching "personal purity" in the high schools began yesterday. Four lectures were given to boys and three to girls. In all about 8,000 high school students heard the lectures. Before they close at Thanksgiving 25,000 will have heard them.

Ald. Charles H. Merriam formally retired last night from the pending investigation of city expenditures. In doing so he charged the city administration with trickery and branded the inquiry a "whitewash." His utterances brought about a situation in the council described as the most dramatic in years.

OVERCROWDED SCHOOLS.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—In THE TRIBUNE of Sunday appeared an article on the overcrowded condition of our schools. The article left the impression that, by continuing the "double shift," "double platoon" and "rotary systems," the children would be well provided for at a cost far less than that involved in the building of new schools.

Granted that the financial cost is of utmost importance, it is, however, but one phase of the question. If the public is to vote, Nov. 6, intelligently on the proposed new tax levy for school buildings, it must consider two other aspects, namely, one dealing with the physical well being of pupils and one concerning the spiritual or character development of the children involved.

In the overcrowded schools, classrooms are used without intermission by twice and often four times the number that use them under the ordinary conditions. This means that no sweeping or cleaning of rooms takes places until the close of the day. Do unclean floors and a dust laden atmosphere foster good health? What standards of sanitation and hygiene do children derive from such an environment? Many children, in order to meet their new time schedules, are obliged to breakfast and lunch at irregular hours. Is there any one who does not admit the evil effects of irregular habits? Is not a weakened physique the cost?

Last, but not least, is the cost the children and the community must pay in the lowered morale of the pupils, who, left to themselves with more leisure time, find themselves on the streets, influences and associations with which their immaturity can not cope. Let the public ponder well on what this means. ANNA MILLER.

A FUGITIVE RUSSIAN'S VIEW OF BOLSHEVISM.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—The undersigned is a Russian workman, I having fled bolshevist Russia.

Crush the bolshevist serpent, and the world shall secure its desired peace and tranquillity.

We must never forget this; especially at this time, when it can be accomplished without difficulty. Bolshevism in Russia is fading away. As a matter of fact, bolshevism, as an ideal teaching, has never existed in Russia. There has been and is now a handful of bandits, robbers, murderers, and swindlers who seized the reins of the government in Russia with the aid of the German general staff and German gold marks. They are holding on to the same by means of indescribably horrible terrorism. According to official soviet sources, there have been executed and died in soviet jails 1,700,000 people. About 20,000,000 workingmen and peasants have perished of starvation due to the bolshevist government, and the entire country, one of the richest nations of the world, has been converted into ruins and a vast cemetery. This is what bolshevism has given to Russia. The Russian people detest the soviet government with a mad hatred, but they are helpless.

Money, and more money, is what the bolsheviki need to pay their hired men within Russia and to carry on their propaganda abroad. They are raising it through intrigue, oppression, and the robbery of those they kill.

Without money and help from the outside, bolshevism is lost. They are prepared to go the limit, if only their government be recognized.

From the bottom of my heart I want to congratulate the United States government on its policy of condemning the soviet government and its emphatic refusal to have anything to do with a band of international criminals.

The government also should direct its particular attention to various underground Red organizations existing here, including the cheka.

Crush this serpent, and we shall have peace and tranquillity. S.

A TESTIMONIAL FOR THE TRAFFIC SIGNAL SYSTEM.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Since you say in your editorial this morning that there are a lot of complaints against the new signal system on Michigan avenue, I want to enter my hearty praise for it. Before it was installed it was as much as life was worth for a woman to attempt to drive on Michigan avenue, but with the installation of the system I feel perfectly safe on that busy thoroughfare, and, best of all, make quick time. BERTHA M. HARRIS.

MORE COMPLAINT OF THE VETERANS' BUREAU.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—In a recent issue of THE TRIBUNE appeared a letter in the "Voice of the People" column stating a few facts regarding the method employed by the veterans' bureau in dealing with the disabled ex-soldiers.

Being one of the men now in training and having gone through the gamut of experience, I wish to say that the bureau is a veritable czarism in pocket edition. A disabled man is as helpless in face of the bureaucratic system of this institution as a straw in mistrals. When a decision is once made by some petty official all appeals are without avail. The men are known simply as "cases," and absolute secrecy is maintained towards the individual concerning his records.

The present policy of the veterans' bureau is to dispose of the disabled men regardless of whether they are able to earn a living or not. The word "rehabilitated" simply means that when the trainee's term of three years expires he must go and work out his salvation by his own initiative. Often under the guidance of incompetent, arrogant men of the bureau his "case" is mismanaged and the whole training does not fit him for the position set out by his objective. The man thus disposed of will, sooner or later, be compelled to fall on charity and become a public charge. ALEX LOCKE.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

THE FAIRIES.

By William Allingham.

Up the airy mountain,
Down the rushy glen,
We daren't go a-hunting
For fear of little men.
Wee folk, good folk,
Trooping all together;
Green jacket, red cap,
And white owl's feather.

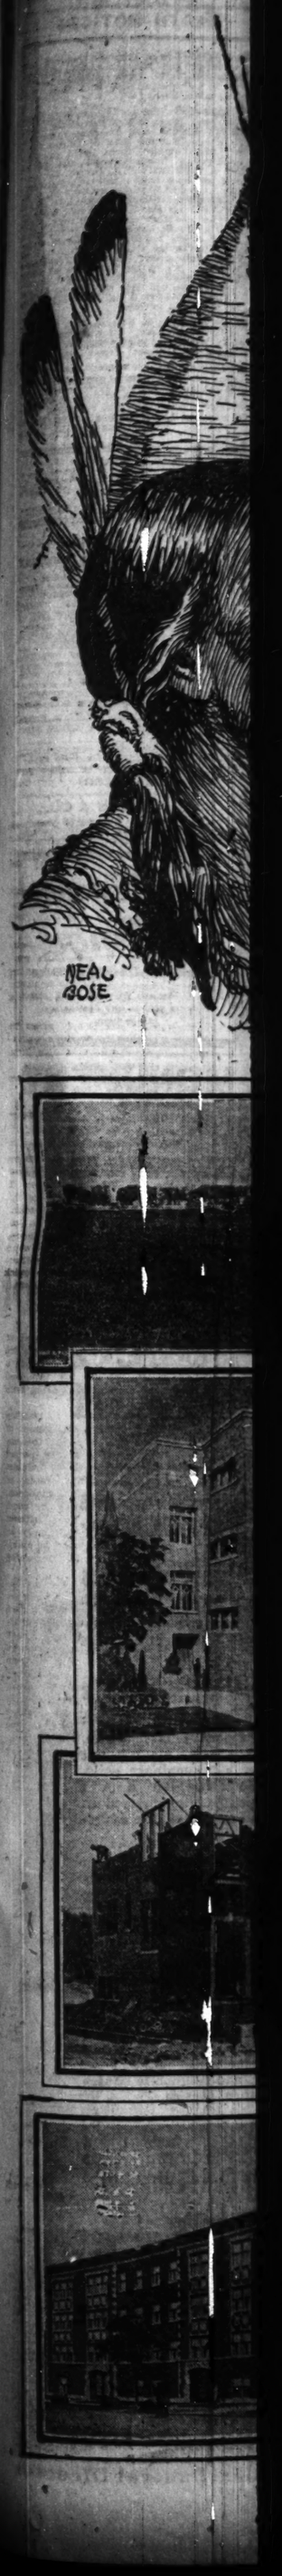

Down along the rocky shore
Some make their home—
They live on crispy pancakes
Of yellow tide foam;
Some in the reeds
Of the black mountain lake,
With frogs for their watchdogs,
All night awake.

High on the hilltop
The old king sits;
He is now so old and gray,
He's nigh lost his wits.
With a bridge of white mist
Columbkill he crosses,
On his stately journeys
From Slieveleague to Rossel;
Or going up with music,
On cold, starry nights,
To sup with the queen
Of the gay northern lights.

. . . . . .

By the craggy hillside,
Through the mosses bare,
They have planted thorn trees,
For pleasure here and there.
Is any man so daring
As dig them up in spite,
He shall find their sharpest thorns
In his bed at night.

INDIANS and BUILDERS

An Interesting Study in Contrasts

SEVERAL weeks ago about one hundred thousand Chicagoans drove down to Deer Park to see the Indians—living in wigwams, with fires on the ground, and dancing their war dances.

On the same day less than one hundred people drove to South Shore Park at 75th-79th Streets, Yates and Colfax Avenues, to see a city being built.

That's because Indians and wigwams are rare, and cities and buildings are common.

Yet the establishment within the great City of Chicago of an 80 acre city, where more than two million dollars in lots were sold to about three hundred builders and investors in less than two months, is an event of more than passing notice, even to those who live in a great city.

This Sunday you should drive out to see this wonder city being built, South Shore Park by name. It has been properly called the "City of Opportunity." Over one million dollars in buildings are already in process of construction.

Here you will see miles of streets, sewers, sidewalks and water pipes being laid.

You will see rows of modern electric light poles being erected along the two important business streets—75th and 79th Streets.

You will see imposing 24 and 30 apartment buildings, totaling more than 300 apartments, now under construction.

And what you will see is only the beginning, a very auspicious beginning to be sure, of what will be one of the finest residence and prosperous business sections in Chicago, beautifully located near the Lake, the Illinois Central 20 minute trains, and the South Shore Country Club.

You will see a City, new and modern, where to you, either as a resident or a merchant, the section makes an instant appeal—the residential blocks as a place to live in—the business sections as a good place to do business.

Because most of the lots are sold and many being built upon, is the very reason you should immediately inspect the few splendid opportunities that remain.

Out of 560 lots, only 24 remain unsold.

6 apartment corners, 124 x 125
4 business corners, 57 x 125
14 inside business lots, 25 and 50 x 125

On these few unsold apartment corners and business lots the original prices still obtain—there has been no change.

Apartment dwellers and merchants will do well to arrange leases now being made to permit them to move to South Shore Park where apartments, stores and shops will be available in the Spring. When you see South Shore Park you will want to do so.

Come out today.

MANY OBSOLETE LAWS STILL ON STATUTE BOOKS

Public Opinion Makes Them "Dead Letters."

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

There are dozens of laws other than "prohibition" which are extremely difficult to enforce. Some acts of congress, the state legislature, or the city council are almost as dead as if they had been repealed and forgotten. Some are silly, others unfair and inequitable, and nearly all of this class lack the support of public opinion.

Probably the best local illustration of an unenforcible law, one about which Mayor Dever—who is devoting much effort to gaining observance to the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution—complained in a formal message to the city council, is that relating to tax assessments. No one, not even the mayor, advocates that every feature of the personal property tax law should be enforced. One of its requirements commands every person to list for taxation all moneys he or she owns.

Money in Chicago Banks.

In the Chicago banks on Sept. 14 last the deposits totaled $2,125,000,000, of which about $572,000,000 were in savings. If all these deposits were assessed as the law requires they would pay $85,000,000 a year in taxes, while the interest on these deposits would not total more than $47,500,000 a year, if it could be assumed that all commercial deposits received 2 per cent and the savings 3 per cent.

This tax law, if obeyed, would deprive the owners of deposits of all income from them and in addition eat into the deposits so that eventually the governments would take all the cash. No responsible public official has advocated the legal tax on bank deposits.

Kite Flying Ordinance.

Who has heard of the enforcement of Section 2708 of the city code, which says that "no person shall fly any kite in any street or public place," or the next section, which says it is "unlawful for any person to skate on roller or ice skates in any street except upon the sidewalk." The fact is that frequently the city council orders certain streets fenced off that children may fly kites and skate under the protection of the city.

It is unlawful to "disturb the peace and good order of society" by painting a house or dusting off a flivver on the Sabbath. That is a state law. Chapter 38, section 573, makes it an offense to disturb the peace and good order of society "by any amusement or diversion on Sunday." The 41,200 fans who attended the Sox-Cubs ball game last Sunday they played certainly violated that law, and each is subject to a fine of $25. But public sentiment in the west encourages and promotes Sunday baseball.

Statute on Adulteration.

What policeman or police official, including Chief Collins, knows the meaning of all the words in the law which provides a fine of $1,000 for "whoever adulterates for the purpose of sale any liquor with cocculus, indicus, capsi, cum copperas, cochineal," and other stipulated materials.

Illinois has a law which was intended to prohibit tipping in hotels, restaurants and other places, but public sentiment does not support it. It is section 375 of chapter 38 of the code. Violations of this law are not difficult to find.

Public officials attend and sometimes act as referees and umpires of six day bicycle races, which are conducted in violation of a section of the statute which prohibits a rider from going more than twelve hours at one time without six hours of continuous rest.

Sparring Matches Violations.

Chapter 493 of the criminal chapter of the state code says that "any one who engages in, as a witness, any sparring or boxing exhibition can be fined not more than $500," and put in jail for a maximum of six months. Yet many prominent politicians attend every exhibition which they can, and in Illinois outside of Chicago many communities hold them.

If a locomotive on a railroad were run slower than a cow can trot, it would not be necessary to kill any cows. It follows that when an engineer, "kills, wounds, disfigures a cow," or other useful animal of which the statute prescribes that a dog is one he violates section 417 of the criminal code. If he kills a dog the engineer can be put in jail for ten days under the statute.

It is still a law, so far as the code is concerned "that children under the age of 16 years may be bound as apprentices, clerk, and servants until they arrive at that age," but who claims that that is a live act?

One "Dead" Act Repealed.

Sometimes, not often, the legislature recognizes that a law is impossible of enforcement and repeals it. An example was the repeal by the last general assembly of the law prohibiting remarriage within one year by divorced persons.

The city has an ordinance saying there shall be no fence or barrier within the corporate limits in which barbed wire is used. Yet the city itself has erected such fences.

Another city law prohibits the use of any street car, elevated car, omnibus or other vehicle used by a common carrier for the carrying on of any advertising business. This is not only not enforced, but the city itself takes some of the profits from such advertising. In the city's 55 per cent from the surface lines is cash obtained from advertising in the cars.

The city code makes it the duty of the police to prohibit the sale of tickets on the streets and in public buildings. Yet the police themselves sold tickets to their field meet in Grant Park attended by the mayor and other local and New York city officials.

Among the forgotten ordinances which probably were never enforced is one limiting the distance women's hat pins may extend beyond their hats.

Betting on election returns is indulged in by persons who do not make wagers on anything else. For this one can be fined $1,000 and placed in jail for a year by the state law. It has been many years since an effort was made in Chicago to enforce that law.

"DeLuxe" The Bedspring LUXURIOUS

Good health in your bedsprings

Few people realize that right in the bedspring on which they sleep lies a great secret to health. Most people sleep long enough, but few sleep soundly enough. Sleeping on a bedspring that cramps the muscles and twists the spine certainly does not make for better health. It does not give you that restful, refreshing sleep, so necessary to good health.

Make the choice of your bedspring a choice for that great vigorous health. Choose a Rome Quality De Luxe Bedspring. It does not sag—cramp the muscles or cause nerve pressure. It is scientifically designed to accommodate the body perfectly.

Ask your dealer for a Rome Quality DeLuxe Bedspring. It is interchangeable, fits either wood or metal beds. A most pleasing combination for restful sleep is a Rome Quality De Luxe Bedspring and a Rome Gothic Bed. Insist upon both! Write for our interesting book "Sleep and its relation to health." It's free.

Why "Hursen" Funerals Lead

Hursen's 3 "funeral-homes" in Chicago make up the largest and most remarkable institution of its kind in America.

Hursen has built up this business giant on truth in advertising. Often, stabbing with his trenchant pen, he let daylight through the ribs of the old "combine."

He firmly established his independence. He did it alone. He won, because he told the truth. There was no shadow-boxing. He did not fight an imaginary foe, nor imaginary evils, and set himself up as a crusader. He did not imitate. He originated. He engaged in no libel. He mentioned no names. His advertising was clean.

Clean, true advertising reflects the man behind. Wherever Hursen attacked and criticized he was ready with the remedy.

His remedy was lower prices than ever before, higher quality, no graft, an unheard-of personal service brought to unexcelled perfection, elegant and peaceful surroundings, big space, quietness, no gloominess, employes of worth and refinement, and automobile equipment that has no equal in America.

The most elegant funerals in Chicago are "by Hursen," Chicago's independent funeral director.

Call Hursen, of course!

ARMY CAPTAIN IN JAPAN ADMITS 3 STRANGLINGS

Slaying of Radical Leaders Follows Quake.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

TOKIO, Oct. 10.—[By Mail.]—Nothing has more divided the Japanese people into two camps, nothing of recent years promises to have such far reaching political results as the brutal murder of Osugi Sakae, a radical leader and writer, his voluntary wife, Ito Noe, also a radical and writer, and Osugi Tachibana, nephew of Osugi, the American born son of Sosaburo Tachibana who conducts a restaurant in Portland, Ore., where the boy was born in April, 1917.

All three of these persons were strangled by Masahiko Amakasu, a captain in the imperial army, and delivered to the gendarmerie. After his crime, assisted by the police who were given tools and accessories the bodies were stripped, tied in matting, tossed into an earthquake-wrecked well, and covered with debris.

All news of the murder was suppressed by the authorities. Local newspapers in Japan were suppressed for the vaguest mention of the case, and even if it was banned by the military along with the slaughters of the Koreans and of the socialists and newspaper Democrats who were put to death in great numbers.

Exposes Prussian Methods.

It is all a terrific indictment of the ultra Prussianism of the Japanese army, coupled with terrors of the old Russian secret police.

It was only when the trial of Captain Amakasu began in Tokio on Oct. 8, before a military court, that the press was permitted to mention the case. Even then there were restrictions. It is plain that Amakasu and Sergt. Maj. Mori are to be sacrificed to save the general staff, for the court martial began with the publication of a statement by Amakasu in which he confessed his crime, denied he was ordered to do it by his superiors but insisted he slew these three refined and really harmless persons in an outburst of patriotic enthusiasm.

What has shocked the people of all classes in Japan most is the deliberate and refined cruelty of the triple crime. One by one the three were strangled by Amakasu, each operation occupying ten minutes, with Mori assisting in at least one of the cases by holding the victim's legs and preventing their squirming, while Amakasu gripped the throat with his two hands, his knees astride the victim at the waist.

Reasons for Crime.

As to the crime itself it is best to let the words of Amakasu, as related at the hearing before the court of the first army division in Tokio. The version as authorized begins with a recitation of the "good motive" of Amakasu, thus forecasting a tempered sentence and eventual freedom. He was made to appear apprehensive that the withdrawal of martial law in Tokio after the earthquake excitement had subsided might lead to an outbreak of radicals, and so he thought it would be advantageous to the empire to kill Osugi.

So, taking opportunity of his appointment as head of the gendarmerie branch, he hunted out Osugi, located him on Sept. 15, and the following night strangled him and his supposed wife and son in the rooms of the gendarmerie. The whole is a tale worthy of the pen of Zola, with a dash of Tolstoi here and there, and some day may furnish the background for such a novel, but the crime itself is best told in the words of Amakasu himself.

"After the earthquake disaster the Tokio police were engaged in hunting out Socialists," testified Amakasu. He might have added that the police not only were hunting them down but slaying them, and Koreans as well.

Gives Victims Food.

"I saw that Osugi Sakae had not yet been run to earth," he continued, "and, regretting that no raid had been made on him, I started a search for him myself. On the 15th I learned through a police spy he was living at 380 Kashiwagi."

Amakasu then related the details of the locating of the house and the establishment of a guard. It was suggested by one of the assistants that Osugi be lured as far as Urawa and there killed, but this fell through, as Osugi and his consort and nephew had gone to Tsuruni for the day. They returned at 5:20 p. m., Osugi wearing a white linen foreign style suit and felt hat, and Ito Noe also in foreign dress with the boy accompanying them. The party was first taken to the Yodobashi police station, and thence to the Kojimachi gendarmerie station, arriving about 6:30 p. m.

"There they were led upstairs to two rooms that were not in use," Amakasu resumed, "and taken into the room formerly used by the head of the gendarmerie. Here I gave them supper. At 8 p. m. Sergt. Maj. Mori took Osugi alone to another unused room and began his examination. I entered this room from the door behind Osugi, who was seated in a chair, answering the questions being propounded.

Describes His Crime.

"I immediately grasped his neck with my right forearm, seizing his right wrist with my left hand, and pulled him backward. Osugi fell on the floor. Putting my right knee on his back, I strangled him by a jujitsu hold. Osugi, raising both hands, was in great agony, but expired in some ten minutes. Then I wound a piece of cord about his neck and laid him there. While being strangled Osugi uttered no cry whatever.

"To Sergt. Maj. Mori, while he was examining Osugi, I indicated as I entered my purpose to kill Osugi. While I was doing so Mori sat quietly in the chair, but when, before expiring, Osugi moved his legs in the last struggle to overcome death, Mori, at my request, came over and held his legs until the muscles relaxed and the end had come.

"About 9:30 p. m. I entered the room where Ito Noe was, and found her seated on a chair, her right elbow resting on a desk near the wall and with her back toward the entrance. This made it difficult to strangle her immediately. Walking about the room, I said to her: 'Martial law has been proclaimed. You think it is a foolish step, do you not?' She smiled, but did not answer. 'To you soldiers may appear fools.' She replied: 'People say all sorts of things, Mr. Soldier, do they not?'

Strangles Woman.

"While thus conversing I approached and strangled her to death in the same manner as Osugi. Owing to the disadvantageous position in which she was sitting, I had some difficulty in choking her. She groaned a few times, struggled, and scratched my left wrist, but she, too, expired in about ten minutes. After winding a piece of cord about her neck, I left the corpse in the room. While I was talking with her Mori also entered the room and, I believe, exchanged a few words with her, but he did not assist me with the strangulation.

"The boy had become familiar with me on the way to the station in the motor car and took to me, even after my arrival at the gendarmerie. I pitied him and as a joke asked my companions if any one of them would like to adopt him. Shortly before the strangulation of Ito Noe the boy came up to me and I shut him up in the next room, telling him to wait there a little time.

"When Ito Noe uttered her groans and struggled, the boy heard the noise and began to make an outcry. After Ito Noe was dead I entered the next room and strangled him to death, also winding a piece of cord about his neck. The boy uttered no sound, and no one was standing by when I killed him.

"The killing of Osugi and the two others was not committed on my authority as head of the gendarmerie branch office, but was carried out by me as an individual, as I thought it necessary for the safety of the empire. It is my hope that I alone may be punished for the killing."

I have been at some pains in Tokio and elsewhere to try to form a dispassionate estimate of the victims, Osugi Sakae and his cultured consort, and believe the following paragraphs contain it:

They were favorably known of foreigners of the so-called refined Socialist or parlor bolshevist class, and among their friends were Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand Russell. Among scholars and men of letters of Japan, even those who did not share their political views, they had a comradeship and held respect.

STRANGLES THREE

Capt. Amakasu, Jap army officer, who strangled author and wife and their nephew.

STOP USING COAL AND WOOD. New Discovery Replaces Old Method—An Entirely New Kind of Heat.

At last the housewife has come into her own. The world seems to be aiming to make every branch of her work lighter. And now comes a wonderful new invention which frees her entirely from one of the greatest of her drudgeries—heating and cooking with coal and wood.

This new device—the Oliver Oil-Gas Burner—does away with all the muss and tiresome labor of using coal and wood to cook or to heat. Mr. B. H. Oliver of St. Louis has perfected a cooking and heating device that burns 95% air and 5% oil. Right at the turn of her wrist the housewife now has as much or as little heat as she needs—three times the heat of coal or wood if she needs it. And even in the summer she no longer need endure the sweltering kitchen that she dreads so much. The device sets right into the firebox of any stove or furnace without adjustment. If you will write to him at 247-J Oliver Bldg., St. Louis, Mo., you will receive an attractive booklet FREE that tells all about it. Mr. Oliver is now making a special Low Price Introductory Offer. He is also looking for good, live distributors and will tell you how to earn $500 a month if you are interested and request his FREE Sample Case offer and sales plan.—Advertisement.

Pianos—returned from Summer Homes—

Within 6 months after purchase any piano bought in this sale may be exchanged and the full amount paid on the purchase price will be allowed towards any new piano in stock.

THIS annual event, awaited by so many, is drawing to a close. Only for a few more days will the exceptional values this Sale offers be available. Another year must pass before Chicago will be able to buy pianos of such high musical quality at such low prices. Do not put off your decision any longer. Let a good piano bring joy to the entire family.

Repaired—Refinished—Retuned

All the pianos have been gone over carefully. Our shops were busy for several weeks preparing for this event. As a result the instruments are most attractive.

If you have no objection to past ownership and are interested in value and merit you can buy here safely and savingly. No one could tell these pianos from new. Come in to see them. The display is a revelation, even to experienced piano salesmen.

You Save All Rent Paid and All Depreciation Charged Off for Use

You can have no idea of the wonderful values here until you see them. Used but little in Summer homes, their service has in many ways benefited them. For practical purposes they are as good as new. In tone or appearance, they cannot be told from new. As used pianos their worth is high, but custom, marking them "used", lowers the price radically. On top of this we have further reduced them to close them out.

Play as You Pay!

Terms are so liberal it is unnecessary to delay. You can be enjoying the piano while paying for it. All pianos are plainly tagged. Prices include a beautiful bench. A small down payment will put your choice in your home. Balance may be paid in 28 monthly installments. Then again old musical instruments are taken in part exchange at a fair valuation.

ACT NOW!

So do not delay. While the display is extensive, still there are some especially attractive bargains which only early buyers will obtain. Dainty grands, fine 88-note players, sweet-voiced uprights—come in just as soon as you can. If you cannot call in person, clip and mail coupon, today.

CALLES TO RULE MEXICO, IS TIP; U. S. STUDIES HIM

He's Pinkish if Not Red, All Reports Agree.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—The policy of the American government and of well informed American interests with large holdings in Mexico is now being formed on the premise that Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles will succeed Gen. Obregon as president of the republic.

Comprehensive estimates of the Mexican political situation just received here, it was learned officially, indicate that nothing short of death or a miracle can prevent Gen. Calles from becoming president.

Gives Calles the Double-O.

In view of reports as to the alleged advanced views, if not radical tendencies, of Gen. Calles, American government officials and other interests concerned have been making a careful study of Gen. Calles, and of the whole situation in Mexico.

The publication by President Obregon of the report of Alberto Pani, new finance minister, which constitutes a grave charge of inefficiency, if not corruption, on the part of Adolfo de la Huerta, is interpreted here as a definite indication that President Obregon has definitely broken with De La Huerta and, personally at least, favors Gen. Calles for the presidency.

DROPS AGRARIAN DREAM.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

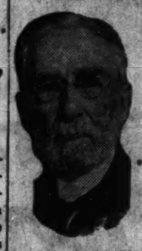

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 27.—Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, revolutionary party candidate for the presidency, last night in his first campaign speech sustained predictions made a month ago by THE TRIBUNE relative to a complete desertion of the revolutionary agrarian program by the government. He invited the support of the labor party, middle class, land owners, and capitalists.

Proclaiming himself in favor of giving communal lands to the agrarian class, he hedged, saying:

"But the agrarian policy must be worked out in conformity with the law so as not to destroy the agricultural production and injure those we want to help. To dismember our landed estates, in the present helpless condition of the laboring and agricultural class, would be foolish. Land should be given to energetic, laborious, experienced agriculturists. Colonization and immigration from other countries should be encouraged and irrigation promoted."

Gen. Calles denied that he opposed closer relations between Mexico and foreign countries, the regulation of the petroleum question, reparations to foreigners, and payment for agricultural lands taken. He threw the burden of a solution for these questions on congress.

BOARD OF TRADE DEAN, 86, BACK FROM HIS 41ST DUCK HUNTING TRIP

Charles T. Trego, 86 years old, for more than sixty years a member of the Chicago Board of Trade, has returned from his forty-first annual duck shooting excursion to northern Wisconsin. Every year he and Mrs. Trego have gone into northern Wisconsin about the middle of October and spent several weeks. "The duck shooting was the poorest I have ever known," said the oldest member of the Board of Trade, who is more active than many men of 60. "No one up at our club had any luck this year, the weather being too mild, which kept the ducks out in the lake."

M'CRAY USED BANK'S NAME TO BORROW, HE SAYS

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 27.—[United Press.]—Gov. Warren T. McCray today admitted that he frequently had used the name of the Discount & Deposit Bank of Kentland, of which he was formerly president, in connection with his own name to obtain funds for his personal use.

McCray, when questioned regarding a statement of William Darroch, receiver for the bank, $155,000 of state board of agriculture money had not reached the bank, said:

"Of course it didn't. It was deposited there to my own credit and did not go to the credit of the bank."

McCray denied he had given the board of agriculture any reason to doubt the destination of the funds.

Charles W. Moores, special prosecutor in charge of the grand jury investigation of the governor's affairs, is expected to order the inquiry resumed next week.

WOMAN POINTS TO WOMAN IN TAXI MURDER PUZZLE

Henry Holtz, arrested by the Hammond police as a suspect in the murder of W. J. Sterns, proprietor of a jitney bus line, was released yesterday when he offered an alibi. Search turned to a married woman as the slayer when Mrs. Holtz, who admits she was with Sterns just before he was killed, gave information casting suspicion upon the woman. "The girls were crazy over Sterns," Mrs. Holtz said. "If you want to find who shot him, look for this woman, who was jealous of him and whose attentions he had rebuffed."

R. F. Carr Heads Board for Cripples' Shelter

Robert F. Carr was elected president of the board of directors of the Home for Destitute Crippled Children at the annual meeting yesterday. William Burry, George M. Reynolds, James M. WHEN, in any of the three Ontras, you include coffee in your selection, it is supplied in a two-cup, heavy silver pot that keeps the contents piping hot for a long time.

The coffee is a delicious rich brew of the famous Savoy brand so much esteemed by all good judges and it is accompanied by an individual creamer containing a generous portion of Bowman's richest (22%) cream. The cup and saucer are not typical of the heavy "hotel china" most in use, but are of a lighter weight more pleasing to patrons.

Miss Dutton's purpose, always, is to keep Ontra prices at the lowest level consistent with quality food and sound merchandising and she asks you to compare the Ontra price, of 8c for a two-cup pot, with the prices at which coffee comparable in quality is served anywhere else in the United States.

Gives Details of Elevated Extension on North Side

BY AL CHASE.

Official confirmation of the huge "L" and North Shore program, printed for the first time in The Tribune of Oct. 6, was made last night by R. J. Dalton, general manager of the Chicago Elevated lines. At the same time details of operation, finances, and route were made public. It is learned that the new "L" trains will run over the new line from Howard street station, west to Niles Center, where large yards will be maintained. Chicago, Milwaukee, Dempster street, and then north to Waukegan. Chicago electric trains will be operated over the same tracks, but will continue north of Dempster street to Waukegan.

Make Better Speed.

Although the mileage from Wilson to Howard street via the new route will be slightly longer than the present one, it is expected that faster schedule can be made and a better service maintained. Most of the new route, from Howard street via the "L" to the Loop, will be made over the present Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road. It is expected that the Chicago and Northwestern will continue to Ridge, where it will dip under that boulevard, coming up on the other side between Brummel and Harvard.

Crossing Asbury, it will continue westward, just south of Mulford, almost exactly half way between Oakton and Howard, as far as Fairbanks road. There it will turn northward to the north, skirting the forest preserve until it reaches the Northwestern right of way. It will follow this, on the east, north to Waukegan.

Seek New Charter.

An application was made yesterday by the Insull interests for a charter for the "Chicago, North Shore and Northern," which will finance, build, and own the new road. The "L" lines will operate over its tracks under a long term lease.

Work will start as soon as the Illinois commerce commission issues a certificate of convenience and necessity which will be applied for at once. Only two surface tracks will be laid in the big yard at Dempster street to handle traffic, and the 16th car now ordered are in hand. Eight car trains will be operated over the "L" lines.

The Real Estate Opportunity of a LIFETIME

Official Confirmation of the "L" and North Shore Extension Program Means This Property Is Increasing in Value by Leaps and Bounds

Millions were made at Wilson Avenue—millions at Devon Avenue—millions at Howard Street—and right now there are many potential millions of profit at DEMPSTER STREET for those who are far-sighted enough to visualize the tremendous expansion that is bound to follow fast in the path of the new Northwestern Elevated, which will soon be operating and carrying thousands and thousands of people every day along the new route to the big Terminal at Dempster Street.

Invest Now! 1 Block from This Terminal

No North Side Elevated Extension has been made in years, although the growth of the entire North Side has been so phenomenal that it was a foregone conclusion that the iron bands of inadequate transportation must be broken. With countless thousands clamoring for a chance to get away from the congestion and live in contentment and comfort, there was but one solution to the problem —ELEVATED EXTENSION—and now it has come (Read the extract from Chicago Tribune above), and with it the greatest opportunity ever offered to the people of Chicago to make a profitable investment.

A Few Hundred Dollars Is All You Need —BUT ACT QUICK!

The Opening Sale prices are as low as $40 a foot, but they won't last long! Property a few hundred feet away has already sold for as high as $300 a foot, which will give you an idea of what may be expected. This new community is bound to eclipse all its predecessors in the rapidity of its growth and in the soaring upwards of real estate values. Big profits are going to be made, so if you have a few dollars to spare, invest it NOW—TODAY—buy as much as you possibly can—the road to prosperity is ahead of you. It's up to you!

Arthur Dunas' TERMINAL SUBDIVISION

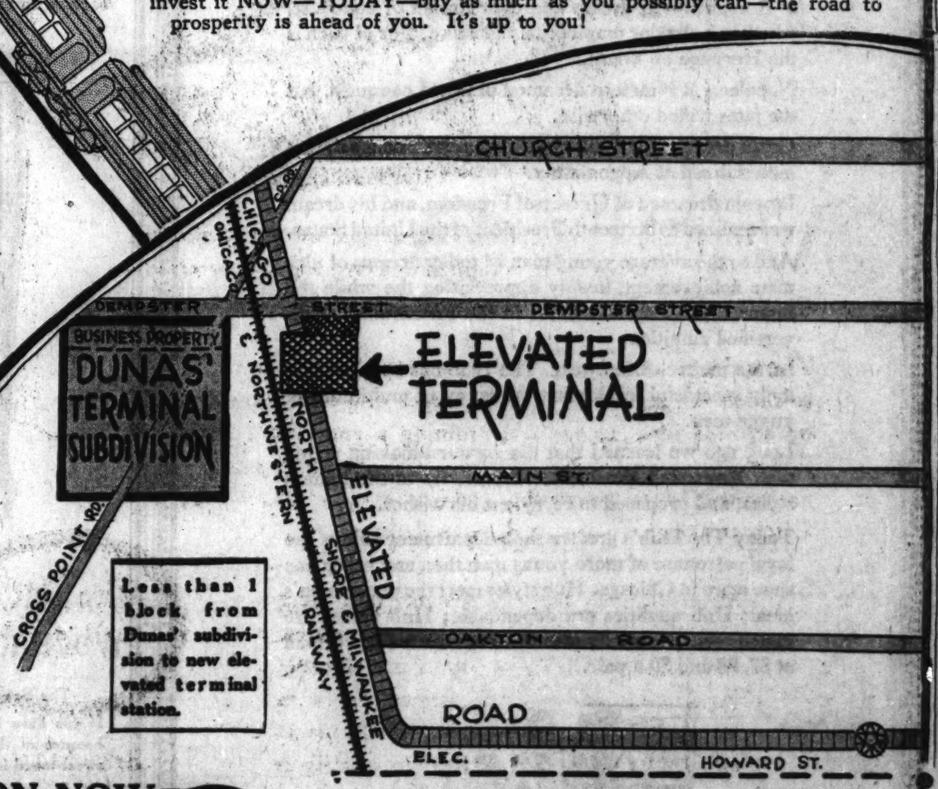

Residence Lots—Business Lots

EASY TERMS

Buy one lot, if that's all you can afford—a business lot, or an apartment or homesite. But if you can possibly afford it, buy two or three or more, for in proportion to what you buy you will reap the huge profit which some one is going to make. A small payment now and balance a few dollars a month.

COME OUT TODAY!

If you haven't an automobile, we'll gladly drive you out, without obligation. Simply phone Dearborn 7580 any time Sunday and we'll send an automobile to call for you at your home and take you to see this wonderful property. If you have a car, then drive out with your family—take Sheridan Road or Ridge Boulevard north to Dempster Street and then drive straight west on Dempster Street to the Gross Point Road—or drive north on the Gross Point Road to Dempster Street. Here you will find the big Dunas office at the entrance to the Dunas Terminal Subdivision.

Less than 1 block from Dunas' subdivision to new elevated terminal station.

KATHERINE GALE BECOMES BRIDE OF R. J. BELL JR.

Only Members of Families Attend Ceremony.

Miss Katherine Silloway Gale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Vincent Gale of 75 East Division street, became the bride of Robert James Bell Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert James Bell of 4314 Berkeley avenue, last night at 8:30 o'clock in St. Chrysostom's church, the Rev. Norman Hutton officiating. The bride's gown was of white chiffon velvet embroidered in pearls and silver beads, and her veil of tulle was held in place with a pearl headdress. She carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas and valley lilies. Her only attendant was her sister, Mrs. Alexander C. Scully of Lancaster, Pa., who wore French blue velvet with rhinestone trimmings, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and white sweet peas.

Only members of the families attended the ceremony and the reception which followed at the Gale residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell will be at home after Dec. 1 at 512 Cornelia avenue.

Wears Great-Grandmother's Lace.

When Miss Dorothy Evans Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Smith Mason of 1401 Ridge avenue, Evanston, became the bride of Rodney Moore Bliss, son of Mrs. Frances Moore Bliss of Osborn, Mo., last night she wore a gown of white chiffon velvet trimmed with lace that was worn by her great-grandmother. The court train of velvet was lined with silver cloth and the tulle veil was finished with a head band of old lace and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias, white orchids, and lilies of the valley. The service was read at 8:30 o'clock in St. Mark's church, Evanston, by the Rev. Arthur Rogers.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Samuel Sloan Colt of New York, wore gold color satin with a cloth of gold train; the maids of honor, Miss Polly McKinney of Nashville and Miss Roberta Lewis of Chicago, wore satin gowns of a lighter shade than Mrs. Colt's, and the bridesmaids, Miss Dorothy Kidd of New York, Miss Mary La Breweris of St. Joseph, Mo., Mrs. William E. Johnson, and Miss Elizabeth Montgomery of Evanston, wore dresses of a deeper shade than Mrs. Colt's.

All the attendants wore gold and brown filets in their hair and carried chrysanthemums. The trains of the maids' gowns were of satin instead of cloth of gold. Mr. and Mrs. Bliss will reside at 1321 Oak avenue, Evanston, after Jan. 1.

Yager-Doherty Wedding.

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Yager, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Eugene Yager of 300 Forest avenue, Oak Park, and James Russell Doherty, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Doherty of 2600 Lake View avenue, took place last night at 8:30 o'clock at the First Congregational church of Oak Park, the Rev. William E. Barton officiating.

The bride wore a gown of silver cloth and a tulle veil with a crown of rose point lace. The matron of honor, Mrs. Robert E. Cantwell Jr., wore gold color moiré; the maid of honor, Miss Harriet Copeland, silver lace over blue taffeta, and the bridesmaids, Miss Bertha Ochsner, Miss Jane Adams, Mrs. Robert Lewis, Mrs. Henry Wallace Caldwell, Mrs. Louis Huck, and Mrs. Arthur H. Mulford Jr., peach color moiré trimmed in gold.

BILLIE DOVE. IRVING WILLAT.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 27.—(Special.)—Billie Dove has flown away from her friends and Hollywood asserts she is secretly married to Irving Willat, a director of the Famous Players-Lasky corporation. A license was issued early this morning to Mr. Willat and Miss Lillian Bohny, which is Billie Dove's real name. Miss Dove, or Mrs. Willat, is a former Follies girl.

BRITISH LABOR PICKS NOTED COUNTESS TO RUN FOR PARLIAMENT

WARWICK, England, Oct. 27.—The labor party today nominated the Countess of Warwick as its candidate for the seat in the house of commons for the Leamington division of Warwickshire, made vacant by the promotion of Sir Ernest Pollock to become master of the rolls. The countess, who is in her sixty-second year, has been an avowed socialist for many years.

THIRSTY BLACKS GREET GIBBONS IN OLD GUINEA

Hears "How Dry We Are" in 3 Languages.

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BISSAO, Portguese Guinea, via Sierra Leone, Oct. 27.—A low lying fringe of palm trees pushing their crests up out of the sea on the eastern horizon was our first glimpse of the coast of Portuguese Guinea as the Hamburg coasting steamer Lili Woermann nosed her way slowly toward the morning mists on shore. A barefooted sailor in a grease stained helmet and undershirt and white pants swung the lead from the top of the starboard gangway and sang out the soundings in German.

Across several miles of shallow muddy water our glasses picked up a single unpainted corrugated iron shack on shore. We could see a boat put out through the surf and blacks bending to the oars. After thirty minutes of buffeting in the long swells remaining from the previous night's tornado the boat came alongside.

Pilot Clambers Aboard.

The pilot, a tall thin negro in a buttonless khaki coat and pants and a battered helmet, mounted the rope ladder and came up over the side. He ignored the officers on the bridge and shouted instructions in Portuguese to the men in the boat for the transfer of sacks, bags, and bundles to the ship's deck. Up came several bushels of bush corn, sacks of cola nuts, and a half dozen beer bottles filled with an oil by sale of which the Portuguese government officials supplement their government salaries.

"Haben Sie Schnapps?" the Negro coxwain of the pilot's boat shouted in a dry throated appeal in conformity with the Lili Woermann's flag. From the white men on the rail above him there came no encouraging reply.

"Est-ce que vous aves du cognac?" was the request from the same thirsty linguists, based this time on the bare possibility that some Frenchman had risked poisoning to board the vessel.

"Masse, you got rum for black boy?" was the third appeal, and when there was no answer he added, "Maybe gin?"

Dismay of Natives.

Disappointment spread over the upturned black faces in the tossing small boat, and its owner took another look at the German tricolor hanging limp over the stern.

"All the same as American ship, just like black boy, no got gin," was the parting observation as he and his companions pulled away from the ship's side and the Lili Woermann under the Negro pilot's orders commenced its twisting progress up the Jebba river, steering a cautious course through the unmarked mud banks, sand bars and small islands between the deceptive shores of mango swamps.

The maritime nations of Europe have been sailing in these waters and calling at these ports long before the Pilgrim fathers landed in America and the country has contributed great riches during the centuries of its occupation and exploitation, yet its progress seems at a standstill. Biasso, sixty miles up the river, where we dropped our anchor in the middle of a swift stream, is the commercial center of the colony.

A Trick Wharf.

The government wharf of reinforced concrete, flanked by two one story customs houses built on stone piles, is of such a rickety appearance that vessels refuse to lay alongside it, but still unload their cargoes in midstream by a costly system of lighters. The charge for bringing a vessel alongside the wharf is many thousand escudos, amounting to several hundred dollars in American money, but this is cheap compared to the damages the ship would have to pay for any collapse of the wharf.

"I stay out in the stream," Capt. Heitman of the Lili Woermann explained to me. "The slightest bump against that pier and over she would go, taking the two customs houses with her. Then the government would seise my ship for damages. No, I stay out in midstream."

From the river, Biasso presents the appearance of having old white stone structures with corrugated tin roofs. Distance gives one the impression of a pile of Spanish-American ruins. Ashore I found that it has two main streets flanked with small shops of Syrian merchants and crowded with semi-nude natives. Several bare faced policemen, leaning against an iron fence smoking cigarets, indicated the location of the local seat of government in an adjoining building.

A short fat administrator was deciding a case in connection with some stolen jewelry between two mulatto women in his office, to which I was ushered. Court suspended immediately, and there was an exchange of introductions. The statute books on the administrator's desk closed with a bang of finality. The plaintiff, defendant, witnesses and police precipitously cleared out of the room. Orders were given for the administrator's automobile, which arrived as if in summons to a fire alarm.

An African Flivver.

It was one of those cars that came to earth just about the time its maker decided to get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas, and many Yuletide seasons of peace and war have passed, leaving many marks on its much battered sides, but it still rattled with Detroit determination. Steam poured from its radiator, its sides shook with the volley of exhausts and every one of the frayed and bleached ribbons remaining on top fluttered and trembled with the vibration.

With the port side listing, betraying the state of the springs and its owner's weight, we were off to a racing start. We mounted a moss covered stone causeway traversing the most of a 200 year old fort. Seven barefooted black soldiers, in gray cotton pants and with nondescript equipment, scrambled into line and presented arms as we exploded our way through the grim stone arched entrance leading to a plowed-up quadrangle. During a heated Latin discussion between the administrator and the black driver, we turned to the right and left twice, reversed three times and finally came to earth in front of an ancient one story barrack, just 100 yards away from our starting place.

The second part of Mr. Gibbons' account of his visit to Portuguese Guinea will be printed soon.

The Average Young Man

(and his dreams of conquest)

HOW wonderful it is to wander along the highways and byways of Opportunity, and dream of thrilling combat with some Gilbertian Pirate of Penzance or mayhap a Wizard of Wall Street—to loiter in the Land o' Romance—to dream and ever dream of conquest, whether hearts or empires be the stake. For of such is the Heritage of Youth.

Napoleon at Nineteen dreamed of world conquest, but the fates willed otherwise.

Grant dreamed of military achievement, and his dream materialized at Appomattox.

Lincoln dreamed of Universal Freedom, and his dream was realized as Sixteenth President of the United States.

And so the average young man of today dreams of ultimate achievement, keenly appreciating the while the importance of correct dress in the furtherance of diversified ambition.

In the matter of footwear, The Hub has been gratifyingly successful in pleasing the fancy of multitudes of young men.

Long ago we learned that the forward-looking young man demanded the most extreme, up-to-the-minute styles, and prepared to carry out his wishes.

Today The Hub's greater shoe department enjoys the loyal patronage of more young men than any other one shoe store in Chicago. Hub styles meet the young man's ideal; Hub qualities are dependable; Hub values are matchless. Especially attractive are those lines priced at $7, $8 and $9 a pair.

OUR ZOO WRITER DID HIS BEST TO DRAW A DIK-DIK

It's Real as Are Gerenuk, Platypus and Bongo.

Dear Mr. Little: I like your stories about the animals that are going to be out in the new zoo very much. I hope they will buy all the ones you talk about—they are so funny. Won't you please tell us some more about the dik-dik, and the duck billed platypuses, the nyapu, the gerenuk, and the bongo? You had photographs of the elephant and the llama and the tiger in the paper this morning. I wish you would print pictures of the duck billed platypus, and the gerenuk that goes two years without a drink, and the dik-dik, and the bongo. Are they real? I just can't wait until the zoo opens to know what they look like.

A LITTLE GIRL WHO LOVES ANIMALS.

BY RICHARD HENRY LITTLE.

Well Laura, if your name is Laura, so many girls are named Laura—it was easy to print pictures of an elephant and a llama and a tiger, for there is an elephant and a llama and a tiger up in the Lincoln park zoo.

DIK-DIK.

These animals you named are not in the Lincoln park zoo, but they are real, Laura, because Mr. Morse, director of our new zoo, told me so. I was just like you. I simply could not believe there was any animal called a dik-dik.

Even if they did call an animal that I would think that if he had any self-respect at all he would go into court and have his name changed to something respectable. But Mr. Morse said that animals in Africa were very wild and careless and didn't care what people called them.

Gets Out "Who's Who" in Zoo.

Mr. Morse got out a big book, I forget the name of it, but I think it was "Who's Who in the Zoo," and sure enough there was the name dik-dik. They had one once in the Boston zoo, but of course in Boston such a silly name as dik-dik was not to be thought of and they called it the Richard-Richard.

I wish the big zoo that we are going to have out in the Forest Preserve park (if you pa and ma and enough other pas and mas vote for it) was there right now. For then we could rush right out and get a picture of a dik-dik.

I couldn't find any picture in Mr. Morse's books of a dik-dik but he described the beast to me and I have drawn a picture of one. I am not very good at drawing animals. Mr. Morse

A LITTLE GIRL WHO LOVES ANIMALS.

BY RICHARD HENRY LITTLE.

Well Laura, if your name is Laura, as many e[illegible] are named Laura—it was easy to print pictures of an elephant and a llama and a tiger, for there is an elephant and a llama and a tiger up in the Lincoln park zoo.

DIK-DIK

These animals you named are not in the Lincoln park zoo, but they are real, Laura, because Mr. Morse, director of our new zoo, told me so. I was just like you. I simply could not believe there was any animal called a dik-dik.

Even if they did call an animal that I would think that if he had any self-respect at all he would go into court and have his name changed to something respectable. But Mr. Morse said that animals in Africa were very wild and careless and didn't care what people called them.

Gets Out "Who's Who" in Zoo.

Mr. Morse got out a big book, I forget the name of it, but I think it was "Who's Who in the Zoo," and sure enough there was the name dik-dik. They had one once in the Boston zoo, but of course in Boston such a silly name as dik-dik was not to be thought of and they called it the Richard-Richard.

I wish the big zoo that we are going to have out in the Forest Preserve park (if you pa and ma and enough other pas and mas vote for it) was there right now. For then we could rush right out and get a picture of a dik-dik.

I couldn't find any picture in Mr. Morse's books of a dik-dik but he described the beast to me and I have drawn a picture of one. I am not very good at drawing animals. Mr. Morse said the dik-dik looks something like a cat or a tiger cub. You see the dik-dik I have drawn looks something like a cat and a tiger cub and a small dog, too, so that it is really better than a photograph of the dik-dik.

I showed Mr. Morse my drawing of the dik-dik and said, "Look what you are going to have in your zoo," and Mr. Morse looked at it and said, "Over my dead body." I don't think he likes dik-diks.

The duck billed platypus is a real animal too. Years [illegible] had one stuffed in Science hall in Lincoln park and mothers used to take their children over to see it and they would say to little Agatha or Cyril or Hortense or whoever it was that had been naughty, "Now if you are ever bad again the duck billed platypus will get you."

PLATYPUS

And no child that ever saw the duck billed platypus was ever naughty again. I only know that it has a bill like a duck, and a body like a dog and web feet, and that it lays eggs and swims on the water and roosts in a tree.

Finds It Hard to Draw.

I had to draw a picture of the duck billed platypus, too. My idea when I drew it was that an animal that has a bill like a duck and a body like a dog and web feet and that swims in the water and roosts in a tree and lays eggs, should be treated real rough. There's no sense to it anyhow. I had to put six feet on my duck billed platypus because.

I don't know whether he has two feet in the middle of his body to match his duck bill or whether he has four legs to go with his body which is like a dog's. You can call up Mr. John McCutcheon who is the president of the Zoo board and if he says the platypus has four legs you can rub out the two in the middle and if he says it has two legs you can rub out the ones on the corners.

The gerenuk has not had his photograph taken either. Mr. Morse said that the gerenuk had only recently been discovered and that there is not a single one in any zoo in the world. Mr. Morse, himself, has never met a gerenuk face to face or seen a picture of him and all he knows about a gerenuk is that it is a small, bashful animal that belongs to the hart-beest family and that he goes two years without a drink. So that makes the gerenuk easy.

All you have to do to know what he looks like is to think at the same time of a hart-beest and a man who has gone for two years without a drink. I have made a picture of what I think such an animal looks like, but it is not quite accurate, for I never have seen a hart-beest nor any one who ever went two years without a drink. But sometimes it seems that long.

GERENUK

And now we come to the bongo. I am very sorry you asked for the bongo, Laura. I have found his name in the list of animals that the London zoo wishes to add to its collection, but I could not find a picture of him. I wish you had asked for the reticulated giraffe, the wanga wanga, or the great wallaroo. It seems easier to think up a reticulated giraffe or a wanga wanga or a great wallaroo than a bongo. To draw a reticulated giraffe one would only have to draw an ordinary every day giraffe and put the reticulations in.

Of course, anybody could draw a wanga wanga or a great wallaroo with their eyes shut, but a bongo is different. Or if you had only said rugupo, Laura. I know a rugupo is a rat as big as a goat, but I can't find out much about the bongo.

Zoo Man Knows 'Em.

Joe Dillabaugh, who works for the new zoo, says that he knows all about bongo because his father, who was a sea captain, brought one back from South Africa and they had it for a pet around the house.

Joe said the bongo looks like a peacock that had swallowed a stick of dynamite and exploded. It has four legs like a deer, but looks bowlegged because it climbs up trees and that puts its legs out of shape. It has a head like a horse and long wings like an eagle.

FRIENDS HONOR JUDGE DAVID ON HIS 60TH BIRTHDAY

Judge Joseph B. David, chief justice of the Superior court, celebrated his sixtieth birthday anniversary yesterday. Scores of the judge's friends appeared in his courtroom and remarked that the judge's appearance belied his age. They hailed him as an energetic, forceful character. Judge David refused to permit attaches of the court to present him with a floral token of regard. Having served eight years on the bench, Judge David is a candidate for reelection this year.

DENIES ZOO TAX WILL TAKE CASH FROM SCHOOLS

Declaring that the passing of the tax levy for the Chicago zoological park in the forest preserve will not affect in any way the school situation in Chicago, John T. McCutcheon, president of the Chicago Zoölogical society, explained the zoo proposition at a meeting of high school teachers last night at the City club.

"I love animals and I love children and if I thought that the tax asked for the establishment of the zoölogical park in the forest preserve would in any way hamper the educational facilities of our boys and girls I would not urge the people of Chicago to vote for the tax levy authorized by the legislature for this zoo project," Mr. McCutcheon said.

Mr. McCutcheon pointed out that all that is asked for the zoo is $500,000 a year for five years, making a tax of three-tenths of a mill for that period.

Not Too Proud to Fight, Universalists Vote

Providence, R. I., Oct. 27.—The Universalist general conference today voted to table a resolution seeking to affirm the right of any Universalist to refuse to perform military service because of conscientious objections to war.

This Is a New-type Nash Enclosed Car
THE SIX VICTORIA

One of the real events of the enclosed car season is the smart Nash Six Victoria.

Set expertly low to the road and toned a beautiful Nash Blue, it is an attractive and picturesque sight.

The sweeping lines denoted by the lengthened fenders are emphasized in the body by the long, graceful roll of the rear deck.

And a conspicuous feature is the new slanted windshield that serves a practical purpose, too, in broadening the driver's area of vision.

At the rear a large metal trunk is built in the deck.

Aluminum guard bars are mounted atop the trunk; and the appointments include a rear-vision mirror; combination flush-type vanity and smoking set; heater, vase, automatic windshield wiper; and many other conveniences.

The passenger capacity is arranged for four grown people, with a child's seat directly behind the driver and away from the doors.

This Victoria model is the only car of its type in this price-class.

COMICS CONTEST REACHES FINAL WEEK OF SERIES

Last Minute Ideas May Be Winners.

BY NORA COLLINS.

HURRY!

THIS IS YOUR LAST CHANCE TO ENTER THE CARTOON CONTEST!

They say that "opportunity knocks only once"—but an opportunity to win a cash prize has "knocked" eight times at your door!

It has been "knocking" for the last several weeks and if you want to enter the contest, you better get busy immediately—because this is the last week and it is the last KNOCK!

The contest closes Thursday, November 1 at 6 p. m. and you must have your entry in THE TRIBUNE office by that time, to compete.

Time Is Flying Now.

If you have a good suggestion to make to THE TRIBUNE cartoonists you better send it in right away. It makes no difference how many suggestions you have to make, or how many you have already sent in.

It does not matter if this will be your first attempt. EVERYBODY HAS THE SAME CHANCE TO WIN!

USE YOUR IMAGINATION! Think up new exploits, new achievements, new larks for the brain children of THE TRIBUNE'S famous cartoonists. If you wish, you may cite actual happenings. Think about them! You may win a cash prize. There is nothing hard about the contest at all.

You simply write your idea in your own words. You do not have to illustrate it. You do not have to use the coupon which appears in the comic section. It is printed only for your convenience, as it is numbered and has space on it for your name and address.

Here Are Details.

1. To introduce the new enlarged Eight Page Comic Section of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE and to secure suggestions for it THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE offers $10,000 in Cash Prizes for Cartoon Ideas. One thousand dollars each week during the contest; in addition a Grand Prize of $2,000 will be paid for the best of all the ideas submitted.

The $1,000 given away every week will be divided as follows:

First prize	$ 250
Second prize	100
Third prize	50
Fourth prize	25
Next 25 prizes—$10 each	250
Next 65 prizes—$5 each	325
94 prizes, totaling	$1,000

2. Contest is open to every man, woman, boy, and girl, except employés of THE TRIBUNE and their families. It does not matter where you live.

3. You do not have to draw. Simply submit ideas in writing. Ideas must not exceed 200 words. You may submit as many as you wish.

4. Ideas may be submitted with coupons published in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Comic Section today, or on a separate sheet of paper. All ideas must bear a number. Ideas for this week should be marked "No. 5," both on envelope and inclosure.

5. All ideas must be addressed to the artist for whom the idea is intended, Postoffice Box 1539, Chicago, Ill. For instance, address ideas for "The Gumps" to Sidney Smith. All ideas must be in by 6 p. m. Thursday following the publication of the coupon.

6. Originality of the ideas, neatness, and clarity of expression will count.

7. All manuscripts and ideas submitted in this contest or competition become the absolute property of The Tribune company, and, without any consideration other than that provided in this contest, may be used by The Tribune company as it sees fit.

SINGLE STANDARD IS SEX SOLUTION, AUTHOR'S VIEW

Civilization Won't Tolerate Polygamy, He Says.

New York, Oct. 27.—[Special.]—John Jeffery Farnol, English author, returning home today after a short visit to New York, announced the startling theory that the growing power of woman, through suffrage and intelligent organization will result in lowering rather than elevating what is now the recognized standard of morals in the matter of relations between the sexes.

JOHN JEFFERY FARNOL.

Mr. Farnol's remark was prompted by quotation to him of a statement made yesterday by an arriving British authoress, Rebecca West, that polygamy will not be the remedy for a surplus of 2,000,000 women in Great Britain.

Won't Tolerate Polygamy.

"I agree with her," said Mr. Farnol. "Polygamy will not be tolerated, but the influence of 2,000,000 more women than men will be felt.

"Woman suffrage is growing in England, women are growing more powerful. I look for them to abolish the double standard of morals and substitute a single standard. By that I mean that woman will set up a code that she should be forgiven where man is forgiven. I also look to women to provide for government care for children born out of wedlock and the removal from such children of the stigma of shame."

"Do you mean that society through feminine influence will recognize legitimate the relations of unmarried women?" Mr. Farnol was asked.

"That is about what I mean," was the reply.

May Spread to United States.

"Do you think the condition will spread to the United States?"

"I wouldn't be surprised to see it start in America," answered Mr. Farnol—"in some parts of America."

39 ACHIEVEMENT COURSE GRADUATES RECEIVE EMBLEMS

Thirty-nine graduates of achievement courses offered in the county's public schools yesterday received their emblems and certificates at a banquet at the Hotel Morrison. Each one of the graduates has completed a school home project, such as raising a garden, a pig, done work in cooking, canning, or sewing, each year for eight years, according to Edward J. Tobin, county superintendent of schools.

Many of the graduates, in addition to having done something practical in connection with their school work, have earned considerable sums of money from their project, several having earned $1,000, Mr. Tobin said. Graduates receiving the bronze medals are:

Kewanee Boiler Co.,
Kewanee, Ill.

Gentlemen:

Here are some facts which undoubtedly will be of interest to you:

Intending to buy, I had occasion to inspect some sixty-two apartment buildings, all located in the Ravenswood section of Chicago, where I had decided to locate. I had no list, but visited these places as I went along.

Understand, there were sixty-two buildings, and if only half of them had your boilers I would have given you credit for a mighty good average, but there were just sixty-two Kewanee Boilers in those places - one in each building.

One after another, the agents told me of the satisfaction they were receiving from the Kewanee Boiler, in fact, most of them mentioned Kewanee before saying anything about brick, interior trim or anything else.

Before this experience I had not thought the importance of proper heating equipment was so great and from what I have learned about Kewanee Boilers I would not own a building without one.

The manufacturers of such a worthy product, in my opinion, deserve to know what the users think of it, hence this letter, and there is no objection on my part should you care to make use of it in any way.

Yours very truly,

CITY FURNITURE COMPANY

Credit Manager.

BARNHART AND DE YOUNG GET O.K. IN BAR PRIMARY

Both Urged as Qualified for Superior Bench.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Frederic R. De Young [Rep.] and Marvin E. Barnhart [Dem.] received majority indorsements as nominees for the Superior court in the primary of the Chicago Bar association.

De Young received 1,530 of the 2,337 votes cast, making him No. 15 on the list of twenty indorsed for full terms on the Superior bench. Barnhart received 1,328 votes, making him No. 18 in numerical order among those approved by the lawyers.

MARVIN E. BARNHART. [McEsti Photo.]

De Young was highly honored recently by the voters of Cook county and adjoining territory. He was "elected" to the Illinois Supreme court at the special election held last December, but the post for which he was chosen did not come into actual existence because the proposed constitution creating two new supreme justiceships in the Seventh district was defeated at the polls.

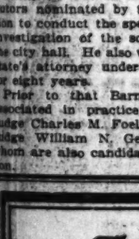

But this fact, lawyers contend, did not detract from the honor paid De Young. He was selected by the Republicans of the district as the best fitted candidate they could find for the high state tribunal. And the Democrats did not name an opponent against him.

In addition to this distinction, De Young has been praised for his services as chairman of the judiciary committee of the constitutional convention and as a member of the legislature in the forty-ninth and fiftieth assemblies. The bar association committee pronounced his record in both capacities "noteworthy" and said that he "possesses many excellent qualities which commend him for judicial office."

Barnhart in "Graft Cases."

Barnhart has been before the public recently as one of the special prosecutors nominated by the bar association to conduct the special grand jury investigation of the school board and the city hall. He also was an assistant state's attorney under Maclay Hoyne for eight years.

Prior to that Barnhart had been associated in practice with Superior Judge Charles M. Foell and Municipal Judge William N. Gemmill, both of whom are also candidates in this election.

Strike Ties Up Poland

WARSAW, Oct. 27.—The Polish railway strike continued today with the government able to maintain a few express and freight trains for the conveyance of food. These trains were manned by soldiers. The strike appears to be most serious at Krakow where the strikers are reported to be committing acts of terrorism and sabotage.

UNDERWOOD, WHO FOUGHT DRY LAW, SAYS ENFORCE IT

Attacks Masked Mobs as Part of Platform.

Houston, Tex., Oct. 27.—Senator Oscar Underwood, a presidential candidate, today defined his position on two questions which are expected to be storm centers of debate in the primaries and election.

Mr. Underwood declared he stood for rigid enforcement of the prohibition law and favored using revenue cutters and every other agency of the government to stop flaunting of the eighteenth amendment.

Attacks Masked Mobs.

He declared that attempts by any secret organization to compel the government to enact legislation, or any effort by "class or klan" to take the law in its own hands threatens the existence of government in the United States. He referred to activities of masked mobs as an evil brought on by widespread violations of the law, and declared that if respect for law enforcement of the statutes is not again practiced "worse evils" may ensue.

He discussed the growing radicalism which he declared is dominating one wing of the Democratic and Republican parties. The line is becoming marked between radicals and conservatives, he said, and he added that "I don't belong to the radical group and neither does true democracy."

The senator received liberal applause when he declared that the "government which governs least governs best."

Scores Radical Elements.

"Radical elements, trying to tear down the special privileges of one class, have been most insistent in creating other special privileges," he asserted.

Defending the doctrine of state's rights, he said citizens of the states have been compelled to support by their money many national activities which property should fall in the province of state government.

Parisian Barbers Shave Off Beards to Boost Shaving

PARIS, Oct. 27.—Off come beards, mustaches, and sideburns. The annual congress of Parisian coiffeurs decided on this move for their employés to try to boost their business since the high cost of shaves and haircuts induced many of their erstwhile customers to let their facial shrubbery grow, while many others have been purchasing safety razors.

Teeth Stains Removed —for Few Cents!

No More Yellow Teeth—New Liquid Whitens Teeth Instantly

A new harmless liquid which—in just three minutes—gives dull, yellowish teeth a beautiful, pearly whiteness has been discovered. It is almost magical; you just brush your teeth with a few drops—and no matter how black or discolored they may have been—stains are instantly bleached out, and the teeth take on a charming new lustre, a marvelous snowy whiteness.

Tobacco stains completely disappear after a few applications. BLEACHODENT is a new scientific product, perfected by dental specialists who knew that there must be a better, safer and less expensive way to clean teeth than the old way of having them scoured for an hour by a dentist. BLEACHODENT is especially recommended for children's teeth, as the child's teeth are in a soft, formative period during which gritty pastes or powders should be avoided, and only an absolutely safe cleanser like BLEACHODENT, which bleaches out stains but has absolutely no effect on the enamel, should be used.

Get BLEACHODENT today. Only a few cents for a full size bottle. Bring it back if not delighted. Sold by all druggists, such as Public Drug Co., Geo. M. Porter, Buck & Rayner, Garmess Pharmacy, Economical Drug Co., Walgreen Co., Nestor Drug, Owl Drug Co.

An Italian Walnut Dining Set at a Saving of One-fourth

THIS set is built of American walnut, finished in a mellow brown, and is enriched by plastic ornament that reproduces finely the richness of Renaissance carving. The drawers are made of mahogany and the posts and framework of solid walnut.

The 25% reduction resulted from a reorganization in a factory with which we have done a great deal of business. We had to purchase a rather large lot in order to get the discount, but such a bargain as this may well be sold out in a few days.

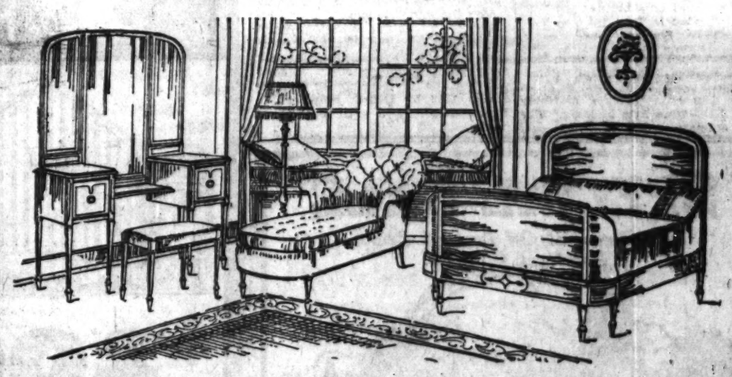

$78.00 Reduced from $106. Dining table with top 44 by 60 inches, and extending to 8 feet.

$58.00 Reduced from $80. Side table 38 inches wide, with large drawer.

A Fine Bedroom Set Just Reduced

$94.00 Reduced from $138. Semi-vanity case with swinging side mirrors.

$74.00 Reduced from $100. Bow-end bed, full size. Single size, twin beds can be substituted in the walnut finish.

$75.00 Reduced from $104. Chiffonier, 38 inches wide.

$98.00 Reduced from $152. 51-inch dresser, with large mirror. One upper drawer has sliding tray.

We are closing out a few of these sets to make room for a new pattern.

They are a famous maker's standard construction, their sturdy interior work, smooth-sliding drawers and velvet finish rivalling that of the most expensive.

All the pieces are of generous proportions, the dresser being fifty-one inches wide, with a large mirror and spacious drawers.

We offer them in either of two colors, a dusty walnut shade or antique brown mahogany finish. In both the banding is finished in a lighter tone.

CALUMET HARBOR HELD LAKE-GULF WATERWAY KEY

U. S. Action Hinges on City, Guernsey Says.

Construction by the city of the Lake Calumet harbor would greatly influence the government to act favorably upon the proposed deep waterway from the great lakes to the gulf, and also assure the Chicago sanitary district of an uninterrupted flow of 10,000 cubic feet of water per second from Lake Michigan, according to a statement yesterday by Alderman Guy Guernsey, chairman of the council committee on harbors, wharves, and bridges. The committee has asked a $600,000 appropriation in the next budget so that work on the harbor may begin next year.

McKellar Points Need.

Urgent need for construction of adequate wharves and bridges at Chicago was pointed out last week by Senator McKellar of Tennessee of the deep waterway committee of the United States senate. A deep waterway from New Orleans would be useless without these improvements, Senator McKellar declared.

"The fact that the city actually has undertaken construction of this harbor will, of course, indicate to federal authorities Chicago's interest in waterway development. This will make it easier to procure federal approval of a fixed bridge policy for the Chicago river," Alderman Guernsey asserted.

The $600,000 requested appropriation would be sufficient, Mr. Guernsey added, to dredge a 200 foot channel through the entire length of Lake Calumet basin, and to fill in the street and railroad elevations which encircle it. The estimated cost of the entire project is $3,500,000.

Better Facilities Needed.

"The government already has dredged the Calumet river from Lake Michigan to the turning basin just outside Lake Calumet," said Mr. Guernsey. "Our work will begin at the turning basin. Many large industries are clustered along the river and better facilities are badly needed."

Mr. Guernsey said that by a grant of the state made in 1921 the city will own all filled in land, which may be eventually sold or leased.

WEDDED FIFTY YEARS

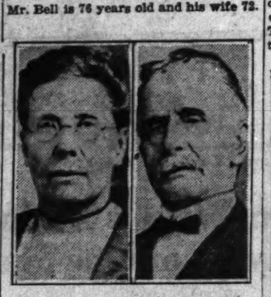

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bell.

Nine children and sixteen grandchildren last night attended the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bell of 3527 Evergreen avenue. Mr. Bell is 76 years old and his wife 72.

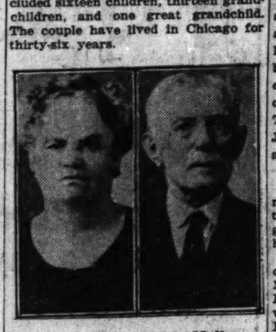

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Flannery.

Four generations were present when Mr. and Mrs. Michael Flannery, each 69 years old, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in their home at 8436 Gilbert court. Those present included sixteen children, thirteen grandchildren, and one great grandchild. The couple have lived in Chicago for thirty-six years.

MR. AND MRS. R. HOPPE.

Mr. and Mrs. Reinhart Hoppe on Friday celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding. The celebration took place in the St. Luke's Evangelical Lutheran church and following the religious exercises the guests gathered at the Hoppe home, 3422 Bosworth avenue. Mr. Hoppe is 79 years old and his wife is 73. They were born in Germany and came to the United States in 1881. They have lived in this city for thirty years.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Malkan.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Malkan of 646 East 51st street, who were married in Sweden half a century ago, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Tuesday night with an informal reception in the red room of the Hotel La Salle. They have lived in Chicago thirty-one years and have four children and four grand children. Mr. Malkan is 75 years old, while his wife is seven years younger.

KELLOGG FACES BITTER ATTACK OF PROGRESSIVES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27.—Appointment of former Senator Kellogg of Minnesota as American ambassador to Great Britain will be the signal for a Progressive onslaught on the Coolidge administration.

Senators Wheeler of Montana and Frazier of North Dakota today announced their intention of opposing Kellogg's confirmation in the senate.

"I am sorely disappointed in what seems to be the almost certain appointment of Kellogg," Senator Wheeler said. "Instead of selecting a man representing the sentiment of the great northwest, the President is picking up castoff timber in Kellogg."

Progressives of the Wheeler-Frazier type deeply resent the selection of what they term "a repudiated politician" for a high diplomatic post. Kellogg was defeated for reelection to the senate in 1922 by Henrik Shipstead, a Farmer-Laborite, in a three cornered race.

G.O.P. WOMEN TO HEAR McKINLEY AND McCORMICK

United States Senators Medill McCormick and William B. McKinley will speak before the Illinois Republican women's convention, which will be held in the Playhouse instead of in the assembly room of the Fine Arts building, as first announced. Senator McCormick will talk on his European visit. Other speakers will be former Gov. Frank O. Lowden, former Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman, and Miss Harriet Vittum. The program originally planned for Thursday will be given Friday afternoon in the assembly room of the Fine Arts building. The public is invited.

HUNT 3 BANDITS AFTER SERIES OF HIGHWAY RAIDS

Cause Killing of Horse in One Holdup.

Chicago, north shore, and county highway police were searching the north shore last night for three youthful bandits who had stolen at least one automobile, participated in two robberies, and caused an accident in which a horse was killed.

The first victims were W. S. Jameson Jr., 984 Sheridan road, Glencoe, and two young women riding with him. The trio was approached by the bandits, who crashed into Jameson's car, forcing him into the curb and causing him to hit a horse and wagon. Then the bandits proceeded to rob Jameson and his companions, taking all the former's money.

Forced to Walk to Aid.

The robbery occurred on Ridge avenue, about four miles west of Evanston. Jameson, who was cut by flying glass, was forced to walk to Evanston hospital for treatment.

Shortly afterward the three bandits overhauled Gilbert Christensen, 6200 Norwood Park avenue, and Dudley Moore, 6764 Oxford avenue, as they were driving on Waukegan road near Dempster street. Christensen and his companion were robbed of the car in which they were riding and of their pocket money.

Five boys between 16 and 18 years of age were captured yesterday by police as they were fleeing in a stolen motor truck. The boys confessed they had planned a robbery, intending to use the truck to carry away loot.

Held Up at His Home.

Bernard Schaefer, 4340 South Michigan avenue, reported that he had been held up as he entered his home and robbed of a diamond ring valued at $300.

Two armed Negro bandits held up a fish store at 253 East 35th street, robbed the proprietor, Leonard Fishman, of $70 and took $200 from the cash register.

COOLIDGE IS MUM ON ST. LAWRENCE DEEP WATERWAY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—President Coolidge is proceeding with his customary caution with regard to the St. Lawrence deep waterway project in which the middle west has become so intensely interested.

In a conference today with ex-Representative Chalmers of Ohio, he declined to commit himself on the project, although his predecessor, President Harding, was an ardent advocate of the plan.

Mr. Chalmers, who was one of the leading promoters of the proposed waterway in the last session of congress, called at the White House to lay the situation fully before the President and if possible win his support. Mr. Coolidge listened attentively but did not say anything to indicate whether he would push it.

Whether the President will carry out the policy of his predecessor in this matter or whether he will be influenced to inaction by the opposition in the east remains problematical.

When congress convenes in December efforts will be made to revive the project and some pointed questions concerning the new administration's attitude probably will be asked by middle western members.

Chalmers stated that he was confident Canada would soon take action favorable towards the waterway project.

SHUBERTS TO FILE $10,000,000 SUIT AGAINST KEITH

New York, Oct. 27.—[United Press.]—The Shubert Vaudeville interests will bring suit Monday for $10,000,000 damage against the B. F. Keith Vaudeville exchange.

A bill of complaint filed in the United States District court charges restraint of trade and conspiracy.

Treble damages are asked: $2,000,000 damages by reason of the conspiracy; $1,000,000 by reason of loss of rental; $100,000 owing to the unlawful acts with respect to performers who were taken away by the defendants, and $250,000 by reason of advertisements inserted in a trade paper.

The complaint alleges the Keith and Orpheum circuits blacklisted performers who appeared in theaters other than theirs and that they wielded such influence they were able to prevent other theaters from obtaining many acts.

Many performers actually refused to work in Shubert theaters because of their fear of the Keith and Orpheum circuits' blacklists, it is charged.

Widower, 73, Weds Widow 35 Years His Junior

NOTED CORONADO COAL CASE WON BY MINERS' UNION

$2,222,000 Suit Decided by Federal Judge.

Fort Smith, Ark., Oct. 27.—Judge John C. Pollock in federal District court today directed the return of a verdict for the defense in the re-trial of the suit of the Coronado Coal company and other coal producing companies in the Hartford Valley fields against the United Mine Workers of America.

He instructed against awarding damages aggregating $2,222,000 on the ground that the coal companies had failed to prove their contention that the national organization of the mine workers had entered into a conspiracy to interfere with the interstate movement of nonunion mined coal.

Not in U. S. Jurisdiction.

Judge Pollock held that the plaintiff companies had failed to establish jurisdiction in the federal court under the terms of the Sherman anti-trust law, on which the suit was based.

Today's action, terminating a hearing which had been in progress for two weeks, was the second victory for the mine workers on the same ground, the Supreme court last year ruling that in the first trial, which resulted in a verdict of approximately $700,000 for the plaintiff, the coal companies had failed to establish a basis for the suit under the Sherman law, and ordered a new trial.

Basis for the Lawsuit.

The suit was brought on the contention that destruction of property during labor disturbances incident to the strike of miners in 1914 resulted in the hampering of mining operations in the properties of the coal companies to such an extent as to interfere with interstate traffic in nonunion mined coal.

Judge Pollock held that the evidence had failed to establish a direct purpose to interfere with interstate commerce but, rather, a conspiracy to prevent the operation of the mines.

QUITS WIFE, TWO CHILDREN; WEDS SPRINGFIELD GIRL

Despite the fact that he has a wife and two young children living at 3223 South Union avenue, Lester Brock, 24 years old, six weeks ago drove his taxicab to Springfield, Ill., met Miss Veronica Robish, 19 years old, a telephone operator, brought her to Chicago and married her, according to charges made by Mrs. Dorothy Brock yesterday.

Brock and Miss Robish were arrested on Friday night by Detective Sergeant Thomas Mangan and yesterday Brock was held at the detective bureau on four charges: bigamy, non-support of his wife and children, contributing to the delinquency of Miss Robish, and violation of the motor laws. He will appear in the Court of Domestic relations on the first three charges and in Speeders' court on the fourth.

"I love Lester and he loves me and I want him, even if he had forty wives," Miss Robish declared after her arrest.

Citing that many millions of dollars are invested in elevators and other industries along the right of way of the Chicago, Peoria and St. Louis railroad the Illinois Commerce commission yesterday began acton to block public auction of the road as authorized by a recent order of the Circuit court of Sangamon county. The court ordered the road sold on Nov. 8.

FILM FANS DON'T GO, 1 REASON FOR CLOSING STUDIOS

Exhibitors Forced to Take Anything, Is Claim.

New York, Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Another fact which may have had a bearing on the cessation of work in the Famous Players-Lasky studios until production costs come down came to light today.

Attendance at motion picture houses has decreased in the last two years, it was brought out in testimony before the federal trade commission in the investigation to determine whether the Famous Players-Lasky corporation has created a movie trust.

The fact came out during the testimony of Charles L. O'Reilly, president of the Motion Picture Theater Owners' Chamber of Commerce of New York.

Two Resolutions Presented.

Mr. O'Reilly presented two resolutions on the motion picture situation here as adopted by his organization on Aug. 2.

One of them declared that the reduction in attendance was caused by the fact that motion picture distributors compel exhibitors to buy pictures without reviewing them. To get certain pictures the exhibitors have to buy certain others of lower class. The public does not patronize these to the extent that it does first class pictures.

Studios Dark in Hollywood.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 27.—The Famous Players-Lasky studios here and on Long Island closed their doors today in accordance with Jesse L. Lasky's decree of ten weeks of inactivity.

Th Robertson Cole studios are still closed, following a change in managers, and are not likely to reopen for some time. The Schulberg studios are also closed for an indefinite period.

Finest Corned Beef and Cabbage in the World—a BIG portion—only 50c at the North American

If you like corned beef and cabbage—and most everybody does—the North American Restaurant is the place to get it. Here, for only 50 cents, you get a portion big enough to satisfy the huskiest appetite, and a portion that will please your palate.

We buy and cook only the very finest corned beef that can be procured—select briskets that command a premium all over the world. Never do we use any tough, stringy rump beef. And the cabbage is tender, sweet Holland cabbage—not the big, tough leathery heads.

And this is another example of the big savings you make when you dine in this common-sense "serve-yourself" restaurant. If you don't happen to want corned beef and cabbage we have a host of other good things to eat—all at prices equally low.

Blue Point Cocktail: 7—not the usual half-dozen—on the half shell with cocktail sauce 25c

Oyster Stew: An individual stew made with New York Counts and containing a bottle of Certified Milk and a big piece of butter with crackers 40c

Fried Oysters: 7 big New York Counts fried to your order, with tartar or chile sauce or ketchup 40c

Halibut and Peas: A big portion—usually enough for two 40c

Fried Scallops: A big portion with tartar or chili sauce or ketchup 55c

Fried Premium Chicken: Breast of Premium Milk-fed Chicken, with bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce 65c

Tenderloin Steak: A thick, juicy tenderloin with French fried potatoes and lima beans 85c

And our breakfast specialties

Honey Waffles: With 3 strips of bacon or sausage, butter and pure maple sap, or honey 25c

Bacon and Eggs: 2 fresh eggs, fried in butter and 4 strips of bacon 30c

The big Idaho baked potatoes are back again.

This is one restaurant where children are welcome!

TRAINING

A college football team wins its big game by a series of spectacular plays. They are worked so faultlessly that the people in the grand stand look upon them as easy and matter of fact.

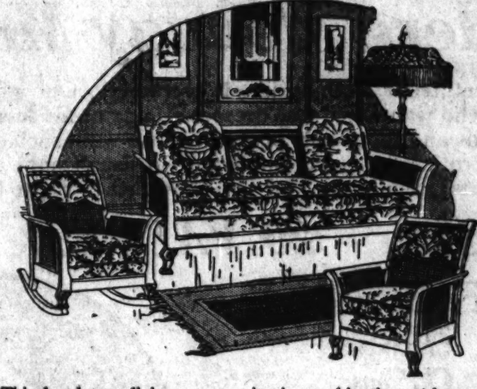

There are but few in the cheering stands who realize the self denial, the hours of patient drill and study that were required to win the Big Game. The triumph was but the logical outcome of careful training built upon sound fundamentals.

The same is true in business—the greatest of all games. To be able to properly play the game, the individual or firm must have a stable understanding of fundamentals and a long, hard training in business practices.

The training tells.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Using a powerful running attack, mixed nicely with a driving line offense varied occasionally by forward passes, Illinois defeated Northwestern yesterday at the Cub baseball park, 29 to 0, and climbed another notch higher in its quest for the western conference football championship.

The downstaters had that drive so necessary to success in football. Not only did the ball carriers run with plenty of power but the interferers had so much momentum that they rolled over on the ground several times after hitting Purple tacklers. It was this aggressive style of play which not only resulted in Northwestern's defeat but which wins many football games.

In the successful execution of the running and line attack Harold Grange and Earl Britton were the principal ground gainers. The former was used to skirt the ends or cut back off the tackles after the attack had been spung behind unbalanced lines and Grange received the ball on a direct pass from the center. Britton was used to hit the line on either straight drives or he was sent across on split plays. For variation he was sent back on the weak side.

Drive Purple Defense Back.

When the Purple secondary defense moved up to meet this style of attack forward passes were used, with the result the Purple secondary players were forced back to protect on forward passes. This clever mixing of the attack proved too much for the Purple, who battled until the final whistle blew to stem the tide of defeat. In addition to its running and forward pass plays Illinois played the game absolutely safe by kicking whenever in doubt of making required yardage, and Britton lifted the oval out of danger several times on third downs.

Northwestern showed plenty of aggressiveness early in the battle and on one occasion came close to scoring. The Purple resorted to the kicking game frequently after straight plays failed to make much headway and its forward pass attack failed. Capt. McElwain tried hard to get loose around the ends or off the tackles and so did Wolfe, while Wienecke made a few yards through the visitors' line. On the whole, however, Illinois' defense was too stubborn and invariably Northwestern was compelled to punt on either third or fourth down.

Fumbles Are Frequent.

Both teams fumbled frequently and one of Illinois' blunders in this respect nearly resulted in a Purple touchdown. Late in the opening quarter Grange fooled one of McElwain's punts and Wolfe scooped up the ball on the Orange and Blue 30 yard line. The Purple back, with a clear field to the goal, stumbled, and before he could recover he was nailed by three Illinois players. Had Wolfe been able to hold his feet and run for a touchdown the score undoubtedly would have given Northwestern fresh spirit.

At this point Northwestern made a strong bid to score. McElwain made 7 yards in two attempts, and then a forward pass was tossed off the Purple left wing. Lander of Northwestern and Grange of Illinois went up in the air together for the ball, but the Orange and Blue back came down with the oval and then sprinted 20 yards for a touchdown, the second of the game.

Grange Scores Touchdown.

At the start of the game Illinois did not look any too good. Capt. McMillen of the visiting team won the toss and elected to defend the south goal. Capt. McElwain chose to kick off. Richards, the Orange and Blue right end, fumbled the first kick off, and there was a free for all scramble for the oval, which was finally recovered by Richards. Illinois then started what appeared to be a certain march to the Purple goal, but Grange fumbled on the locals' 13 yard line and Taylor dropped on the oval for Northwestern. An exchange of punts then followed and left the ball on Northwestern's 25 yard line in its possession.

The Purple elected to punt, but Crawford, the Illinois right tackle, not only blocked the punt but dropped on the oval for his team. At this stage of the game the oval rested close to the side line on the west side of the field, 20 yards from the Purple goal line. A shift play calling for an unbalanced line was called and the ball passed directly to Grange. The Wheaton boy

ORANGE AND BLUE TURN PURPLE MUD BROWN

Harold ("Red") Grange, Illini sophomore half back, from Wheaton, was the combination wildcat and wild deer who personally scored three touchdowns on Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite's Purple eleven in the opening minutes of the game yesterday at Cubs park, and then retired for the remainder of the afternoon. Here he is shown punching through the Northwestern forward wall from the 5 yard line for the third count of the day after having skirted the sidelines and passed the ball down to within scoring distance. After tossing the Purple over the fence into the discard by this play he was called off the field by Coach Bob Zuppke. Grange's scoring was made possible by perfect interference and the ability to keep his legs going after he had been tackled. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

CHANCE COMING EAST WITH "FEW DEALS IN MIND" FOR WHITE SOX

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 27.—Frank Chance today confirmed his acceptance of the managership of the Chicago White Sox baseball team next season. Chance added that he was "tickled to death" at the prospect of returning to Chicago. "It's just like going home," he said.

The "peerless leader" will leave for the east in a few days with a "few deals in mind."

Chance declared that he would not stand in the way of any opportunity that Eddie Collins might have to become a team manager, providing a good man could be obtained to succeed him.

The Inquiring Reporter.

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

THE QUESTION.

What do you think of Frank Chance as manager of the White Sox?

Where Asked.

Lincoln park.

The Answers.

Sidney Rosenbloom, 3236 Lawrence avenue, student—They picked my choice for manager. Frank Chance is popular with the Chicago fans; he knows the game; he knows the men. He is the right man to lead the players on that team from local champions to national champions in 1924.

Joseph Kreten, 1753 Cleveland avenue, chauffeur—Frank Chance was the most logical man they could have chosen for the position. I was glad to see him selected because he is well liked by all the players in the American and National leagues, and also because he is a fighting manager.

J. B. Matthew, 225 East Huron street, student—I consider the selection of Frank Chance as a happy solution of the Sox managerial problem — a problem that every one has been interested in for some time. Chance was the logical man. We can expect him to put out a winning team.

Charles Jackson, 1501 Dempster street, Evanston, carpenter — Well, he's a clean cut fellow; he'll give the boys a square deal, we are sure of that. He'll also give the fans real baseball, another thing the public is always thankful for.

John Anderson, 2237 Sherman avenue, Evanston, carpenter — If baseball fans had been given a chance to have chosen the White Sox manager by popular election, Frank Chance would have been put into office, he's that popular. Tell Larry Gravet that he did some good work.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Defense held the upper hand on Camp Randall today and Wisconsin and Minnesota struggled to a scoreless tie in the annual homecoming battle that drew 30,000 to the Badgers' historic gridiron.

The Gophers, weighty and shifty, proved far more formidable than expected. In fact, Coach Spaulding's eleven gave their Cardinal clad foes a battle all the way, and when the final whistle blew the honors were equally divided. The Gophers were able to boast that they hadn't been driven inside their 25 yard line except on a punt, and the Badgers were equally effective when it came to defending their half of the chalk lined territory.

Goal Kicks Go Wide.

With the defense predominating as it did, the battle lacked the luster that would have come from a decision one way or the other. Both teams tried passes as a means of advancement, but with no marked success. Both hammered the hostile lines hard and often, but the results were discouraging in so far as big gains were concerned, and the attempts at end runs were few and far between.

The few times in the battle when the huge crowd, the largest ever packed around the Badger field, waited with abated breath was when the contending foes endeavored to strike a decisive blow by means of a goal kick. On three occasions the Badgers resorted to this mode of attack and three times they missed by the widest of margins. The Gophers tried it once, but the result was similar.

Below and Taft Fail.

The Cardinal made it's first bid for three points shortly after the game got under way. Capt. Below was called on to try his skill but the goal was exactly fifty yards distant and the ball fell short on Minnesota's ten yard line. Late in the period the elusive Martineau tried a drop kick from the 35 yard mark but the oval didn't even come close to the upright goal posts.

When the second period started and an exchange of punts had given Wisconsin a slight advantage, Taft dropped back and tried to host the fifty yard placement that Below had failed to negotiate. The result was the same, the ball being short of the mark. In the third period Below made a second attempt, this time from the 22 yard line, but the placement was blocked and Merrill recovered for Minnesota on his own 35 yard line.

Badger Threatens to Score.

With the field soft from recent rains and the footing none too certain, the flashing backs boasted by both elevens were handicapped to a certain extent,

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

RECOGNIZING ATHLETICS.

IN these days when a certain class of educators are bemoaning the publicity given and the importance attached to football contests where crowds of thrilled spectators overtax even the largest stadiums to enjoy the gladiatorial spectacle, it is refreshing to find one college president heartily in accord with, and not disturbed by, the spirit of the times.

In the programs distributed at the Michigan-Ohio State game appeared this signed statement by President M. E. Burton:

"To Our Guests: The University of Michigan welcomes with joyous enthusiasm all of its guests today. In particular we greet warmly the friends and allies of Ohio State university. We believe with you in the spirit of play, in wholesome recreation, and in true sportsmanship. These things are vitally related to individual and national welfare.

"It would be very easy to misinterpret this great spectacle today. Some critics will say, 'So this is higher education!' Such a person forgets that this is not all that a university does. It is merely one of its by products! Only on one or two afternoons a year do we see such a stimulating sight as this. It is a powerful agent in unifying large and growing institutions. It gathers up and weaves together into one strong bond the loyalties and enthusiasms of virile, throbbing youths. Such results are highly to be desired."

Bravo, President Burton!

The Welcome Guest.

O, the guest came out to the summer home
When the frost was on the boat
(For boats, as you know from the Burbank show,
Take the cold and frost as a treat).
And he sat him down at the white-tiled sink
While the hostess made a pie,
And he opened up raids on the knives' rusty blades
Till the glare dulled the sight of the eye.
O, the guests are many who leave their signs

On the leaves of the house guest-book—
The poet, the singer, the latest joke-bringer,
The fellow who says he can cook!

When Words Fail You.

Dear Wake: Walter spent the evening before the "homecoming" explaining the intricacies of football to Phyllis, about to see her first game. He even got down on the floor to illustrate the players. Next day at the stadium, as the teams lined up for scrimmage after the kickoff, Phyllis shrilled, "O, Walter, when do they make a home run?" O. T.

"Good" Is Too Conservative.

It was bedtime. My esteemed wife set me to work getting a pitcher of water, straightening a picture, hanging up her coat, getting her a book she'd mislaid, raising the windows, putting some "trees" in her shoes, and putting her hats away in a box. As I was preparing to retire, she instructed me to unpack and put away a box of laundry and it was then I pulled this one: "Did you ever hear the old adage: 'Man works from sun to sun; woman's work is never done, because she doesn't do it.'" The last phrase is mine and I'm rather pleased with it. Is it good? E. S. W.

Columbus, O., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Ohio State's spirit and fight of championship days, bowed before the powerful drive of Iowa in a 20 to 0 defeat, here today. Out done in every department of play except punting, the Buckeyes took their place among the second division teams of the Western Conference.

Forty thousand fans gathered in the massive stadium to watch Ohio stage its comeback and atone for the severe trouncing received by Michigan last week. They walked behind Ohio's 100 piece band playing "The Old Gray Mare She Ain't What She Used to Be." After the game Coach J. W. Wilce walked off the field alone, his head up and looking straight ahead.

Everything Wrong.

Three things played a goodly part in the defeat of the Buckeyes. Their tackling wasn't sure, their line offensive and end running was crushed and team play was disorganized. But for Hoge Workman, Iowa would have piled 30 points on the Wilce men.

Iowa's man handling, powerful offensive ripped the line almost at will. Fry, Scantlebury, Graham and Fisher rode over Ohio with nearly regular persistence. They possessed two speeds, fast and faster, and the latter applied when they reached the line of scrimmage.

Capt. Boni Petcoff played a great game at right tackle for Ohio, but Hancock at left tackle for Iowa played a better one. These two men furnished one of the features of the battle. Hoge Workman of Ohio and Henry Fry of Iowa were the outstanding backfield stars. Fry seemed another Gordon Locke. He hit the line and kept going until three men stopped the power of his legs.

Passing About Equal.

Statistics show how decisively Iowa outplayed the Wilcemen. The Hawkeyes made 24 first downs to Ohio's 8. On passes the Hawkeyes completed 6 of 13 attempts for a total of 157 yards. Ohio completed 8 passes of 32 attempts for a total of 155 yards.

Iowa backs, on foot and overhead, gained 472 yards to Ohio's 176. In the second quarter the Buckeyes gained one yard more than the Hawkeyes, the totals being 94 and 93. It was here that Ohio staged its most effective playing. The Buckeyes' forward passes were gaining ground. But Iowa, after a consultation, solved the offensive and soon Otte of Iowa was intercepting the passes that were meant to score touchdowns.

In punting, Workman of Ohio out-

Little Purdue, feared for thirty years by Stagg, gave him and the big Maroon crowd reason for fear yesterday. Although the game, fighting team from Lafayette finally succumbed to the forward passing and crushing attack of Chicago, 20 to 6, it gave the thrill of the year to the crowd of 18,000 that braved the threat of rain.

Hurling back the bone crushing plunges of John Thomas, and twice stopping the Maroons on or inside the five yard line in the first half, the Boilermakers cut loose a desperate, brilliant assault in the second quarter of the game, and ripping the Maroon line, and executing one of the imitation Notre Dame delayed runs, it scored first and held the Maroons to zero in the first half.

End Rooters Agony.

Then in the second half, the Maroons, hard held at times, but using Zorn in a line battering attack that wore down the Indianians, twice saved themselves by completing clever forward passes which resulted in touchdowns and ended the agony of the Maroon rooters, who had visions of Stagg's fears coming true at last.

The final touchdown, which came in the last quarter, was the only one the Maroons could gain by their tackle crashing methods of assault, and at that time the Black and Gold team was shattered and its defenses weakened.

The Maroons developed nothing new in attack in the first half, depending upon straight football and using Jolin and Harry Thomas to pound on the tackles.

Purdue Scores First.

Again and again John Thomas ripped through for long gains, but inside the five yard line the Maroons were stopped dead and Thomas hurled back. Wellman, Purdue end, was the hero of the first half. He took the ball, circling around from his end, and while two Purdue backs plunged into the line got free around Chicago's left end and was dragged down five yards from the line.

There the Maroons stiffened the defenses and held, and although they threw back the attack and forced Purdue to kick, the Indianans recovered the ball inside the five yard line and finally hammered it across.

In midfield from the start of the second half the Maroons showed their superiority in strength, and sent Zorn smashing through the Purdue tackles for long gains. As they hammered their way to within striking distance the Boilermakers' defenses stiffened again and on the fourth down, within easy kicking distance, Stagg's man executed a beautiful play.

Triple Pass.

A triple pass, from Fyott to Zorn to Abbott, was caught by Abbott right on the goal line and he dived backward for the score, and when the goal was kicked the Maroon rooters breathed again.

The second touchdown was a direct

LLOYD ROHRKE, MAROON GUARD, LIKES NUMBER 13

Lloyd Rohrke, guard on the University of Chicago grid squad, strongly believes in the infallibility of No. 13 as a bringer of good luck. Rohrke played all through last season with this number, and by his request was given No. 13 before yesterday's tilt with Purdue. Though Rohrke was kept out of the game yesterday by an injury, he was injected into the fray long enough to boot a kick after Chicago's first touchdown, which gave the Maroons a one point lead over the Boilermakers.

Dollars of Profit

This is the story of a newcomer in the ranks of advertisers, told by himself. Mr. Hugo Brown, 809 N. Cicero, is a dealer in canaries. Here is his statement:

"Until this summer I never used advertising. The Tribune solicitor persuaded me to try it. I used two small Want Ads each week for a month. I had been selling half a dozen cages and two or three birds a week. During the first month of advertising I sold 700 wooden training cages, 125 wire cages, and several times as many birds as I ever sold before in a month. This was the first month of the dull season, too. Now people come from all over Chicago and suburbs as a result of these Tribune Want Ads. They have done wonders for my business."

result of the forward pass, and again the Maroons resorted to it on fourth down, after the Indianans had braced and held them. The pass carried them within easy striking distance, but it required a series of desperate smashes before Purdue's front wall yielded and let Zorn over.

There was nothing to it after that. Purdue, worn down by its desperate efforts to stop the smashing attacks, wilted steadily, and after Zorn had smashed through and made the game safe, Stagg finally got his sophomores into the game and made frequent replacements, ending with a practically fresh team.

Tragedy in Game.

There was tragedy mixed with the victory for Frank Gowdy, playing one of the best games of his career, fighting at every step and leading in opening the holes through which the Maroon backs were diving, knew that his mother was dying.

The boy received word that his parent's condition was critical just at the start of the game, and, knowing he could not get a train until after the contest, he played through it desperately. In the dressing room, while preparing to hurry to her bedside, he broke down.

The play of the Boilermakers in the first half was brilliant, but the brilliancy was only in flashes, and sustained only during their hard drive down the field when they seemed inspired. But for the breaks of luck they might even have achieved victory. These breaks of luck favored the Maroons slightly, for although there were three for the Maroons and two for the Boilermakers the ones favoring the Maroons were more timely.

Early in the battle Law muffed a kick and Purdue recovered inside the Chicago twenty yard line, but some one had been offside and the ball was called back. On two other occasions Chicago fumbled and recovered. The break that favored Purdue most was in recovering the ball inside Chicago's five yard line after a try for goal from placement had been blocked.

Stagg's Play Simple.

The attack of the Midway team was a simple, smashing one, and evidently it was not intended to uncover much of the Stagg strategy, but with the score against them and the third quarter half over, the Maroons were compelled to expose some of the forward passing that they were saving for Illinois.

Except for their long drive down field, which resulted in their score, the Boilermakers could not gain consistently. They tried an imitation of Notre Dame's famous snake sneak run, and got away with it once, but were unable to gain by it again.

Chicago gained almost three times as much yardage, and more than twice as many first downs, yet was extended to win at all.

Zorn was the individual hero although King played a masterly game and Abbott sprang into fame by his brilliant work, in handling forward passes, and in line plunging after the defense massed to stop Zorn.

then swept the Purple left end and the wide side of the field for the first touchdown of the game. Britton added the extra point by booting a goal from placement. Shortly afterward Northwestern's golden opportunity to score was ruined by Grange's recovery of a Purple forward pass and his run for a touchdown.

Grange Scores Again.

Following the next kickoff and exchange of punts, the ball rested on the Purple's 40 yard line in Illinois' possession as the quarter ended. When play was resumed, Illinois started its running and overhead attack. Grange made several dashes and then tossed a forward pass to Rokusek, who was stopped on the Purple 5 yard line. On the next play Grange slid off the Purple left tackle for a touchdown, and Britton failed to kick the goal.

Shortly after the next kickoff, Taylor of Northwestern and Rokusek of Illinois were put out of the game for rough play. There was unsportsmanlike conduct on the part of both, and when they started to demonstrate their hatred for each other they were quickly banished. Punting featured the play of both teams for the remainder of the half, which ended with Illinois on the long end of a 19 to 0 score.

Zuppke Uses Reserves.

Coach Zuppke started several new men at the beginning of the second half or third quarter. About the middle of the quarter, when the oval rested in middield in Illinois' possession, Britton tossed a forward pass to Muhl, who was stopped on the Purple 30 yard line. The Illinois backs then punctured the Purple line and drove off the tackles for short gains until the ball rested on Northwestern's 6 yard line.

At this stage of the game, Northwestern displayed its best defense of the game. Four times, the Zuppke backs tried to reach the goal line, but when the pile was untangled after the fourth down the ball rested one foot from the counting line and Horton immediately punted out of danger. The Illinois backs were again held at bay and then Britton stepped back to the Purple 35 yard line and booted the ball squarely between the posts from placement. The quarter ended shortly afterward with the score 22 to 0, in favor of the Zuppke warriors.

Grange, Britton Big Stars.

Both teams made several substitutions in the fourth quarter when Illinois scored its final touchdown. The score was the result of a forward pass—Hansen, who had replaced Britton at full back, to Muhl after the Orange and Blue had worked the ovel into Purple territory. It was a neat toss, off to the side and down the field. After he caught the oval, Muhl cut back through the Purple secondary defense in splendid fashion. Neither team threatened afterward although Northwestern tried hard to get men loose on forward passes which were nicely covered by the Downstaters.

For Illinois Grange and Britton were the outstanding stars, although Capt. McMillen and Crawford played pleasing football. H. Hall handled the team in a pleasing manner and there was little or no changing of his plans of attack. The men followed the ball closely and their general play was featured by that aggressiveness which is so essential to success in football.

Purple Boys Fight Hard.

Capt. McElwain of Northwestern played well, as did Wienecke and Wolfe. Magnuson, A. Kelly and Horton did excellent work in the line, while the punting of Britton, McElwain and Horton was consistent, and the kicks in most cases handled splendidly by the catchers.

Despite overcast skies, a gathering of at least 32,000 flocked to the ball park. Bands of both institutions furnished entertainment before the game and between the halves. Owing to the dark day it was agreed to start the game five minutes earlier, and play full periods of fifteen minutes each.

MICHIGAN ROLLS AGGIES IN MUD BY 37-0 COUNT

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Michigan used two complete teams and easily defeated Michigan Aggies today, 37 to 0. The Wolverines had little trouble plowing through the Aggie line in the first half, Full Back Miller carrying the ball most of the time. In the first quarter Miller took the oval on seven successive plays through the line, and made a touchdown after starting a march from the Aggie 30 yard line.

In the third quarter the Farmer line stiffened and held the Wolverines twice under the Aggie goal posts.

In the fourth quarter the Yost men opened with end runs and passes, scoring three touchdowns. Vick, Parker, and Grube, second varsity backs, romped around end and tore through the line at will.

At only one time in the game did the Aggies get dangerous. Making three first downs in the third quarter, they carried the ball to the Wolverine 15 yard line, but there Uteritis intercepted a pass and stopped them.

HERO OF THE CRIMSON

EDDIE MAHAN.

To Eddie Mahan Goes Honor of Being Harvard's Greatest

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

During the many years football has been played at Harvard, names of hundreds of warriors have been indelibly inscribed in the Crimson hall of football fame.

Like other institutions of the section, Harvard was among the first to take up American college football and, although it has had its off years, the Crimson has generally finished near the top and when defeated its teams went down fighting.

New Heroes Born.

For years Harvard has had Yale and Princeton for its respected rivals and the battles waged between elevens of the Big Three are too well known for comment at this time. In practically every struggle in which Harvard engaged either Princeton or Yale, a new Crimson hero was born. It was not so much the player who was expected to do the right thing at the proper time as it was the warrior who was entirely overlooked by the opposition.

At the same time there have been members of Harvard teams who lived up to their reputations not only in the preliminary struggles but in the annual battles with Yale and Princeton as well. Regardless of the results of early season contests, a Harvard victory over either Yale or Princeton or both always makes the season at Cambridge successful. In fact, the Crimson elevens are generally pointed for the game with the sons of Old Nassau and Old Eli.

Pioneers of Football.

Harvard is one of the pioneer institutions of football in the country and seldom overlooked whenever anything pertaining to the king of college sports is mentioned. In order to bring about this country-wide recognition and commendation, there must have been something to make Harvard so well known, and this something was the wonderful players who were members of its team.

Next to Yale, Harvard has placed more men on All-American teams than any other institution in the country. Some of its heroes have been chosen for as many as four years, while many were selected for three.

Daly Great Quarter.

The name of Charley Daly, a wonderful quarter back placed on the All-American team for three years, will live in Harvard's football history as long as the game is played. Charley played in the days of the mass play and five yard rule. He was an excellent field general, clean and clever handler of the ball, and sure in catching punts. During his days he was one of the respected players on the Crimson team. Then there was Cumnock, who played in the late '80s, to be followed by Cranston, Lee, Hallowell, Newell, Dean, Corbett, Lake, Waters, Lewis, Brewer, Cabot, Dibblee, Campbell, Cutts, Kernan, Graydon, Bowditch, A. Marshall, Knowlton, Hurley, Burr, Squire, Wendell, Minot, Fisher, McKay, Felton, Pennock, Hardwick, Trumbull, King, Dadmun, Casey, Woods, Brown, and many others, including that wonderful kicker, Charley Brickley.

But when the achievements and ability of this galaxy of stars is carefully weighed, Eddie Mahan, the full back chosen for the All-American teams of 1913, '14, and '15, is awarded the honor of being Harvard's greatest football player. Eddie was a terror to the opposition offensively and defensively. As a line plunger he ranks with the greatest in history, while his strong interference had a lot to do with making gains of his teammates possible.

Mahan Always Gained.

Mahan was of the type who seldom failed to make yardage necessary for a first down, and his terrific driving power on slants off the tackles made him hard to stop. Unlike a number of full backs, Mahan could run the ends as well as drive off the tackles or plunge into the line.

FORTUNE SMILES ON CRANE; BEATS ELMHURST, 6 TO 0

Crane college and Elmhurst battled through three scoreless quarters at Elmhurst yesterday, but in the final period fortune favored the Chicagoans and they won, 6 to 0. With four minutes to play, Crane linemen blocked Elmhurst's attempt to punt from behind the goal line, and Bryant fell on the ball for a major counter. Crane relied for the most part on straight football, Elmhurst using numerous passes, one system being about as successful as the other until Crane's big effort in the final frame. Lineup:

but a dry gridiron probably wouldn't have brought a different result. The biggest drawback because of the conditions under foot was noticeable in the punts, and the much vaunted shoes of Martineau and Taft, incrusted in mud as they were, performed erratically.

More than once the kicks of this pair went high into the air to come down out of bounds for gains of only 10 or 15 yards. However, there were a few healthy kicks among the bad ones.

The one time during the battle when it seemed as if something was about to happen came at the start of the fourth period. After an exchange of punts Wisconsin got the ball on its 35 yard line. Holmes then ripped through tackle for 9 yards and Taft hit the line for first down on his 48 yard mark.

Intercepted Pass Breaks Attack.

It was the second time during the fracas that first down had been accomplished by the Cardinals. Holmes followed with a 7 yard dash around left end, and Harris drove through the line for first down on Minnesota's 40 yard mark. The Badgers smashed at the line some more, but with indifferent success, and then a pass was tried. Taft heaved to Irish and it was first down on the Gophers' 19 yard line.

The Badgers appeared to be on their way. Losing no time, they buried another pass through the air, and its completion probably would have proved the turning point of the scoreless battle, but Abramson leaped up and intercepted it on Minnesota's 25 yard line. A moment later Martineau kicked to Wisconsin's 48 yard line, and the Badgers never made another start.

JACKSONVILLE OUTCLASSED AS BRADLEY WINS

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—In a dull game today Bradley college, despite loss of two back field stars, won from Illinois college of Jacksonville, 27 to 0. Bradley made its first touchdown with straight football, its second in a like manner, and its last two by forward passes. In the last quarter the game degenerated into a passing melee, with an entire new Bradley team. Lineup:

Tribune A. A. to Stage Big Cross Country Race Nov. 17

In pursuance of its program to stimulate interest in amateur athletics, among the growing generation particularly, The Tribune A. A. will conduct a cross country run in Humboldt park on Nov. 17. A course not shorter than four miles nor longer than five will be laid out and planned so that obstacles of some sort will be encountered by the contestants during the course of the run.

For years there has been a dearth of long distance runners in the middle west. This, in part, is due to the fact but few long races are staged and those interested in the long grinds given but little encouragement. In past Olympic games, American teams have not been composed of runners who held their own with stars of other nations and Yankee athletes always had to score heavily in other events in order to make up for their weakness in the longer runs.

Obstacle Race.

It is with the thought of interesting more growing athletes in long distance running that The Tribune has decided to stage this year's cross country run and make it an annual affair. Unlike the marathon run or other long distance events, this year's cross country event will be held over hard and soft courses. The contestants will run on the hard pavement for part of the distance and on the soft turf at other times. They may be made to wade through part of the lagoons and jump obstacles.

Every effort will be made to make it a cross country run in every sense of the word. In England, where such events are held annually, contestants must wade through creeks and swim narrow streams. They are compelled to jump fences and run over rough country. It is such racing that enables England to be represented by such sterling long distance performers.

Inducement for Boys.

As The Tribune's cross country run will be made an annual affair, it will serve as an inducement for the growing boy to develop into a long distance runner. This event will always be held on the third Saturday in November so that athletes can judge their periods of training accordingly.

The event will be sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic union and all athletes must be registered with the association to compete. Competent officials will be selected to conduct the race, which will start at a point to be announced later, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The course will be properly marked with different colored flags denoting the turns and obstacles. Checkers will be placed along the route to see that each runner covers every foot of the distance.

No Restriction on Numbers.

No restriction is placed upon the number of runners any club may enter, but only the first five will count in the team total. The first runner to finish will be rewarded with one point, the second with two points, and so on until the last runner has passed the finish line. The team having the smallest total will be declared the winner and the one with the second smallest total will be given second place, and so on until all teams are graded.

A trophy will be given to the team scoring the lowest number of points. Each of the first ten runners to cross the finish line will be rewarded with a Tribune solid gold medal. The next ten runners to finish in order will be given Tribune silver medals, and the next ten will be presented with bronze Tribune medals. In other words, there will be thirty individual awards in addition to the team trophy.

Must Join A. A. U.

In further pursuance of its policies to lift the burden of expense from the athletes' shoulders no entry fee is required. The only obligation is that every runner must be a member of the A. A. U. The complete entry will be turned over to the chairman of the registration committee for verification before the run starts.

Individuals who intend to enter are requested to clip the entry blank appearing on the sports pages and mail it as directed. Coaches, athletic directors, or others in charge of teams may make entry by writing the names of their teams on one piece of paper and mailing it to Walter Eckersall, Tribune Sporting Department, after signing it, to denote the runners will compete under the colors of the various clubs.

The entries will positively close on Nov. 12 and one will be accepted after that date.

Shadow of Great Buckeye Team Loses to Iowa, 20-0

classed Fisher. Both punted six times and Workman averaged a five yard advantage.

Iowa's scoring came in the first half and the last quarter. In the first frame the Hawkeyes carried two terrific drives down the field in which three and four first downs were made respectively. These drives placed the ball on the 15 and 12 yard lines, and both times Fisher kicked a placement field goal.

This seemed to give the visitors a wilder passion to get more points, and another drive after an exchange of punts placed the ball on Ohio's 12 yard line. Coach Howard Jones saw that Fry had borne the brunt of the drive and sent in Scantlebury, a fleet footed back, to take his place. On three plunges the latter was over with the first touchdown of the game.

In the third quarter Ohio held with a tenacity that brought cheers from the stands. The Buckeyes were playing a steady game, with the line working in unit. But Iowa would not be denied. Five more times it drove the ball into Ohio's territory by forward passes and plunges, and each time Ohio held back the kick to put it over.

Another Touchdown.

Finally in the fourth quarter Otte cut into the backfield, hit Workman just as he was about to pass and caused the Buckeye to fumble the ball. Hancock scooped it up on Ohio's 40 yard line and ran for a touchdown. The morale of the Buckeyes then slumped a few notches.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Sensational running by Dan Miller, speed king of the crack Notre Dame back field, featured Notre Dame's 27 to 7 victory over Georgia Tech here today. It was the third decisive win by Rockne's team in intersectional combat within three weeks.

Miller ran 59 and 22 yards for touchdowns and broke through for another dash of 88 yards and a marker, which was not allowed because of a penalty. He also took a 30 yard pass from Crowley.

The brilliant Rockne back field, aided by remarkable interference, continued its record. Stuhldreher, taking a punt on his 35 yard line, dodged two Tech ends, reversed the field, and swung back behind nine blue jerseys for 41 yards until he was forced out of bounds. Maher, who substituted for Miller in the final quarter, repeated his stunt against Princeton when he went off left tackle and cut back through the field for 48 yards and a touchdown.

Crowley Scores Touchdown.

Crowley's dashes in the first quarter culminated in the first score when the slippery Irish eel slid several yards through the line for the marker.

Layden, who was hurt at Princeton, played part of the game, but was kept under cover and used principally for punting. He averaged 53 yards on eight punts.

Wyckoff, Tech full back, fought the battle for his team. Back of the Tech shift, he plunged the line for good gains. His passes to Allbright, Williams, and Gardner in the third quarter led to the only Golden tornado marker, which Wyckoff tallied when he went over right tackle. He kicked the goal after the touchdown, but his punting throughout the game was only fair.

Crowe Looms as Star.

The end play of Crowe, another Notre Dame youngster, provided the defensive feature of the game. Time after time he ran down under Layden's long punts and was waiting to smear Hunt. His speed took him back of the line for many tackles which threw Wyckoff and the other Tech backs for losses.

Tech, though beaten decisively, played dangerous ball throughout the contest and made three first downs through the Rockne line, four on passes and one on a penalty.

ST. VIATOR BEATS MILLIKIN, 28 TO 0

Decatur, Ill., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—St. Viator had little trouble in winning from Millikin here today, 28 to 0, putting over a touchdown in the first minute of play and using the entire second string backfield and many line reserves during the fourth quarter.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—The Princeton and Navy elevens battled to a 3 to 3 draw in the new Baltimore stadium this afternoon in a thrilling contest.

Both teams fought hard and took advantage of the breaks as they came. It was only a brilliant and desperate dash in the final quarter that saved the Middies from defeat, for the Tigers had held the 3 point lead since the middle of the second quarter and had repeatedly thrown back the seemingly certain attacks of Coach Folwell's service men.

Preceding the game 2,500 midshipmen gave an impressive drill, marching out on the field in rank formation and parading across and out the east gate, where they made a wild rush for the three sections of seats which had been reserved for them in their cheering section.

The outstanding feature of the Princeton play was Van Gerbig's kicking.

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the President, was among the 40,000 fans who saw the battle. Mrs. Coolidge sat in a box on the Navy side of the field. She was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Ratchesky of Boston.

DARTMOUTH WINS OVER OLD RIVALS FROM HARVARD

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 27.—The Dartmouth Indians trampled their ancient foe, John Harvard, in the dust today, 16 to 0.

For the first time since 1907, and for only the third time in twenty-five years, the Indians will go back to Hanover with a win from Harvard.

Hayes and Hall were the outstanding stars for the Green. When a gain was needed it was Haws who carried the ball. It was Haws who went over for the first touchdown, giving Dartmouth a lead from which they were never headed. Haws it was that kicked the goal for a point.

After the game the Dartmouth students and rooters raised riot. They poured onto the field and a long snake dance wound around the gridiron headed by the famous Dartmouth student band. Hats were tossed high in the air over the goal posts and cluttered the field when the rooters marched off. Lineup:

50,000 FANS SEE YALE WIN OVER BROWN BY 21-0

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Playing defensively practically throughout today's game, Yale scored twenty-one points and blanked Brown in their twenty-eight annual gridiron clash. Fifty thousand persons, nearly half of whom were members of boys clubs of Connecticut, enjoyed the entertainment which the Yale Whiffenpoofs featured by a burlesque of the Sew-Papyrus race between the playing halves.

Yale's historic line running game was conspicuous by its absence, the Elis making every score possible by either running back punts or forward passes, or falling on a fumbled ball. Yale stopped Brown from scoring twice in the final period, taking the ball away from the Bears on the 15 yard line and later on the 3 yard line when the Elis recovered a Brown fumble.

La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Chicago Y. M. C. A. fell hard before the strong La Crosse Normal squad, 12 to 7. Neither team displayed any flashes, but played straight football all the way. La Crosse's scores came in the third and fourth quarters, one after a blocked punt in the third, and the other by straight football in the fourth. Chicago scored in the fourth with a 20 yard pass to Robinson, who ran 30 yards for the score.

PRAYING COLONELS GO DOWN FIGHTING, 24-0

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Arising to unbelievable heights, Penn overwhelmed the famous Centre college team on Franklin field today, 24 to 0, before 42,000 wildly excited football enthusiasts.

It was the worst defeat that Charlie Moran's "praying colonels" have ever received. Not even Harvard, with its great teams, was able to prevent the colonels from scoring in the three intersectional games played in the Cambridge stadium.

The spectacular field goal of Hughie King of Kalamazoo, Mich.; touchdowns by Dern, Capt. Homer, and Thomas, with extra point goals by Hamer and King gave Penn its joyous two dozen points, and at the end of the game, which almost closed in a free for all when Penn roughed a Centre end and the colonels started to swing fists right and left, Penn staged a celebration that fairly shook the Penn stadium.

PENN STATE TIES WEST VA., 13-13, AS BATTLE ENDS

New York, Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Two great football teams, undefeated this season, pitted their strength against each other in Yankee stadium today and battled to a 13-13 tie when West Virginia university and Penn State college met after a lapse of fourteen years. They waged one of the bitterest battles of the year. It was a game full of thrills which brought 35,000 spectators to their feet time after time with spectacular plays.

Wilson, Johnston, and Bedenk starred for Penn State, Johnston's 50 yard run being one of the features of the game. West Virginia excelled in its aerial attack. Simons showed great skill in his passing.

CARNEGIE TECH HANDS PITT 3D DEFEAT, 7 TO 2

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 27.—Carnegie Tech became "city champions" today by pluckily defeating the heavier Pitt eleven, 7 to 2. It was Pitt's third straight defeat of the season.

The only touchdown of the game came in the third quarter when Robertson, Tech quarter back, carried the ball over, following a long forward pass from Tech's 35 yard line. Pitt's only score was a safety in the second quarter.

BEARS AND BUFFALOES FIGHT IT OUT TODAY

Buffalo All-Americans will stage their annual game with the Chicago Bears at the Cub park this afternoon. The Bisons could almost be called the "Ex-Captains," as six of the eleven regulars are old time leaders of college teams. The kickoff is scheduled for 2:15.

The Bears have strengthened their attack by the addition of Full Back Knop, former Illinois player, and his 200 pounds of weight are expected to make a dent in the All-American line. His coming to the Bears gives them an all Illinois set of backs, "Dutch" Sternaman and Lanum, the halves, being former downstate stars.

Buffalo plays an open type of football, and has two great receivers of passes in Ends Carberry and Urban. The latter when with Boston college scored a couple of touchdowns one afternoon that upset Yale's eleven. While Hughitt, ex-Michigan star, usually does the passing, Full Back Flaven, ex-Georgetown, also is skilled in this department, and often handles the throw.

Culver, center for Buffalo, was with Syracuse three seasons, and was a feature of the Nebraska game last fall. The guards are "Swede" Youngstrom, Dartmouth's All-American, and one of the greatest blockers of punts the game has produced, and Morrissey. The probable lineup:

BEARS.		BUFFALO.
R. E.	Hals	Carberry
R. T.	Usher	Nash
R. G.	Garvey	Morrissey
C.	Trafton	Culver
L. G.	Anderson	Youngstrom
L. T.	Healey	Gulian
L. E.	Haupy	Urban
Q. B.	Bryan	Hughiti
R. H.	Lanum	Traynor
L. H.	Sternaman	Holleran
F. B.	Knop	Flaven

WILLIAMS SLIPS 10-0 BEATING TO COLUMBIA TEAM

New York, Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Williams won its fifth game of football from Columbia today on Baker field by a score of 10 to 0, and evened a standing of twenty-three years with the Morningside Heights college. It was also the third straight victory for the New Englanders over the New Yorkers. Ten thousand saw the game.

Lineup:

WILLIAMS [10].		COLUMBIA [0].
R. E.	Fisher	Wagner
R. T.	King, Cole	Smullen, Jackson
R. G.	Frost	Raphael, Schopp
C	Barnes, Clark	Brodi
L. G.	Farnsworth	Schlmlitzach, Walder
L. T.	Surabian	Price
L. E.	Healy, Pease	Tilhonen, Neale
Q. B.	Popham	Pease, Echavaria
R. H.	Bourne, Beede	Sprague, Johnson
L. H.	Gregory, Chandler	Koppisch, Kriasel
F. B.	Clement	Kirchmeyer

Touchdowns—Fisher. Points after touchdowns—Fisher. Goal from field—Fisher. Referee—Darby [Syracuse]. Umpire—Hennessy [Brown]. Linesman—Kirberger [W. and J.].

KNOX WINS 14-7; COE LACKS PUNCH

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Knox upset the dope here today and defeated Coe, 14 to 7. Knox scored first in the second quarter on a 44 yard run by Dicus, and again a few minutes later when Verner scooped a fumble and sprinted 25 yards.

UNBEATEN CARDINALS TO BATTLE DAYTON IN "GRUDGE GAME" TODAY

COMISKEY park today will be the scene of a football game that may prove a real grudge battle when the unbeaten Cardinals will attempt to run their streak to five straight at the expense of the Dayton Triangles in a National Professional league game at Sox park. The Cardinals are bent on hanging a trimming on the Ohioans, who last year defeated them. Kickoff is set for 2:15.

Several new plays have been built around Johnny Mohardt and Jack Crangle of the Cardinals. The Triangles will present a strong battle front, tutored by Nelson Talbott, all-American star from Yale. Abbott, formerly of Syracuse, who appears at quarter back, is rated one of the best field generals in the circuit. He is supported at one half by Bacon, who hails from Wabash, while Ken Huffine, well known as a terrific plunger at Purdue, will perform at full back.

The ends are handled by former stars at Denison university, Thiele and Reese, while Hathaway of Indiana, and Sauers of Miami will be seen at the tackles. Hathaway, who was known as a wonderful kicker while in the Big Ten, is booting the ball in great form this season. The probable lineup:

CARDINALS.		DAYTON.
L. E.	Kiley	Reese
L. T.	Gillies	Hathaway
L. G.	Kois	Berns
C.	McInerney	Kinderdine
R. G.	Brennan	Beasley
R. T.	Leonard	Sauers
R. E.	Anderson	Thiele
Q. B.	Driscoll	Abbott
L. H.	Ring	Partlow
R. H.	Mohardt	Bacon
F. B.	Crangle	Huffine

MARQUETTE TRIUMPHS OVER BOSTON COLLEGE

Boston, Mass., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—A touchdown scored by Marquette in the last few minutes of play enabled the Milwaukee eleven to defeat Boston college, 7 to 6, here this afternoon. When Boston scored a touchdown on the westerners it was the first time Marquette's goal line had been crossed since Notre Dame made a touchdown in 1921. Lineup:

MARQUETTE [7].		BOSTON COL. [6].
R. E.	Fahey, Regan	Duffy, Harrison
R. T.	Luns	Donahue
R. G.	Butzen	Donahue, Linehan
C.	Kennedy	Larkin

SCOTCHMEN SEEK TOP OF SOCCER LEAGUE BY WIN OVER OLYMPIAS

Olympias and Thistles, the only undefeated teams in the major soccer league, will meet this afternoon at Cicero avenue and Roosevelt road, and a victory for the Scotchmen will put them at the top, as the Bricklayers, with whom they are tied, are idle.

The addition of Smith, Weir, and Gomorra to the Scotch team has infused additional pep into the attack.

Following is today's schedule:

MAJOR LEAGUE.

Swedish-Americans and Pullman at Riverview park; Thistles and Olympia at Cicero avenue and Roosevelt road; Sparta-Unions and Canadian club at 27th street and Kostner avenue.

CHICAGO AND DISTRICT LEAGUE.

British Legion at Harvey; Western Electric and Gary at 22d street and Kostner avenue; Chicago F. C. and Y. M. H. A. at 79th street and Drexel avenue; North Shores and Ulster United at Foster field, Evanston.

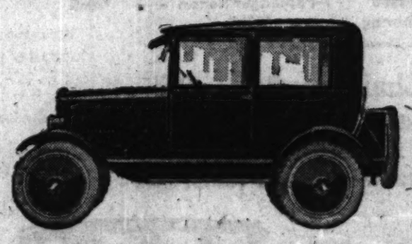

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE.

Swedish II. and Vienna F. A. at Winnemac and Robey; Victoria and Stura at Greenview and Wrightwood; Danish-American and Sparta II. at Humboldt park; Norwegian II. and Swedish III. at 46th and Fullerton avenues; Y. W. L. and Vienna II. at Winnemac and Robey [1 p. m.]; Drotl and Western Electric "B" at Washington park; Crane company and Danish II at 43d and Eskdale.

PEHL CUP.

Norwegian-American and Humboldt Park at 46th and Fullerton avenues; Scottish Blue Bell and Jugo-Slavia at East Chicago; Hungarians and Sparta III. at Winnemac and Robey; Sunflower and McKinley Park at Ogden park.

MILLION FOLKS IN U. S. PAY WAY TO GRID GAMES

Nearly a half million football fans watched fifteen of the leading games played in widely scattered parts of the United States yesterday. It is believed to be a new record for a single day's attendance.

This total, added to the attendance at the 200 other collegiate games in various parts of the country, undoubtedly boosted the grand total of spectators at collegiate games in America yesterday to well over a million.

East Draws Most.

The games at Yale and Harvard, which showed paid attendance of about 50,000 at each place, attracted the greatest crowds. Iowa at Ohio, and the Illinois-Northwestern game in Chicago drew the largest middle western attendance, while Stanford and the University of Southern California at Palo Alto had the most patronage of games played on the Pacific coast.

That it was a record breaking football day is best shown by the 300 or more scores printed in THE TRIBUNE.

The Nation-Wide Record.

Attendance at the leading games follows:

Brown at Yale	50,000
Dartmouth at Harvard	50,000
Centre at Penn	42,000
Iowa at Ohio	40,000
Navy-Princeton at Baltimore	40,000
Illinois-Northwestern at Chicago	32,000
Minnesota at Wisconsin	30,000
Stanford-U. of So. Cal., at Palo Alto	30,000
W. & J. at Detroit	25,000
Penn State-W. Virginia at N. Y.	25,000
Georgia Tech at Notre Dame	20,000
Purdue at Chicago	20,000
Michigan Aggies at Michigan	20,000
Whittier-S. Cal. branch at Los Angeles	20,000
Nebraska at Missouri	11,000
Total	455,000

AMES PILES UP 54 TO 7 VICTORY

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 27.—Iowa State's heavy, smooth running machine completely swamped Washington university here today, 54 to 7. Out of twenty-seven passes attempted by the Iowans, fifteen were completed, advancing the ball 214 yards.

The word of the Behn brothers and of Capt. Young were outstanding features.

BUTLER WINS, 2 TO 0, WHEN WABASH LOSES FIELD GOAL BY A FOOT

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—In one of the hardest football struggles ever witnessed in Indianapolis, Butler college's eleven defeated Wabash, 2 to 0, here this afternoon.

A bad pass on the Wabash 25 yard line rolled over the goal line, where Duffin fell on the ball for a safety in the first period, and this was all the scoring of the game.

In the final quarter Wabash missed a chance to win when Singleton's place kick from the Butler 25 yard line went a bare foot to the left of the uprights. Lineup:

WABASH [0].		BUTLER [2].
R. E.	Wise, Curds	Paul
R. T.	Ault	Strole
R. G.	McFarland	Hungate

Safety—Duffin. Referee—Ray [Illinois]. Umpire—Daniels [Harvard].

CALIFORNIA NIPS WASHINGTON, 9-0, IN HARD TUSSLE

Portland, Ore., Oct. 27.—University of California defeated Washington State college here today, 9 to 0. A drop kick by Witter from the 20 yard line near the end of the first quarter and a blocked kick in the fourth, which Mell fell on back of the Cougar goal line, was the extent of the scoring. California made its only drive in the fourth but lost the ball on a fumble when within one-half yard of the goal line.

SO. CALIFORNIA DOWNS STANFORD

Stanford University, Cal., Oct. 27.—Southern California fought its way to a hard earned 14 to 7 victory over Stanford in a Pacific coast football conference game here. Holly Adams, California center, after making the first score for his team by blocking a punt and recovering the ball near the enemy goal line in the second period, repeated his performance in the fourth period and won the game for the Trojans.

OAK PARK TASTES DEFEAT AT HANDS OF GLENVILLE, O.

BY WALLACE ABBEY.

Glenville High school eleven of Cleveland hit Oak Park like a hurricane in the first quarter yesterday, scoring the two touchdowns which gave it a 13 to 7 victory over the Orange and Blue in the intersectional battle on the suburban field. After the first seven minutes, during which the Ohioans ran wild, Coach Winters' men held their own well, but were never able to overtake the speedy Buckeye champions.

A few minutes after opening of hostilities, following an exchange of punts, Quarter Back Christopher of Glenville tossed a thirty yard pass to Left End Trivison on the Oak Park 25 yard line. The wingman, almost without opposition, trotted over the goal line.

Score Again.

Before the gasping fans, who are not accustomed to such things at Oak Park, had settled well in their seats, Full Back Jack McGrath, on the first play after the kickoff, took the ball and circled ledt end for 75 yards and the second touchdown.

That run was a beautiful exhibition of the interference. McGrath, not a fast runner, was never touched by an Oak Park tackler, nor was his bodyguard at all molested. He was protected to the limit.

Oak Park's touchdown came in the second period as the result of a "good break." Newburn kicked off to Glenville and the ball grazed an Ohio player, who could not grab it. Lewis tumbled down on the ball for the Orange and Blue and it was first down with only one yard to go for a touchdown.

Newburn Goes Over.

Three smashes at the Cleveland wall brought no gain, but on the fourth down, almost in desperation, Newburn, who was inserted in the game despite injuries, drove through for the points. Hall booted the goal.

Oak Park's efforts to win in the final half were nothing short of heroic, although glaring faults were seen in the play. The Glenville line held well, however, and when the contest ended Oak Park was being driven into the shadow of its own goal.

McGrath was half the show for the winners. He was in every play and when he hit the line it gave sometimes for gains of 20 yards. The same eleven men did all the playing for Glenville, Christopher, Ellicak, and Donkie being the other backs who served.

Lights Win.

In the curtain raiser the Oak Park lights downed East High of Aurora, 38 to 0. Clement making two touchdowns and breaking through the line for long gains. Lineup:

MARSHALL TAKES CLOSE TILT.

A long pass, Greenwald to Adelstein, accounted for Marshall's 7 to 0 victory over Morgan Park at Morgan Park yesterday. The teams fought grimly until Marshall took the lead in the third period, and even then the Parkers didn't give up. They once worsed the ball to within a foot of Marshall's goal line, but failed in the final crash for points. Lineup:

BLOOM BLOCKS KICK TO BEAT MORTON, 13-6

With the score 6 to 6 and sixteen seconds to play, Bloom eleven yesterday blocked a Morton kick on the 30 yard line. It rolled over the goal line and Right End Forest fell on it for the touchdown which gave the South Chicago team a 13 to 6 Suburban league victory over Cicero on the losers' field. Before the final break the elevens had struggled on about equal terms, although Morton seemed to have the advantage on offensive. Lustig had scored a touchdown for Bloom and Quarter Back Crabtree had counted 6 points for Morton. During the game Morton scored eighteen first downs to six for Bloom. Lineup:

DE LA SALLE BEATS ST. PATRICKS.

St. Patricks went to defeat before the onslaught of De La Salle, 26 to 14, at Normal park yesterday. Taylor was De La Salle's best agent in line smashing, Houlihan and Cunningham looking good on end runs. De La Salle lightweights also were victors, defeating St. Patricks 38 to 0.

St. Philip Wins Easily.

St. Philip held St. Cyril scoreless at Justin park, running up a 25 to 0 victory by dint of the keen defensive talent of Ryan and Westinmeyer and the power of Coach McNally's backs.

LOYOLA LEADS LEAGUE BY WIN OVER ST. MEL

Loyola academy went into first position in the Catholic league race yesterday as a result of its 10 to 0 win over St. Mel at Loyola field. Loyola lights defeated the St. Mel ponies, 7 to 0.

Loyola's first counter came in the second period, when Jim Mooney booted the oval between the goal posts from his own 22 yard line. Loyola counted ten when Hardy, tackle, crashed through to block a St. Mel punt and fell on the ball back of the goal line. Mooney kicked goal.

WHEATON PREPS WIN "LITTLE SEVEN" TITLE; BEAT NAPERVILLE, 21-6

WHEATON high school clinched the "Little Seven" title yesterday by defeating Naperville, 21 to 6, the victory arousing the Naperville rooters to such an extent that a gang of them attacked Irving Glosut, Wheaton tackle, after the contest and beat him into insensibility, according to friends of the player. The game was played at Naperville and gives Wheaton five straight victories.

LAKE VIEW UPSET.

Lake View high gridders took their first league licking at the hands of Austin, 6 to 0, yesterday at Logan Square in a north section battle. Voltsch of Austin scored the lone touchdown by returning a punt forty yards through the entire Lake View team.

LANE RUNS OVER CRANE GRIDDERS BY 34 TO 0 SCORE

Lane Tech eleven went into the lead in the north division title chase yesterday when it downed Crane, 34 to 0, at Pyott park, the losers never getting within thirty-five yards of the Lane goal.

Knop scored the first touchdown after a series of bucks and a moment later Rane raced around end for 65 yards and the second counter. Bahusky and Tortorelli also came in on the scoring, the former catching a punt and tearing 50 yards through a broken field and the latter scoring two touchdowns on end runs.

Fanning did good work for the losers, while Bahusky, Puckelwartz, Knop, Tortorelli, Rane, and Boerschinger were the star performers for Lane.

Now Harder Than Ever To Find Its Equal

Even before the price reduction the improved Chalmers Six necessarily compelled consideration among the finer sixes.

Powerful, speedy, brimming over with dash and spirit, distinguished by an air of trim, sophisticated smartness, it captured public imagination.

Now, how much greater is the appeal at the new low prices. For in value measured by all the essentials of fine motoring there is nothing to excel the improved Chalmers Six. In fact we believe that when you examine it and ride in it you will declare there is nothing on the market today to equal it.

15 TEAMS OF SIX DAY BIKERS GET STARTED TONIGHT

SIX DAY FACTS

PLACE—The Coliseum.
START—9 o'clock tonight.
FINISH—11 o'clock Saturday eve. Nov.
SPRINTS—Ten two mile sprints at 2 a. m., 9 p. m., and 10 p. m. Final heat of race is to be thirteen sprints. The position gained in mileage at the end of the race is determined by the number of points won in the sprints.
DIRECTOR—John M. Chapman of New York.
REFEREE—Frank L. Kramer, chairman of the contest board of the National Cycling association.
JUDGES—Walter I. Rodewall, chief judge; Bob MacDonald, Jimmy Archer, Ray Schalk and Harry Mendel.
ANNOUNCER—William C. Hinn.
CHIEF SCORER—Isaac Malvey.
CLERK OF THE COURSE—James Hunter.

"Sleepless Week" for thousands of Chicago's cycle racing fans will start at 9 o'clock tonight in the Coliseum, the occasion being the eighth international six day race.

Fifteen teams, the strongest field that has ever started in a race here, will go to the post promptly at 9 and will race until 11 o'clock next Saturday night. Three times each day, at 2 p. m., 10 p. m., and 2 a. m., there will be ten two mile sprints for points, these points to count in determining the final winner.

For this first time in the history of six day racing in Chicago the dyed-in-the-wool fans won't be allowed to spend the whole week in the Coliseum. Following a conference with Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen, officials in charge of the race announced that the Coliseum will be closed every morning from 6 to 8 o'clock. While the riders are resting the building will be thoroughly cleaned and aired.

Much Interest in Race.

Never before has there been so much interest in a six day race here. This is due primarily to the fact that thirteen new racers, all internationally famous, are making their first appearance here. The fans are unable to "dope" the winners as they have usually done in the past.

There are going to be plenty of surprises for the fans this year and the fireworks are liable to start as soon as the race gets under way. Brocco and Coburn, the popular favorites in the race, jumped away from the field and gained two laps in the first hour of the last six day race in which they were teamed at Madison Square Garden.

There are other teams ready to try the same thing. The American riders usually like to loaf along for a day or two and ride themselves into top form. The Europeans, however, believe in going from the start, and it is a safe bet that the jamming will start before the race is many hours old.

Chicago Has Team.

Chicago's own team of Kockler and Stockholm will be a strong pair all the way. Both have been improving all the time. Another team which is being given consideration is the Grenda-McBeath combination.

A team that is liable to upset the dope at any stage of the game is that of Declerck and Beckman. The latter is the strongest rider in the race and also has enough speed to enable him to get away from the field if he can get the proper break in the luck. Declerck, a Belgian who has lived in Chicago for the last few years, has improved to such an extent that he will be dangerous all the way.

The city council has constituted itself into a reception committee for the race, and Mayor Dever probably will be on hand once or twice during the week. The following teams are entered:

Peter Moskops and Peter Van Kempen, Holland.
Alfred Grenda, Tasmania, and Alex McBeath, Australia.
Ernest Kockler and Carl Stockholm, Chicago.
Linz Tonanis and Fernario Ragnoro, Italy.
Fritz Bauers and Henry Tietz, Germany.
Harry Kaiser, New York, and Fred Spencer, Plainfield, N. J.
Maurice De Wolfe and Harry Stockbynch, Belgium.
Maurice Brocco, Italy, and Willie Coburn, Kearney, N. J.
Reggie McNamara, Australia, and Harry Horan, Newark, N. J.
William Hanley, San Francisco, and Eddie Madden, New York.
Francesco Verri, Italy, and Cesare Debesta, Belgium.
Jean Chardon, France, and Ali Nefatti, Senegal.
Maurits Declerck, Chicago, and Anthony Beckman, Secaucus, N. J.
Lucien Louat, France, and John Fairick, Newark, N. J.
Percy Lawrence, San Francisco, and Joe Ropsky, Bohemia.

Plenty of Thrills.

The largest crowd that has yet attended a sprint meet preceding the six day racing turned out last night to get a look at the new stars. They also got plenty of thrills. In the first heat of the mile team match race Peter Moskops, world's champion, tried to come through on the pole in the last lap and was knocked down by Reggie McNamara. Referee Frank L. Kramer slapped a $10 fine on the big Hollander for taking the pole.

Another smashup came in the two mile open for the amateurs when eight of them were scattered over the track on the north bank after two riders hooked handle bars and fell at three laps to go. Augie Benson of the Merry Garden A. C. was the only one injured.

Fans Get Surprise.

The Australian pursuit race was a surprise to the fans, but not to the training camp experts, for Maurice De Clerck of Chicago and Anthony Beckman of Secaucus, N. J., defeated Maurice Brocco and Willie Coburn. The teams started from opposite sides of the track, and it only took the winners one and one-half miles to overtake and pass their opponents in 2:58, considered good for this style of racing.

Summaries of last night's special introductory racing program:

One mile match race—Won by McNamara and Madden; Grenda and Verri, second; Moskops and Van Kempen, third. Time, 2:16.

Half mile handicap, final heat—Won by Ernest Kockler [165 yards]; Joe Ropsky, second; Ferrario Ruggero, third; Carl Stockholm, fourth; Fritz Bauer, fifth. Time, :54.

Two mile open, amateur—Won by Edward Spitzer; George Kulp, second; Stanley Wheelwright, third; C. Blazsak, fourth. Time, 4:13.

Fifteen mile, open—Won by Grenda; McBeath, second; Hanley, third; Horan, fourth; McNamara, fifth; Stockholm, sixth. Time, 26:58.

Twenty mile team race, amateur—Won by John Arens and Alphonse Verienten, Belgian-American A. C.; George Kulp and Peter Rosenthal, Franklin A. C., second; George Fiskow and C. Dewind, Opal A., third; Edward Siegel and Carl Olson, Lincoln Park Boat club, fourth.

In the first heat of the mile team match race Peter Moeskops, world's champion, tried to come through on the pole in the last lap and was knocked down by Reggie McNamara. Referee Frank L. Kramer slapped a $10 fine on the big Hollander for taking the pole.

Another smashup came in the two mile open for the amateurs when eight of them were scattered over the track in the north bank after two riders locked handle bars and fell at three laps to go. Augie Benson of the Harry Garden A. C. was the only one injured.

Fans Get Surprise.

The Australian pursuit race was a surprise to the fans, but not to the training camp experts, for Maurice De Brocco of Chicago and Anthony Beckman of Secaucus, N. Y., defeated Maurice Brocco and Willie Coburn. The teams started from opposite sides of the track, and it only took the winners one and one-half miles to overtake and pass their opponents in 2:58, considered good for this style of racing.

Summaries of last night's special indoor racing program:

Five mile match race—Won by McNamara and Madden; Grenda and Verri, second; Hanley and Van Kempen, third. Time, 7:18.

MILWAUKEE DROPS OUT OF U. S. HOCKEY BODY

Cleveland, O., Oct. 27.—Several changes in the rules were advocated by delegates to the annual meeting of the United States Hockey association which opened here today and will continue until Monday.

The principal proposal was to change the periods from four fifteen minute periods to three of twenty minutes. This, it is said, would make the American game more like the Canadian game.

Announcement was made that Milwaukee had decided to quit the league and that Minneapolis, which has applied for membership, will take the place of the Wisconsin city.

Members of the Boston Athletic association team, which won the league championship, will form the nucleus of the team to represent the United States in the Olympic games. Before this team leaves for Paris it will play a number of games to raise the money for the trip overseas.

WEST CHICAGO WINS.

Full Back Fox, making five touchdowns, was the stellar light of Du Page county football yesterday, when West Chicago shut out Maine Township high, 46-0, at West Chicago. He followed the tallies with four boots for the extra points. Lineup:

GLENWILD TAKES ODD TILT FROM ONWENTSIA

Grenada, Miss., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—The most thrilling and hardest fought game of the series of five played here this week between Glenwild and Onwentsia poloists was played today on the polo field at the North Mississippi fair grounds, when the Glenwild four in the final few seconds of play brought home a 5 to 4 victory which decided the championship of the meet.

In the first chukker Calhoun scored for Glenwild, and Glenwild's second score came after a foul had been called on Breese when his horse collided with Borden's. Borden made the point. After an Interval in the second chukker Bud Rader drove through the posts from a difficult angle.

Early in the fourth Breese drove the ball between the uprights, marking up first goal for Onwentsia. Onwentsia's second goal came immediately after when Hayes tallied from a few feet in front of the posts. Breese made the tying goal on the next play. The fifth chukker saw Onwentsia jump into the lead in less than a minute, when Breese stroked through the posts. Byfield next got hold of the ball with his mallet, carried it more than half way down the field, but missed his stroke for goal by a few feet. He managed to count right at the start of the final chukker, however, again tying the score.

Byfield missed two shots for goal in succession near the close, but Bud Rader drove the ball through the uprights just as the bell sounded, ending the game. Lineup:

ONWENTSIA.		GLENWILD.
Grosvenor	1	Byfield
Breese	2	Borden [C.]
Hayes	3	Calhoun
Reynolds [C.]	4	Rader

Goals: For Onwentsia—Breese, 3; Hayes, 5; for Glenwild—Rader, 2; Byfield, Calhoun. Goal from foul—Borden. Referee—Laurence Armour. Timer—Coonley.

16 DIRT TRACK KINGS RACE AT ROBY TODAY

Sixteen of the fastest dirt track auto drivers in the middle west will face the starter this afternoon at Roby speedway in the Roby Gold cup, a dash of 50 miles, which carries with it the season's championship for the Indiana oval. More than thirty entries were filed. Eleven of these were eliminated in the trial heats held yesterday. Three more are to be dropped out in eliminations this morning, leaving sixteen, the track's capacity.

The field now includes:

Ed Wennestan, Cliff Woodbury, Percy Ford, George Beck, Sonny Talmadge, John Davis, Billy Harris, Claude Currey, Clarence Young, J. B. Gunia, Ralph Ormsby, Al Coty, Mickey Newman, Roy Nunaman, George Lyons, McKenna, Fuzzy Davidson, Gus Schroeder, and Doc Soefiel.

Two other races are on the card, a six mile wheel change novelty affair and a five mile consolation. The wheel change race has been limited to four drivers. Woodbury and Wenlestan are favorites in the trophy race because of points gained in other victories at Roby.

The first event will be sent away at 2:15.

MAROON-PURDUE HARRIERS TIE IN COUNTRY RACE

University of Chicago and Purdue cross country racers chased victory for three miles yesterday, and broke even, 23 to 23. Abbott of Purdue won the race in 15:41, but the Maroons kept their point total down by placing men well up in the list.

Abbott performed the first mile of the grass grown course in 5:11. Henry Rourke of Chicago led at the second turning, doing the two miles in 10:34, but was displaced by Abbott in the third mile. Vic Levine of Chicago was third with 16:11. Other men placed as Iowa:

Neff [P.], George [P.], Hasse [C.], Gross [P.], Beck [C.], Whitrock [C.], McNeal [C.], Richards [P.], Farley [C.].

Badger Harriers Win.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 27.—Wisconsin started off festivities of today's homecoming program by winning the annual cross country dual track meet from Minnesota university, 33 to 23. Brown of Minnesota finished first in the 5 mile run; Bergstresser, Wisconsin, second, and Piper, Wisconsin, third. The time was 26:16.3.

Naperville Beats Two Others.

Northwestern college of Naperville won the triangular cross-country run at Lake Forest yesterday participated in by Lake Forest college, Armour institute, and Lake Forest.

Kansas U. Wins.

Lawrence, Kas., Oct. 27.—Kansas university won the cross country race from the Kansas Aggies today by the score of 22 to 33.

"Show Me's" Run Ahead.

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 27.—Missouri university won the cross country run here today when five Missouri men crossed the finish line ahead of Nebraska runners. Lamar, first Missouri man to finish, made good time at 26:50 4-5.

2 AMATEUR BALL GAMES TODAY ARE SEASON'S FINALE

Two championship amateur baseball games will ring down the local diamond curtain this afternoon at Atkins and Freund park. Chicago Feds oppose the Fergus Boosters at 12 o'clock in the Liberty league, followed by a Chicago Boys' league clash between the Cascade Laundries and the Aces' A. C. at 2:15.

CROW SHOOTING.

THERE'S plenty of sport in shooting crows these days, although not many runners have gone after the black rascals in a way they can have a lot of fun out of it. Just the other day a fellow said to us: "I'll grant you it is sport, but how the deuce do you shoot 'em? You can't get within a mile of a crow if you have a gun."

True enough, Mr. Crow is as wary as they make 'em and beats it when a gun is shown, but there are several ways to outwit him. Were it not for the fact that this bird is one of the meanest, sneakiest, dyed-in-the-wool villains, his craftiness would win him a lot of respect in the bird world. But he deserves no mercy, judging by the recent investigations into his habits. The crow is death on the eggs of song and game birds, also on nestlings of these same birds and at times raises havoc with the sprouting corn of the farmer. Yet how many gunners "get" many of these rascals during the course of a season. We'll wager few are killed in comparison to the number seen every time one crosses a field.

But crows can be shot, and in numbers. The fellows that get 'em have taken the time to study the habits of the birds and learned how to outwit them. Some hunters lure the birds with large sized owls stuck up in trees or placed on poles in open places.

If you want to try this, secure, if you can, a great horned owl which is about thirty-six inches high. A crow can spot one of these boys a long distance. Of course, there must be some kind of cover in which you can keep hidden while bringing in the birds to your lure. The next thing is to learn how to imitate an owl. That means getting into the woods for a little lesson on handling the "Whoo-whoo—who-who" call of the owl. With a poor old stuffed owl and a little owl broadcasting the crows will come in and the gunner is assured of some wing shooting.

The usual method of hunting is by using a regular crow call. Some fellows put out decoys, too. Most any one can learn to use a crow call and, with a little practice, become a regular artist at the job. The local dealer can undoubtedly give you the first lesson in using it. A good stunt to practice when the first bird shows up is to try to wing it without seriously hurting it. Then stake this one out near your blind and you're sitting pretty for some fun. Using some of these tactics and a little patience, it is surprising how many birds a fellow can swat in a day. And every time one drops it means a bunch of song and game birds have a better chance.

WILLIE RITOLA KEEPS A. A. U. 10 MILE RUN TITLE

New York, Oct. 27.—Willie Ritola, Finnish-American distance star, today successfully defended his title as national A. A. U. ten mile run champion. Ritola spread-eagled his field, leading Jimmy Hennigan of the Dorchester club, Boston, by a half mile at the finish. Albert Michaelson, Cygnet A. C., Stamford, Conn., was third. The time was 51:04 1-5.

The national seven mile walk championship, the other title feature of the track and field meet at McComb's Dam park, was captured by Philip Grandville of Hamilton, Ont., Y. M. C. A. Michael Fekete, Pastime A. C., New York, was second, ten yards behind the winner.

Waller High Fails to Show at Mooseheart for Game

Mooseheart, Ill., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Mooseheart High school eleven waited in vain for the Waller High school team of Chicago today, the scheduled opposition failing to appear for the game.

MELLOR CARRIES I. A. C. COLORS TO ROAD RACE WIN

Chuck Mellor of Illinois A. C., yesterday won the first of a series of road races, planned to decide the state foot racing championship. Mellor won the four mile race at Kosciuszko park yesterday finishing in 20:22. Second to finish was Leo McNeil of the Unique A. C. who came across the line only twenty-two seconds behind Mellor in 20:44. O. M. Collar and C. L. Seaton of the I. A. C. were third and fourth.

The second race of the series, a seven mile event, will be run at Kosciuszko park on Nov. 3; while the final event, a ten mile race will be staged at the same park Nov. 10. Following are the leading finishers in the four mile race.

SCHLAIFFER AND ROCCO READY FOR FAST BOUT

Both Morrie Schlaiffer and Penny Rocco, who meet in one of three ten round bouts at East Chicago tomorrow night, will taper off their training this afternoon with light workouts. Schlaiffer boxed three fast rounds yesterday at the Arcade gymnasium and seemed in fit form. While this is Rocco's first bout with a top notch boxer, he has had enough coaching and experience to be ready for a big test. They are making 150 pounds at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The balance of the card will have Frankie and Herbie Schaefer meeting worthy opponents. Frank takes on George Butch, who made a credible showing against Joe Burman a short time back. Butch is a little fellow who always is crowding and should furnish Schaefer considerable trouble if the latter keeps on top of him. Reesie tackles Eddie Welsh of the south side at 122 pounds.

RIALTO IS FIRST IN RICH RACE AT BALTIMORE

Laurel, Md., Oct. 27.—Greentree stable's Rialto won the $25,000 Washington handicap, the big feature of get-away-day here, by four lengths. J. S. Cosden's Dunlin was second, two lengths in front of A. C. Bostwick's Spot Cash. The time for the mile and a quarter was 2:04.

Wise Counsellor Wins.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 27.—Wise Counsellor, for which J. S. Ward paid $66,000 a few weks ago, won the $10,000 added Queen City handicap for 2 year olds at Latonia today by three lengths. Battle Creek finished second and Bob Tail third. The time for the one mile was 1:39 3-5. Twelve horses started.

HARVARD, 0; NORTH SHORE, 0.

A tight battle ending in a 0-0 tie was yesterday's outcome when Harvard school and the North Shore Country Day school played at the latter's grounds. The home team had the better of the first half, but Capt. Howard Parland, and Spiegel almost gave the visitors a tally in the second half. Lineup:

'TERRIBLE TERRY' McGOVERN NEVER DID 'COME BACK'

BY FRANK SMITH.

The only fight that "Terrible Terry" McGovern engaged in during 1905—four years after he lost his title to Young Corbett—was one of the shortest battles of his hectic career.

It was with "Harlem Tommy" Murphy and the bout was staged in Philadelphia on Oct. 18, 1905. (McGovern lost his title on Nov. 28, 1901.) The Murphy bout lasted less than one round. Terry's other one round knockout battles being with Pedlar Palmer, Billy Rotchford, Patsy Haley, and "Freckles" O'Brien, all in 1899, when he was "coming," and with Jack Ward in the following year.

"Comeback" a Failure.

After the Corbett battle McGovern attempted a "comeback," only to be knocked out again by Young Corbett on March 31, 1903. In the meantime the "terrible" one whipped Dave Sullivan in fifteen rounds, fought a six round no decision bout with Joe Bernstein, and knocked out Billy Maynard in four rounds.

Following the last Corbett fight McGovern fought no decision bouts with Lew Rydell and Billy Willis, then beat Eddie Hanlon and Jimmy Briggs. These battles were in 1903.

McGovern loafed around until early in October, 1905, when he was matched with "Harlem Tommy" for a six round battle on the 18th of that month.

Records Show Hot Fight.

Here is the way the record book tells of that short and hot fight:

At the sound of the gong Terry leaped out of his corner like a sprinter leaving his mark. He was two-thirds of the way across the ring when he met Murphy, and he gathered himself into a fighting position as he flew through the air. Murphy drew down to his regular crouching pose, but that provided no defense. Terry opened a tigerish attack, ramming home a left jab with a sort of half swing full upon the stomach. Murphy doubled over still farther and clinched.

Fast as a bee stings, Terry's terrible right pounded Murphy's short ribs again and again, forcing him to break the clinch and to run across the ring. Terry kept right after him, burying his right with a pile driver's force in Murphy's abdomen as the Harlem boy raised his guard to the face on the left feint.

Then Murphy got set in a corner and swung a left for the jaw as McGovern came tearing in. Terry ducked and in his hurry to retaliate swung wild. That gave Murphy his chance to get set again, and he landed a left to McGovern's jaw, followed by a harmless right.

Terry Grins at Blows.

Terry only grinned and danced on his tiptoes as he gathered himself for another rip-snorting attack. Rattling Murphy with a left feint to the head Terry shifted and shot in a straight right on the chin that dropped the Harlem boy flat on his back.

Every throat in the building let out a yell of joy, because the little "king of the ring" had proved he could "come back." Hats of every description sailed into the ring.

Murphy was up in four seconds, but "Terrible Terry," poised for the attack, dropped him again with a left hook to the jaw and a stright right jolt

Murphy Hard to Down.

Murphy came up two more times before Terry stabbed him in the body with his right and plastered a left hook on the jaw that sent him rolling along the ropes like a barrel, his eyes glazed, his arms hanging helpless. Terry was after him, full of business, but Referee Jack McGuigan jumped between, pushed Terry away, and yelled in his ear, "You win!"

That fight about ended McGovern's career in the ring. In 1906 he fought Battling Nelson, Jimmy Britt, and Young Corbett no decision bouts. In 1908 he fought no decision battles with Young Loughrey and Spike Robson. Then he went the way of many other stellar lights of the fistic game

THE WOMEN HELP

Poster of the Izaak Walton league, to the banner of which the General Federation of Women's Clubs, representing more than 2,000,000 American women, have rallied in the fight to conserve the upper Mississippi river bottoms.

Ikes to Honor McCormick, Boost Preserve at Banquet

The Izaak Walton league's campaign to make a game and fish preserve of upper Mississippi river bottoms will be given a big boost on Nov. 5 when the Chicago chapter and the Illinois division will act as hosts at a banquet in the Cameo room of the Hotel Morrison to Senator Medill McCormick, who is to introduce the league's bill in congress.

The affair is to be the largest sporting banquet ever held in the world, more than 1,500 members of the league and sympathizers of the movement to conserve the river bottoms having announced their intentions of being present.

Bill Has Many Supporters.

The bill which Senator McCormick is taking to Washington and which is being drawn up by Judge J. M. Dickinson, secretary of war in the McKinley cabinet, already has the support of nearly 100 congressmen and a number of senators, all of whom have voluntarily written to officials of the league announcing their sympathies with the movement. The bill provides for the establishment of a natural preserve in the 300 miles of Mississippi river bottoms from Rock Island, Ill., to Lake Pepin, Minn.

This section is the heart of the wild life of the central west and its drainage would not only destroy the breeding grounds of millions and millions of game fish and birds but would result in the flooding of the lower sections of the river, with resultant loss of wild life.

Show Films of Tract.

At the banquet more than 4,000 feet of film of the Nipigon region, taken at an expense of $6,000 by the Milwaukee chapter, will be exhibited. The film, among other things, shows the taking of a ten pound trout from white water.

One of the strongest factions behind the proposed legislation was enlisted when the General Federation of Women's clubs, representing more than 2,000,000 American women, came out in support of the proposition. It is said that this group of women never has failed in an attempt to get congress to pass any bills in which it was interested.

According to officials of the Walton league, the president of every local club and organization affiliated with the federation is going to write to her congressman and senator, and also President Coolidge, urging the passage of the proposed measure.

HUESTON SWEEPS CUE GAME SERIES

Tom Hueston made a clean sweep of his four game series against Arthur Church of Baltimore in the National Pocket Billiard league at Mussey's yesterday. He won the afternoon game, 100 to 74, in 22 innings, and took the night contest, 100 to 31, in 17 innings. Runs of 26 and 25 in the afternoon and 22 and 23 in the evening helped the local player.

Hueston makes his first trip this week, playing in Omaha, Minneapolis and Kansas City.

ZEV GOES WEST ON TUESDAY FOR LATONIA RACE

New York, Oct. 27. — Zev, Harry Sinclair's 3 year old colt which won the international match race with Papyrus last Saturday, will be shipped to Latonia next Tuesday for the Latonia championship, in which he will meet a field which will include Rear Admiral Grayson's My Own, rival claimant for American turf honors this year.

KIECKHEFER'S RUN OF 15 MARKS BILLIARD PLAY

Augie Kieckhefer's run of 15, which is a new mark in the Chicago Billiard league, featured last week's play in that three cushion circuit, while Pierre Maupome set a season's low mark by scoring 60 points in forty-five innings. Reiselt Is Leading.

Otto Reiselt of Alinger's room, Philadelphia, is leading in the national three cushion championship league with nine wins and one loss, while Bob Cannefax of Detroit is second. Charley Ellis, a former champion, who was out of competition for two years, is well up the list, in company with John Layton of St. Louis, last year's champion. Tiff Denton, the present titleholder, got away to a poor start, but is expected to climb. Only two of the thirteen players have failed to get under the fifty inning mark. The standing:

	W.	L.	H.R.	B.G.
Reiselt, Philadelphia	9	1	8	43

Greenleaf Plays Fast Game.

Champion Ralph Greenleaf leads in the National Pocket Billiard league and is playing the fastest games, his lowest mark being six innings. Tom Hueston, former champion, who so far has played all his games here, is going along nicely, and showing good generalship. He is in second place.

Bennie Allen of Kansas City, while he has lost nine games, rates as a contender for the leading position, as he undoubtedly will improve as the season progresses. His defeat of Arthur Woods last week, 100 to 1, was a fine performance. The standing:

2 GOLFERS BOTH MAKE SAME HOLE IN ONE AT NEWARK IN DAY

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 27.—[Special.]—The seventh hole at the Forest Hill links was made in one shot twice today. In the morning F. J. Foley, until recently playing from the Edgewood Country club in the Pittsburgh district, dropped his mashie-niblick tee shot into the cup and this afternoon his feat was duplicated by W. A. Jones. It was on the eighteenth hole of the same course that a world record was set a few years ago when two players in a singles match both holed out from the tee, it being the only case on record of a hole halved in 1.

Chairman Ross Kidston has called a meeting of the chairmen of the member clubs of the Chicago District association for Tuesday at the University club at 12:30. Important matters will be discussed. Notices of the meeting have been sent to the secretaries, as a complete list of the chairmen of the membership committees was not available. A luncheon will precede the meeting.

BIRCHWOOD.

The last tournament of the season drew a large field, competing for a number of miscellaneous prizes and eight places in the championship bracket. Among the prize winners for medal play results were Hal Bordwell, B. F. Zimmer, Russell McFarland, Frank Carroll, Oscar A. Knittel, William E. Ellis, George Turnbull, F. W. Lietsow, Charles M. Jessup, George M. Dickson, C. W. Edwards, and J. E. Greenslade. The qualifiers and pairings in the contest for the club title were as follows: Hal Bordwell vs. Dr. E. B. Monteith, J. E. Greenslade vs. B. F. Zimmer, F. W. Lietsow vs. C. W. Edwards, George Turnbull vs. Ivan C. West.

J. P. King won the championship title of St. Rita council, Knights of Columbus, defeating H. Rumpf, 1 up, in the eighteen hole final, which was played over the temporary nine hole course at Marquette park.

Miss Grace Saunders, one of the fine players at the Marquette park course and former holder of the club title, will spend the winter in Florida, where she expects further to develop her game in anticipation of next years' tournaments. Miss Saunders' biggest achievement this year was the defeat of Miss Ruth Shults of Edgewood, Cook county open champion, in the semi-finals of the women's Illinois public parks championship event.

DICKERMAN WINS SHOOT TROPHY

H. E. Dickerman won the Thompson Ross trophy in A class at the Lincoln park traps yesterday. The event was a 75 targets distance handicap and, with the A class men shooting from 22 yards, Dickerman broke 65 targets.

C. O. Armes was the class B winner, breaking 65 targets from 20 yards, while C. G. McGarry took the trophy in C class with 63 breaks from 18 yards.

H. M. Rowley and W. M. Johnson tied for high in the doubles event, each breaking 44 targets of the 25 pair thrown. Leading scores:

75 TARGETS, DISTANCE HANDICAP—H. E. Dickerman, 65; C. O. Armes, 65; C. G. McGarry, 63; H. M. Rowley, 63; D. Zel, 61; W. M. Johnson, 60; Ward Burton, 58; T. Sutton, 53; W. E. Little, 53; J. B. Pollard, 53; H. B. Henry, 55; O. W. Johnson, 49; L. Schultze, 48; H. A. Russell, 47; F. B. Carter, 45; E. F. Swift, 31.

25 PAIR, DOUBLES—H. M. Rowley, 44; W. M. Johnson, 44; C. O. Schneider, 43; C. G. McGarry, 42; H. E. Dickerman, 41; W. E. Little, 36.

NATIONAL TITLE CUE TOURNEY TO OPEN TOMORROW

New York, Oct. 27. — [Associated Press.]—Six of the world's greatest billiardists tonight put on the finishing touches of their game in preparation for the 18.2 balkline championship, starting Monday night in Hotel Pennsylvania.

William F. Hoppe, holder of the title for more than a decade, and Jacob Schaefer Jr., son of the wizard whom Hoppe succeeded, and the only man to defeat the present champion in a title tournament, are the best known of the six.

Hoppe Opens Tourney.

Welker Cochran, another leading American player, holder of many records; Roger Conti, the youthful champion of France; Erich Hagenlacher, the German, and Edouard Horemans, champion of Belgium, are the others.

The championship will be decided in a series of matches in which blocks of 500 points will be played. Hoppe will open the tournament Monday night with Hagenlacher. Cochran and Conti will meet Tuesday afternoon, and Horemans and Schaefer will start play Tuesday night. Albert Cutler of New York will referee all matches.

SCHAEFER IN FINE STROKE.

Local billiardists who watched Jake Schaefer, in practice here last week, expect him to give Willie Hoppe the hardest run of any of the players in the world's balkline championship, which opens tomorrow night at New York. Physically Jake looks better than he has at any time in his career. His practice work has been marked by many fine runs, and his close play has been machine like. Hoppe will be a slight favorite, with Schaefer second.

DAN O'LEARY IS HERE; SEEKING WALKING MATCH

Dan O'Leary is back in Chicago again after a tour of the east, on which the aged pedestrian tried to induce Edward Payson Weston to meet him in a match walking race, but without success. Dan offered to give him an allowance of 10 miles in the 100. Dan also offered to walk Weston and Henry Schmehl in a 100 mile race, doing the century to their 90 miles, each of them to cover 45.

Mr. O'Leary will appear this afternoon at Justin park, where the Pease Cavaliers and the Cragin A. C. nines will battle in the finals for the Wolf baseball medals. Dan has promised to step twelve times around the bases in ten minutes.

DONALD L. DE GOLYER, who has been prominent in various branches of north shore athletics, was elected president of the Westmoreland Country club yesterday, there being no opposition to the regular ticket, the other members of which were: Charles Bureh, vice president; Minor E. Botts, secretary; George B. Burdsal, treasurer, and Fred G. Rolland, Harry Mosier, and Ralph R. Hawxhurst, directors.

Reports of the officers showed that the club had a fine year under the leadership of Mr. Hawxhurst. Prizes for the season were distributed at the dinner last night.

Football attractions kept the field in the election day handicap down to thirty-six, and, as there were that number of prizes, none went empty handed. Among the winners were: J. W. McCurdy, 85—9—76; Dr. E. H. Raedel, 81—3—78; C. T. Ripley, 86—7—79; C. A. Bush, 87—7—80; H. J. Sloan, 87—9—78. J. P. O'Connor took the prize for high gross, with 122, his net being 92.

OLYMPIA FIELDS.

Fred T. Bangs won the board of governors trophy, defeating J. D. Malloy, 5 and 4, over the No. 1 course. The George Simmons trophy went to W. S. Eagle, who defeated W. E. Conant, 6 and 4, over the No. 3 course. There was no opposition to the eight regular candidates for the board of governors, Joe Lawrence, J. N. Davis, W. G. Wise, J. W. Fulton, R. I. Bloom, A. L. Bolte, and J. B. Kanaley being elected for three years and George A. Blair for two.

GLEN VIEW.

John C. Slade was elected president of the club at the members' annual dinner last night, the other officers being: Vice president, Scott Brown; secretary, Carl R. Latham; treasurer, Andrew McNally; directors, E. A. Engler and D. A. Crawford.

GARFIELD PARK.

Steve Trant won the Fair trophy for the second year in succession, defeating George Maxied, 4 and 3. Last year Trant defeated A. W. Dixon in the final round. This year he eliminated Dixon a round earlier.

INDIAN HILL.

W. D. Hardey won the L. D. Kellogg trophy at Indian Hill, finishing 3 down. C. G. Lettell was second, 5 down.

WOMEN'S GOLF TOURNEY MAY GO EAST AGAIN

BY JOE DAVIS.

Although no official announcement has been made regarding the location of the next women's national golf championship, it appears to be almost for the Boston district. Chicago golfers who were at the last women's tournament brought home that news, and that the tournament would be held in the west the following year.

We kick at bowing to British tradition, and yet on this side of the water it appears to have become a tradition that the only place to hold the women's event is on an eastern course.

Both the amateur and open championships alternate between the east and the west, but the record of the women's tournament shows that only in five years out of twenty-seven has the event been staged in the west, these being as follows, 1909 at Chicago, 1907 at Midlothian, 1910 at Homewood, 1915 at Onwentsia, and 1920 at Cleveland.

In the last ten tournaments western women players have had to go east eight times. Statistics in the men's amateur championship show that when it is held in the east that section holds the balance of power in the qualifying round, and vice versa when it is held in the west.

It also is said that a number of the eastern players will not come west, but the records show that most of the eastern stars came to the western events. Already the field is becoming unwieldy and there is talk of reducing the eligibility handicap to eight strokes.

Traffic Service to Be Improved on State Roads

Officials Begin Marking and Maintenance Downstate.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Oct. 27. — [Special Correspondence.]—Traffic service on the state bond issue hard roads in Illinois is to be emphasized in the future. The construction end has been receiving the most attention in the past, and this has reached a point where it is found necessary to take up the question service to the traffic.

By the close of the present year, the state will be able to boast of 2,600 miles of state bond issue road paved, according to department reports. The department will hereafter maintain and mark all state bond issue roads, whether the pavement is completed or not. The method of maintaining the roads has not yet been worked out, but will be in the near future. The state may coöperate with each county to have this feature handled. If unable to secure the assistance of the county, the state will employ men for the purpose.

Marking the state bond issue roads that are paved has commenced. The signs showing the distance from point to point are being placed upon telegraph or telephone poles. A white band is painted upon the pole and in the center, the number of the road and

Traffic Service to Be Improved on State Roads

Officials Begin Marking and Maintenance Downstate.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Oct. 27.—(Special Correspondence.)—Traffic service on the state bond issue hard roads in Illinois is to be maintained in the future. The construction end has been receiving the most attention in the past, and this has reached a point where it is found necessary to take up the question service to the traffic.

By the close of the present year, the state will be able to boast of 2,600 miles of state bond issue road paved, according to departmental reports. The department will hereafter maintain and mark all state bond issue roads, whether the pavement is completed or not. The method of maintaining the roads has not yet been worked out, but will be in the near future. The state may cooperate with each county or have this feature handled. If unable to secure the assistance of the county, the state will employ men for the purpose.

Marking the state bond issue roads that are paved has commenced. The signs showing the distance from point to point are being placed upon telegraph or telephone poles. A white band is painted upon the pole and in the center, the number of the road and the distances. The same procedure will be carried on within the limits of cities upon the hard roads if the authorities give permission. At the city limits, there will be signs showing the number of miles to the next town, and arrows pointing the direction. The number of the road will also be displayed.

Where a state bond issue hard road intersects an important road leading to another city, signs will be erected at the junction showing the name of the city and distance.

It is also proposed to show the population of all cities upon the signs erected at the outskirts. Approaches to crossings of railroads will be plainly marked and the name of the railroad will be given. The same policy will be pursued in relation to small streams, creeks and rivers. At all bridges will be shown the name of the stream that is crossed. If the road passes a lake of any considerable size the name will be shown.

The state highway department will also arrange for all detour signs. With the state handling the detours and also looking after bond issue road maintenance prior to the time that the pavement is laid, the important highways will be found in much better condition in the future than in the past.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," The Tribune, Chicago. For today's question Jo McGinley, 925 Leland avenue, apartment 1, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

"What is your opinion, now, of the new signal system on Michigan avenue?

Where Asked.

Michigan avenue at Washington street.

The Answers.

Davis Kales, 1356 North State street, advertising—I think it is a good deal better during rush hours than it was, but it would seem to me that at other times when the traffic is light there ought to be longer running time, with a shorter stop period, for north and south traffic.

Fred Jurman, 2024 South Wabash avenue, auto mechanic—The new system is entirely satisfactory to me. The way I figure it, the green lights give a greater running time than the old signal system. And the "No turn to the left"—I like that. I like the color of the lights; I like the whole system.

Hodges Enlow, 205 East Ontario street, baker—Well, it is one of the greatest traffic improvements that we have had in recent years. You can travel straight through for four or five blocks; before you were lucky if you could travel two blocks. The only complaint I have is that it often seems like such a long wait before being allowed to enter the avenue.

W. M. Hensel, 6631 North Ashland avenue, advertising—I am unfavorably impressed with it for the reason that on so many occasions traffic is stopped when it could be going straight through. On the other hand, it eliminates from the motorist's mind the doubt whether to go on through or not.

Louis Le Vin, 2646 Crystal street, chauffeur—I think it is one of the best things they ever did. You can take four or five blocks on the boulevard without stopping, whereas previously you could only take a block at a time.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

COACHMAKERS give J. H. Quinlan, Chicago Moon distributor, credit for first employing leather as the interior finish and upholstery of enclosed cars. In the early days of closed car popularity he had thirty-five special cars built with high grade leather upholstery, and found that purchasers preferred them to cloth upholstered jobs. As a result the Moon factory has announced that cloth or leather will be optional in closed cars of its make.

The Edwards & Crieg company, Auburn distributors, has received the latest model of the new factory line. It is a convertible closed car built on the Auburn six chassis and employs removable glass panels which furnish an unusual degree of winter driving comfort.

Marmon retail sales have been more than 25 per cent better for October this year than for the corresponding month in 1922, according to report received yesterday from the Indianapolis factory. The report adds that factory production surpasses all records for this season of the year.

Something new in sport cars has arrived in the Stutz six "tourabout," another newcomer of the week. It is a specially equipped touring car embodying refinements which add to the car's traveling ability as well as the convenience and comfort of its passengers.

A canvass of Chicago owners last week satisfied Dayton Keith, Wills-Sainte Claire distributor, that the closed models sold this season have proved their value as touring cars. A score of Wills-Sainte Claire drivers sent in reports of their experiences on long trips, and all of them were strong in their praise of the added comforts of the closed car on the open road.

For Longer Life.

The statistician is out with the announcement that the span of life—if one keeps outside some of the safety zones—goes up eleven years as automobiles multiply. Back twenty years ago the average American lived 37.64 years, but in 1922 had jumped to 48.46 years. Back in 1903 there were 10,350 automobiles in America. Now there are about 13,000,000—and the life expectance has risen 7.65 years.

To celebrate the complete success of the Apperson C. H. mechanical gear shift and to call your special attention to the simplicity of its principle, we have inaugurated and urge you to call on us this week at our show rooms.

This Gear Shift is a Mechanical Success!

Not a Complicated Electrical Contrivance

The Apperson Mechanical Gear Shift convinces everyone. With a slight move of thumb or finger of the hand at the wheel, the gears shift without clash from one "speed" to another.

Seasoned motorists and inexperienced drivers alike see at once the added convenience, driving safety and pleasure that it gives.

It is a fixed success in the automobile world, although still new to many who are not Apperson owners. It is not electrically operated nor has it anything in common with other shifts.

Long before it reached a single Apperson owner, its success was proven by years of experiment, development and the most gruelling tests of actual service on a car.

See the new Apperson this week. Come and experience the pleasure of a car with no levers to shift. It is unsurpassed in power plant, outstanding appointment and design.

NO AMERICAN MOTOR CAR, REGARDLESS OF PRICE, EXCELS THE NEW PEERLESS EIGHT IN PERFORMANCE, DEPENDABILITY, BEAUTY AND COMFORT

There are two things we can quickly demonstrate to you with the New Peerless Eight—the superiority of its performance and the luxurious comfort of its riding qualities.

When we have completed our demonstration we know that you will join with us and our owners in declaring that, regardless of price, no car excels the New Peerless in these two essentials of motoring.

There are two other factors that are of primary consideration in buying a motor car—appearance and dependability.

As for the beauty of the New Peerless, your eye alone will determine its rare nature and its genuine quality. We willingly leave the verdict to your good taste.

Dependability is of exceptional importance in motoring. It is peculiarly characteristic of the New Peerless.

This is a fact that can not be proved in a demonstration. But look over the testimonial letters from our owners and you will find abundant reasons why we place it among the four essentials in which Peerless is not excelled at any price.

Chicago Driver Sends Report on Dixie Highways

Finds Alabama Roads in Fair Shape for Touring.

ROADS through Alabama are largely of dirt in the southern portion, but in the northern section there is considerable pavement and a great deal of gravel, according to reports made to the Chicago Motor club by John H. Graham, the club's chief road surveyor, who is now northbound after a trip of investigation extending to Florida.

Florida roads are being improved rapidly, and some work is being done in lower Alabama. The last report included Florida up to Lake City and from that place over a new road to Jacksonville; it now embraces the roads through Montgomery, Birmingham, and Gadsden to Shelbyville.

Lake City to Tallahassee, Fla., 115 miles.—From the outskirts of Lake City there is loose sand for five miles, with a fair road into Wellborn, where a mile through town is paved. The dirt road through Live Oak, twenty-three miles, to Lee, forty-three miles, is good; then comes some loose sand and some fair and good going through Monticello, Chaires, and Capitola into Tallahassee.

Tallahassee, Fla., to Montgomery, Ala., 232 miles.—Very little pavement in Florida's capital; fair dirt road out, through Amsterdam, Ga., twenty-seven miles, into Bainbridge, forty-three miles. Out of Bainbridge the dirt road goes through Columbia, ninety miles from Tallahassee into Dothan, 113 miles. Two miles of pavement through Dothan: then dirt through Ozark, Troy (where there is some pavement), to Pine Level, 205 miles from Florida's miles.—Gravel leads out of Montgomery tends into Montgomery.

Montgomery to Birmingham, 108 miles—Gravel leads out of Montgomery to the north for sixteen miles; then dirt through Marbury, Verbena, Jemison, Pelham, and Acton for 101 miles out of Montgomery. From the bottom of the grade at 102 miles, there is pavement into Birmingham.

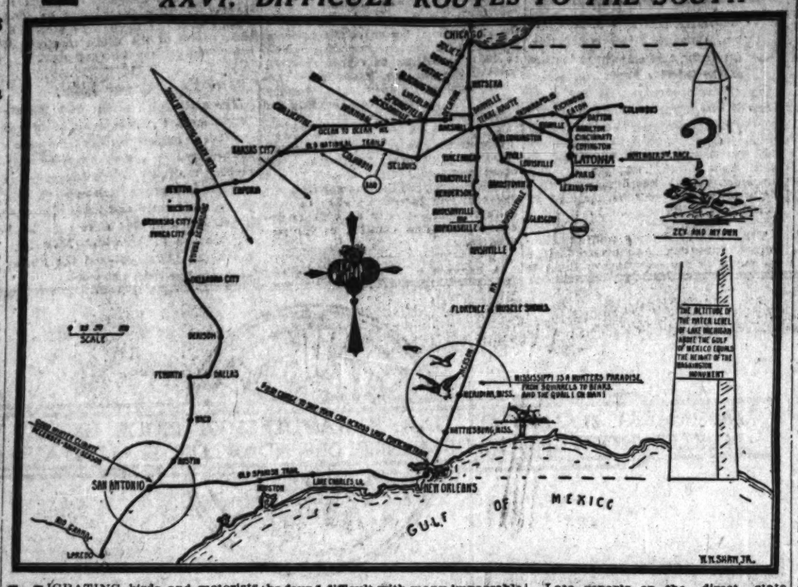

Birmingham to Gadsden, sixty-five miles.—Pavement out of Birmingham for seven miles; then gravel through Trussville, Argo, and Ashville, to fifty-five miles beyond Birmingham, where pavement begins and extends into Gadsden.

Gadsden to Rome, sixty-five miles.—through Hokes Bluff, Piano, Farney, and Cave Spring itno Rome, with pavement the last two miles.

Gadsden to Shelbyville, 140 miles—Paved out of Gadsden for one mile, then alternating gravel and pavement to Atlanta, six miles. Gravel up and down grade and to Boaz, twenty-three miles; pavement from Boaz through Albertville to Gunterville, forty miles. Here the Tennessee river is crossed by ferry. North of the river the road surface is dirt, somewhat hilly, to Caltonville, fifty-two miles; then pavement for five miles, nearly to New Hope. Now comes gravel to Huntsville, which is eighty-three miles from Gadsden. It is paved through Gadsden and gravel on through Meridianville and Hazel Green into Fayetieville, 114 miles from Gadsden. From Fayetville north there is pavement for sixteen miles, then gravel to Shelbyville, where connection is made with the road to Murfreesboro and Nashville.

XXVI. DIFFICULT ROUTES TO THE SOUTH

MIGRATING birds and motorists in more or less equal numbers are on their way to the land of southern sunshine, but the birds have all the best of the journey. Although practically every state south of the Mason and Dixon line has made progress in highway improvement during the year, the best available routes now to both Louisiana and Texas will be found difficult with many impassable stretches in rainy weather.

The map shows the best general routes and indicates where the trouble will be found. Motorists are using both, taking good and bad roads as they come, and will continue to use them during the winter.

Late reports on the direct state road from Chicago to St. Louis via Bloomington and Springfield, show the pavement complete and open from Chicago to Bloomington with the exception of two short detours south of Joliet. These gaps are about a half mile in length. From Bloomington to Springfield the state detour is bad in wet weather.

Federal Gas Tax Seen in Offing by Club Leaders

WITH thirty-six states in the union taxing motorists from 1 to 3 cents a gallon for gasoline, it is feared that the sixty-eighth session of congress will reveal numerous proposals for a federal sales tax on gas. Rumors of this are already reaching the Washington headquarters of the National Motorists' association, and plans are being laid for the work of opposing such a measure.

Never before have so many proposals for mulcting car owners been offered, and it is apparent that the adoption of the gasoline tax by seventeen additional states in 1923 will encourage an epidemic of federal tax proposals, officials declare.

According to Fred H. Caley, secretary of the N. M. A., the gas tax idea in its present form is merely an experiment, and should not be further encouraged until it has been proved desirable.

"Our investigation shows that the increase in the number of states adopting the gas tax is not the result of a demand for a more equitable form of taxation but to rivalry among states," Mr. Caley contends. "It was a foregone conclusion that when Connecticut started collecting a penny a gallon on gas sold to any one buying fuel within its boundary, Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine, and Massachusetts would get on the band wagon. But the overanxious legislators in Massachusetts made a mistake in trying to put one over on Connecticut with a 2cent tax, the Bay state motorists themselves raising an immediate objection and, through the efforts of the Massachusetts State Automobile association, subjecting the law to referendum."

Produce New Car.

Reports from Cleveland are that the new Rollin four cylinder car will be in production and on the market long before the New York show next January. The car comprises light weight and high speed.

AUTOMOTIVE EXPERT WRITES TEXT BOOK FOR MOTOR TRUCK DRIVERS

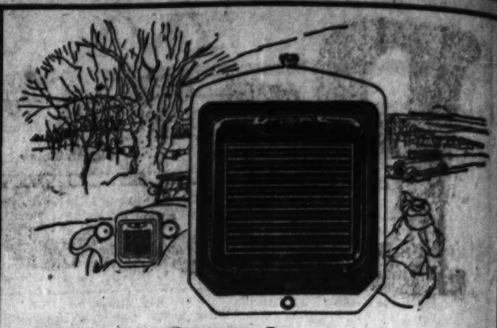

FUTURE success of the motor truck industry rests with the man behind the wheel, in the opinion of E. E. LaSchum, general superintendent of motor vehicle equipment for the American Express company, whose association with motor transportation dates from 1901.

E. E. LA SCHUM.

The veteran official, who has directed the operation and maintenance of truck fleets and supervised the training of their drivers for more than a decade, has contributed the latest and probably the most practical text book so far developed, to the truck field. It is written primarily for the benefit of the great army of workers who drive and care for the truck fleets which, in the past five years, have entered and promise soon to command every field of local transportation.

The book is called "The Motor Truck as It Is: A Manual for Drivers" [W. P. C. Book Co., Inc.], and is the first one of its kind to deal with the fundamentals of motor equipment from the drivers' standpoint. In it the most involved operations of truck mechanism are reduced to simple terms. In explaining the theory of internal combustion, the author uses a bonfire as a comparison, showing what happens when gas is compressed in a cylinder and fired as compared to the kindling of a common fire.

IRVING

100% Automatic Shutter

Nothing to adjust—nothing to remember—or forget. Irving Automatic tends to everything. When your motor heats up the shutter leaves open automatically. They close tight the instant your motor stops. That shuts the warmth in—and holds it there.

No matter how cold the weather, your motor stays right on the job with a June adjustment of the carburetor when your car is equipped with the Irving.

The New Hupmobile

Ideal for All Seasons—
the Rex Top Equipped Hupmobile

You want closed car protection and appearance in the cold months,—and the light weight and coolness of an open car in the warm months.

The Hupmobile touring car with special Rex Top gives you precisely the all-season advantages you desire.

This Rex Top makes the Hupmobile a real closed car in every way. The dome light, the windows that are readily lowered or raised, the door windows that become part of the doors and open with them—these are all regulation closed car features that the Rex Top equipped Hupmobile affords. A smart windshield visor is also included.

You will, in any event, want to inspect the many notable engineering improvements which give the Hupmobile still more pronounced dominance in its price class. You will at the same time, we believe, be particularly interested in the Rex Top equipped Hupmobile.

PAIGE THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA

5 Passenger Sedan $3235 at Detroit.

All Envy Them Their Paige Sedan

Irresistible Performance—Luxurious Comfort—Smart Style

The Paige Sedan glides through traffic at 2 miles an hour in high, or as fast as you like over the open highway. So smooth—so silent—you scarcely know the big Paige motor is running until the light pressure of your foot brings instant response in flashing speed. Paige takes easily in "high" hills that stall most other cars. Paige pulls swiftly away from others in traffic—passes them on the road, if you please.

Paige performance is readily understood—more power for its weight than other cars, gives more ability. How Paige does perform for any driver!—with its non-stalling, smooth clutch; ball-bearing steering-spindles; and easy, quiet gear shifting.

Extra Long Rear Springs

Paige Sedan rides as you have probably never ridden before. Rear springs more than 5 feet long gently absorb shocks. Snubbers front and rear stop rebound. 131 inches of wheelbase ignore bumps. On any road Paige rides more smoothly than you ever thought any car could.

Five passengers find enjoyable roominess in this Paige Sedan. Soft, deeply cushioned seats give delightful ease. What woman but would envy the rich finishings and perfect conveniences:

Upholstery of costly fabric; etched, silvered dome and quarter-lights; silk shades; elaborately fitted vanity case. Against the sudden onslaught of rain, the automatic windshield wiper preserves clear vision ahead. The backward panorama of the road and its traffic changes are duplicated in the rear view mirror; and when dainty foot presses the brake a red light warns those behind to greater caution.

Delightful Conveniences

Still more comforts for mind and body! A gasoline gauge on the dash warns of approaching need, a Waltham clock of fleeting time. A chartreuse colored glass visor protects view and softens glare. Electric cigarette lighter laughs at forgotten matches. A trunk rack in rear for heavy luggage. And Paige bodies never embarrass with squeaks or rattles, for double strips of patent leather keep metal from touching metal or wood.

Look at the list below of standard equipment on Paige. All accessories you would want for any car. Most would charge $300 additional for them—no extra cost on Paige. Remember this when considering other cars. You will see that the Paige Sedan at $3235, Detroit, gives more than comparable cars at $3800. Quantity production on the Paige-built Jewett practically eliminates overhead on the Paige. This saving comes to you in value we believe unequaled.

Let us show you this Paige Sedan at your door or on our floor. Just telephone or call for a demonstration. You drive—mark its performance under your own guidance. There is no obligation to buy, of course. If desired—convenient purchase terms may be arranged. 523

Business is as good as we make it!

1. Wheat is NOT king.

2. High wages are better than cheap labor.

3. Europe can't wreck our prosperity.

4. Only our own politicians can hurt us.

5. This is the day of opportunity.

ABOVE are the titles of five full page advertisements through which The Chicago Tribune wishes to convey to the business world its interpretation of business conditions. It is a common human trait for men to imagine that others are more fortunate than they. Today we have the extraordinary phenomenon of vast numbers of men with the opposite sort of illusion. Each one admits that his own business is good, but fears that he is about to be injured by the contagious influence of other men's misfortunes. To hold some of these bugbears to the light is the purpose of this series of advertisements which will appear in the next five issues of the Daily Tribune.

MOTORDOM

New Police Order Bars Jay Walkers at Busy Crossing

Chief Collins Tries Bit of Force as Safety Measure.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

CHICAGO'S first official experiment in the regulation of pedestrian traffic began quietly last week at the point of greatest danger of the downtown traffic area—Michigan avenue and Randolph street.

Four uniformed policemen were assigned to the intersection by Chief Collins with orders to prevent "jaywalking" in any form and to hold foot travelers at the curb lines until the green light opening cross traffic, clears the street of vehicles. The order requires pedestrians to obey the automatic signal lights in exactly the same way motor traffic observes them. It prevents the reckless walker from dashing into the middle of traffic or stepping off the curb and into the street filled with moving cars. Police officials and safety experts declare that, if the plan is adopted at all congested intersections, it will reduce accidents in the loop 50 per cent and safeguard both the pedestrian and motorist.

"We have realized for a long time," Chief Collins said yesterday, "that the pedestrian who refuses to observe traffic regulations is one of the most dangerous phases of our city safety problem. We have no specific ordinances covering his case, but I contend that police powers are sufficient to save the reckless pedestrian from himself.

"The directing of foot traffic at sidewalk lines of busy intersections is not a new idea. It was done successfully at the intersection of 5th avenue and 42d street in New York, and I understand that several cities have passed ordinances providing fines for people who walk against the traffic line. Chicago has never tried anything of the sort before, although we need it here worse than they do in most other big cities.

"We have found during the few days the plan has been in operation at Randolph street that a certain percentage of pedestrians resent having officers tell them how and when to cross. This resentment is perhaps natural, but I believe that common sense on the part of the public will show them the advantages of regulation. At any rate it is better to have a little resentment than many traffic accidents. This is a changing world and we have to adapt ourselves to the changes. I believe that we will eventually have foot traffic regulation at all loop intersections."

In checking over the pedestrian control developed nationally, the National Safety News has found the work organized in a number of cities. Los Angeles recently adopted a law carrying a fine for "jaywalking," and the police department there gives almost as much attention to the walker as to the motorist. Ohio this year passed a revised uniform traffic law which provides fines of from $25 to $100 for both pedestrians and drivers who violate traffic regulations. The law controls pedestrian traffic on all highways as well as city streets.

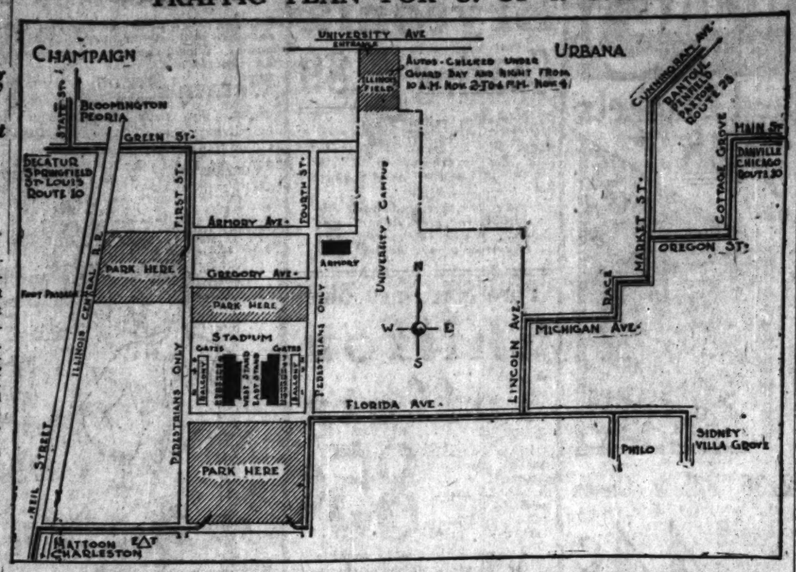

In Cleveland the police department is using white lines, painted at an angle at street intersections, to keep vehicles from parking too near the street car safety zones. This gives the pedestrian a clear view when approaching a safety zone from the curb. During the rush hours considerable traffic is diverted at points of congestion by means of signs. Policemen are stationed at these places to control pedestrian traffic.

At Euclid avenue and East 9th street, five policemen care for the crossing. One operates the traffic semiphore, and the other four are stationed at the sidewalk lines to keep pedestrians moving according to the semiphore signals. Accidents at this interesection have been cut almost in half, officials report, and more than 90 per cent of foot travelers now follow the operation of the semiphore even when the pedestrian officers are not on duty.

King Jars Tradition.

For the first time in history, King George of England rode from Buckingham to St. James' palace recently in an automobile, abandoning the state carriage because of rain.

TRAFFIC PLAN FOR U. OF I. GAME

Elaborate plans have been made by University of Illinois authorities to handle the record breaking automobile traffic expected to concentrate in Champaign and Urbana next Saturday for the Chicago-Illinois game, opening of the new university stadium, and annual homecoming celebration. Thousands of cars from all parts of the state and neighboring states will pour into the twin cities, and will find one of the most effective one way traffic and parking systems on record ready to welcome them.

The above map shows the street plan and parking areas. Practically all Chicago cars will find it safest to use Western avenue and the paved Dixie highway south to Danville and the state pavement on route 10 west to Urbana. This route will enter Urbana via Main street. Thence the one way routes will be marked to the various parking places. Unless several days of fair weather precedes the game it will be unwise for Chicago and northern Illinois drivers to use the partially completed pavements or earth roads leading to Champaign.

From the west the main artery will be route 10, now completed and open from Jacksonville through Springfield, Decatur, Bement, and Monticello to Champaign. This route enters Champaign over Green street, with a convenient parking place on 1st street. Thousands of cars can be taken care of in Illinois field.

Some of Chicago's best traffic officers will be on hand to aid in the traffic work and state traffic officers will handle the situation along the paved routes.

U. S. Bureau Out to Reduce Loss in Stored Fuel

FROM 3 to 4 per cent of the gasoline accumulated during the winter season is lost through evaporation, the bureau of mines has determined in a series of experiments to find a method of preventing waste. The use of cooling systems in vapor tight tanks, the experts believe, would check dissipation of the gas.

The usual practice of the larger refiners, the bureau found, is to store surplus stocks during the winter season in order to meet the heavy demands during the summer months. On April 1, 1923, there was an accumulation of 1,836,417,871 gallons subject to loss by evaporation.

In the process of evaporation, the first fractions to escape tre the most volatile, and the dissipation of these results in a large financial loss, not only because of the reduction in volume, but mainly because the characteristics of the gasoline are changed. The loss by evaporation of a small percentage of a tank will usually require a relatively large addition of light products.

The bureau of standards has been experimenting on means of preventing waste by evaporation, and at the time of the recent explosion which resulted in the death of several men there, it was announced that the work they were engaged in would save half a billion dollars a year which now is wasted by evaporation. A report containing their conclusions is expected soon.

Simple Adjustment.

It is a fact that unless the fuel charge is of the correct proportions and is ignited properly, all the symptoms of overoiling will appear. Before a car reported to be pumping oil is torn down for expensize repairs, the carburetor adjustment should be carefully checked, the valve lifters given the correct clearance and the spark plug points set to the proper gap.

It is surprising how many reported cases of oil pumping, particularly in new and recently overhauled cars, can be corrected in this way. A clean burning charge consumes the oil without trouble, while incomplete combustion always leads to trouble.

The Good
MAXWELL
Excess Value in These Enclosed Models

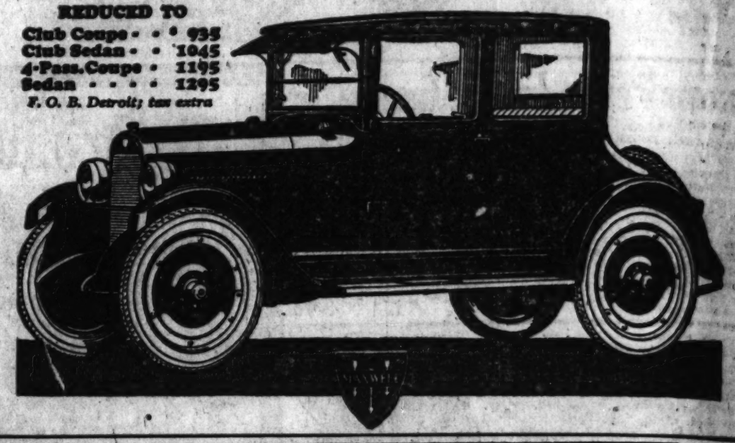

All the wonder of the good Maxwell at the new reduced prices applies as completely to enclosed as to open models.

Underneath bodies of engaging beauty, rich finish and equipment remarkably complete is, of course, the same expertly designed and soundly built chassis.

All the remarkable features that led motorists to declare the good Maxwell touring car at the reduced price of $795 to be the world's greatest motor car value you can count on absolutely in the enclosed models—no matter which you may choose to meet your needs.

VALVE-IN-HEAD Buick

CARS

Buick Open Cars are Stormtight

Perfect protection is provided from rain and wind. The lower frame of the windshield fits into a permanent rubber grommet. Moulded rubber seals every joint between the frames and posts. At the top a new weatherstrip, steel reinforced; excludes all air that might enter between the windshield and top, and side curtains button to the windshield, instead of the posts, covering the slight crack between them.

In addition to these and numerous other refinements, Buick four-wheel brakes afford a greater degree of safety on all models.

FARM AND GARDEN

Vineyards Now Where Once Were Fields of Grain

Prohibition Raises Demand for Table as Well as Wine Grape.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

PROHIBITION may have closed the doors of an enormous business that furnished an outlet for a large volume of grain farmers' crops, but it has opened a vast field for the fruit grower. Locking doors of breweries and distilleries where whisky and beer were made all over this country and wiping out a market for enormous quantities of corn, barley, and wheat have resulted in an increased consumption of grapes for making wines and juices in the home.

The greater part of the increased popularity of the grape can be credited, directly and indirectly, to the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment, which has succeeded not only in increasing the demand for grapes for wine making but has been a forerunner in putting Malagas and Concords on tables and grape jellies and butters on pantry shelves in homes all over America.

Some growers believe they have overestimated the possible demand for the grape in making wines. Many of them are now paying more attention to the production of table grapes, packing them in smaller baskets than those used for home kitchen wineries.

Meeting Table Grape Demand.

To meet this growing demand producers—even in the wine grape growing districts—are shifting to the table grape and increasing their acreage. Michigan has doubled the acreage of Concords—excellent table grapes—within the last decade. In the Pacific coast vineyard district—principally in California—thousands of acres are covered with wine grapes, and until recent years few of the standard table varieties were grown. California growers have set thousands of acres of table grape varieties within the last few years. Experiment stations are trying out several varieties on an extensive scale in an attempt to find out which is best for western vineyards.

Evidence of the confidence that sage western farmers have in the future development of the table grape market is found in the fact that more than 20,000 acres of Malagas—a table variety—have been planted in California within the last three or four seasons.

New Problems for Old Vineyardists.

New vineyards are also springing up in various parts of the central west where table grapes are usually planted because they do best. The increasing demand for certain kinds has presented new problems for old vineyardists and made the prospective grower ponder about what to set in establishing a vineyard.

Within the last few years fields where corn, barley, and wheat once grew have been turned into vineyards. The old grain farming system is being partially replaced with a scheme of growing fruits, vegetables, and poultry, and the grape on many farms of the middle west is playing an important part.

Last year Michigan shipped its record crop of more than 6,000 carloads by rail and boat. This figure does not include the enormous tonnage transported in trucks from the grape belt to towns within a radius of 150 miles. Here the Concord is the dominating commercial crop. While it is generally regarded as a table grape, it is also used in making beverages.

Where It All Goes.

During recent months trainloads of grapes have been picked from the vineyards of Michigan, California, New York, and other sections and shipped to industrial centers, where many tons are used in home wine making. While no one has a close check on just how grapes are used after they leave the retailer, it is generally understood that they are extensively used in industrial towns where there is a high percentage of foreigners skilled in the science of making wine.

To Pittsburgh, where there is a large foreign population, Michigan growers sell more than 900 carloads of grapes in a single season. Boston, which is closer to the eastern vineyards, gets between 150 and 200 cars a year from Wolverine growers alone. Approximately 100 carloads go to Philadelphia, and 200 are sent to Milwaukee by rail and boat in a single season.

Many grapes grown on the western coast are also sold in the midwest and eastern markets. As many as 2,000 cars a day are loaded in California during the heavy picking season. But the problems of the Pacific coast growers are much more complicated than those of the central and eastern states, because there they produce grapes for several different purposes, while here it is chiefly the table grape that is grown. In California they grow wine, raisin, and table grapes.

Dealing With the Surplus.

In the producer's effort to meet the great and growing demand for grapes which has resulted in a rapid increase in acreage, many difficult problems have come up that seemed almost unsurmountable if losses were to be avoided. Enormous surpluses have to be dealt with; the grape is a perishable fruit that must be marketed within a comparatively short period, and the heavy shipments from the principal regions come on the market about the same time, often meeting strong competition.

In their attempt to handle their surplus, growers are searching for new uses of the grape. In some cases they have resorted to the fattening of hogs with raisins, which are nothing more than dried grapes. Whether it is profitable to feed raisins and condensed whey to hogs that are being fattened for market is being investigated at the California agricultural experiment station.

POULTRY TIPS

Fall is a good time of year to pick out the hens for next year's breeding pens. Watch to see when they molt or lose their feathers. Hens that molt late are usually the poor producers, and should not be saved for breeding purposes. Early molting is a good sign that a hen is a good layer, and it is from this class of birds that the best producers are found. Birds that molt early should be marked with metal leg bands or placed in separate pens. The most practical way on the average farm where hens are allowed free range in the barnyards and poultry runs is to band the legs of the birds that molt early. Then in gathering eggs for the incubator next spring save only those that come from early molters.

It will pay poultry keepers on farms or in cities and towns of Illinois and Wisconsin to keep standard bred chickens, especially now since these two states have become interested in the accredited hatchery system. The flock owner who keeps a good strain of birds in either one of these states in the future will no doubt be able to get much better prices for his eggs and breeding birds than the man who keeps scrub birds.

Wisconsin Farmer Told He Must Use Business Methods

THERE is a growing tendency among farmers to think about their products in terms that have been common to business men for years. This year particularly has been a record breaker in the number of farm meetings held throughout the middle west, at school houses, picnics, community meetings, and fairs. These meetings have been virtually schools where producers are trained in the new terms and thought of present day agriculture. Individual farmers are eager to know what part they play in the new agrarian drama.

In Wisconsin John M. Kelley, dairyman, lawyer, and advertising expert, is one of the teachers. In the dozens of meetings he has addressed during the last year, he has treated his farmer audience as a class, and tutored them in the rudiments of business methods that have proven successful for the merchant. He believes they will aid in returning greater dividends and eliminate wasteful economic practices for the producers who apply them intelligently.

Stresses Power of Advertising.

"Quit giving away farm products. You need to organize, merchandise, and advertise your products, the same as business men are doing today," Mr. Kelley told his class of dairymen at a meeting in Watertown, Wis., recently. "What we farmers need is the same business brains and management that have been applied to the selling of automobiles, rubber heels, chewing gum, soft drinks, oleomargarines, and face powder."

In emphasizing the power of advertising—an advertising dynamo that can generate as much power for farmers as it can for the city merchant—Mr. Kelley wrote a list of significant and surprising facts on the blackboard, showing that women of Paris last year used 1,000 tons of face powder. The cosmetic bill paid by the women of the United States last year was more than $500,000,000, according to his figures.

"Dairy farmers should tell the world in advertising that the way to beauty is the way to health, and sell the milk can habit to the millioins who now use the cosmetic can," added Mr. Kelly."

Advises Cost Marks.

He advocates a cost price on farm products. "The farmer will never sell his products at the same price level of the things he buys until he regards dairying as a business and puts back of it the same efficient organization that other concerns give to their business, he announced. "A cost mark on dairy products would be worth a million dollars to the industry. It would put squarely before the dairyman the fact that he is selling below cost. It would put an end to business by guesswork. Concerns that manufacture what farmers buy are organized—they have a cost mark and sell at a profit.

"The dairy business is like a turtle without a shell. The world's best industry creeps along while even 'oleo' and substitutes pass by. We are unprotected from any viewpoint in the field of trade. When you take the profit from a business you take away its pride, its romance, and its heart," he concluded.

Dairymen's Jottings

Corn fodder is a poor dairy feed, and yet it has been a common roughage throughout the corn belt for years. If you feed corn fodder to your milch cows, don't wonder why they do not produce as much as your neighbor's cows that get corn silage. Corn fodder instead of corn silage in Iowa tests reduced the milk production of dairy cows 6 per cent and the fat production 3 per cent.

C. S. Roade of the University of Illinois, in commenting upon the practice of many dairymen in the Chicago milk district who add more cattle to their herds and then kick because the price of milk goes lower, recently said: "When dairymen get out of the practice of varying the size of their herds with the season and the price of milk, and work with more efficient producing herds built up by culling and breeding, they will soon maintain a more uniform production, which will aid greatly in the marketing of their product."

Bulletins Sent Free.

Anticipating the jobs that come along with the steaming kettles on hog killing day and the hanging of hams in the smoke house, or the problems in arithmetic that come in the woods in winter when there is lumber to be measured and marketed, a short list of bulletins and circulars sent free by the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., is suggested below:

Farmers' Bulletin 754, The Bedbug; 847, Potato Storage and Storage Houses; 970, Sweet Potato Storage; 1091, Lining and Loading Cars of Potatoes for Protection from Cold; 1096, Frost and the Prevention of Damage from It; 1105, Care of Mature Fowls; 1160, Diseases of Apples in Storage; 1186, Pork on the Farm: Killing, Curing, and Canning; 1194, Operating a Home Heating Plant; 1210, Measuring and Marketing Farm Timber.

Department Circular 238, U. S. Grades for Potatoes recommended by the United States department of agriculture.

A Rainbow Garden of Tulips for $2.00

In the May, flowering tulips, with their huge blossoms on stately stems, we find the supreme expression of color. No other flower can compare with the wide range of brilliant and delicate tints and shades which is offered by the Darwin, Cottage, and Breeder types. They will provide a brilliant spring show in any garden, and prove to you the high quality of the bulbs from Vaughan's Seed Store, which are the finest of Holland production, bought with the knowledge acquired in 40 year's experience in large volume imports.

"RAINBOW COLLECTION," with planting directions, 50 bulbs, not less than ten separate varieties, postpaid 300 miles, for $2.

Water Flowering Narcissi

STARTED now in bowls of gravel and water, or fiber and water, Paper White Narcissus bulbs will produce flowers for the holidays. Only large bulbs produce good flowers; the larger the finer. We offer the pick of the excellent crop harvested this year in France. Medium bulbs (13 centimeters in circumference), 66 cents per dozen; fancy bulbs (14 cm.), 70 cents per dozen; mammoth bulbs (15 cm.), 85c per dozen; jumbo bulbs (16 cm.), $1.10 per dozen. These prices are postage prepaid; cash and carry, 10 cents per dozen less.

Imperial Primer

For all makes of cars, trucks and tractors

$4.75 $4.00 For Fords

Start Your Motor Instantly in Cold Weather

Double the Life of your Storage Battery!

Flood your carburetor with gas—thin your crank case oil—fume and fret with the starter—heave with the crank—tear your battery to pieces trying to turn over a cold engine in stiff oil—or GET AN IMPERIAL PRIMER.

The Imperial Primer starts your car instantly. It's right handy on the dash. One stroke of the plunger atomizes the gasoline into such minute particles that the hot spark is caught and explosion follows with the first turn of the engine. No motorist can afford to be without one.

The battery expense eliminated will pay for an Imperial Primer many times in one winter. In addition, think of the saving of gas and wear on motor.

There's great difference between an Imperial Primer and the choker that comes on your car. The choker floods your carburetor and cylinders with gas which trickles down into your crank case, thins the oil and the result is terrific and unnecessary wear on every part of your motor. Every car needs an Imperial Primer.

The Imperial Primer is easily and quickly installed. A mechanic will put one on for you in a few minutes. You are losing money and neglecting your own convenience every day you are without one.

Install an Imperial Primer now! It will pay for itself in a month.

GUARANTEED SATISFACTION OR YOUR MONEY BACK.
We guarantee the IMPERIAL PRIMER to start your motor instantly, double the life of your battery, prevent thinning of crank case oil, and give you complete satisfaction. If it fails to do so, we will refund the purchase price.

SHOE COMPANY TO ADD 1,000 TO ITS PAY ROLLS

Florsheim Buys Site for Big Annex.

What is claimed to be the world's largest manufacturer of the more expensive grade of men's shoes, the Florsheim Shoe company of Chicago, has just bought a site for a $700,000 six story addition to its plant on the northwest side, which will add 1,000 employes to its present 2,500.

The property just acquired is at the southwest corner of Belmont and Harding, 225x125, also 209 on Crawford with a depth of 125 feet, also 120x125 on Harding adjoining the Belmont and Crawford frontage. The company already has a big factory on Belmont between Springfield and Harding, erected four years ago. It now has a total frontage of 940 feet in the neighborhood.

Work will at once start on the six story addition, designed by Alfred S. Alschuler, which will have 150,000 square feet, giving the company a total of 600,000 square feet of manufacturing space. The company at present is making 8,000 pairs of men's shoes daily. With the annex it will turn out between 11,000 and 12,000 pairs. This, it is claimed, will be considerably more than the combined production of all the high priced men's shoe factories in the country.

The company's main office and factory are at Adams, Clinton, Jefferson, and Quincy.

Operators' Piano Co. to Build $250,000 Factory

The Operators' Piano company, already one of the largest manufacturers of automatic pianos and other musical instruments in Chicago, now at 16 South Peoria, has purchased 250x126 at the southeast corner of Kedzie and Chicago avenues, and is building a $250,000 four story plant to cover the entire lot. The south half will be ready for occupancy by Dec. 31. The design and construction is being handled by Eugene C. Ecker and associates. Plans were drawn by Architect Harold E. Gallup.

COURT RULING MAKES EXAMINER OF TITLES ABSTRACT ARBITER

County Recorder Joseph F. Haas reports that the fight to make abstracts of title in Cook county of some value as a means of proving title to real property apparently has been successful. The text of a Supreme court of Illinois decision has just been received upholding as constitutional the act allowing the chief examiner of titles to certify abstracts of title which, when so certified, become admissible in evidence as a method of proving title to real estate in proceedings either at law or in equity.

Heretofore there have been only two proceedings in which the use of an abstract of title as method of proving title was authorized by statute; one was a proceeding under the burnt record act and the other under the Torrens act. In all other cases involving the question of title to real estate, such as ejectment suits, suits in chancery to quiet title, foreclosure proceedings, etc., an abstract could not be used.

Two years ago Mr. Haas had the chief examiner of titles, J. Scott Matthews, prepare an act which would allow abstracts to be used in any legal or equitable proceeding. This was passed and now has been upheld by the Supreme court.

This decision makes the chief examiner of titles the final arbiter as to abstracts of title in Cook county. If he is willing to certify an abstract of title, it can be received in evidence to prove title. If the abstract of title is not good in his judgment and he is unwilling to certify it, it cannot be received in evidence.

"This means that the Chicago Title and Trust company is no longer the final arbiter as to whether an abstract is good or not," said Mr. Matthews.

CENTRAL DISTRICT LEASE.

The Dunlop Tire and Rubber company has leased the third floor, with 16,000 square feet, in the Chicago Metallic Manufacturing company building at 3717 South Ashland, and will warehouse in and distribute from that point. The Central Manufacturing District bank negotiated the deal.

$400,000 Movie for Ridge and Howard

Oldefest & Williams designed the above structure to be erected by John Mangel and John Canger, loop florists, at the southwest corner of Ridge and Howard. Work will start next Thursday. It will have a 2,000 seat movie to be called "The Ridge," with the main entrance on Howard; shops on the first floor, and offices and apartments above. The building will be in the Spanish style of architecture, with a red tile roofed dome. It will be 150x200. The exterior will be of light brick with terra cotta trim. It will be ready about Feb. 1.

ARCHITECTURE

BY ARTHUR WOLTERSDORF.
[F. A. I. A.]

This column on architecture is written for The Tribune by Mr. Wolterdorf, representing the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

The real estate editor has, on occasion, used the expression "shirt front architecture." He tells this story of its origin at an architectural dinner in New York city.

A speaker, immaculately dressed in evening clothes of the latest cut, waxed eloquent in condemnation of the practice of erecting elaborate facades for high buildings, leaving exposed wall surfaces along lot lines and alleys barren of any architectural organization, or of material and color to harmonize with the pretentious facade. Such an offense against public taste could not be too severely condemned, and he designated such construction as "shirt front architecture."

His speech was punctuated and followed by resounding applause, to which the speaker gave acknowledgement in bows, followed immediately by his leaving the table and crossing the room to the door. Bursts of laughter followed his figure as demonstration of his point was seen on his person, for the back of his full dress coat was entirely cut off, showing emblazoned underneath a form fitting red flannel undershirt.

To Goethe is accredited the expression "frozen music," meaning architecture. In an articel in The Freeman, by Heinz Pringsheim, on the art of Mary Wigman's dancing, appears the following:

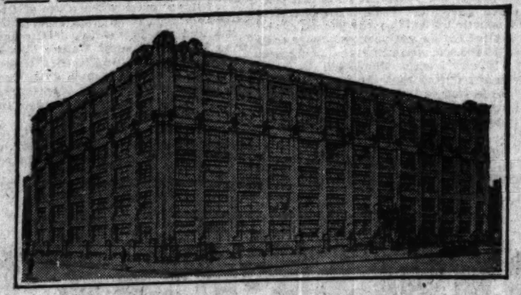

"Architecture has been called frozen music; it may also be called petrified dance. For like architecture, dancing in one of its aspects creates designs in space; the former an unchangeable, static design, the latter a dynamic one, by free and ever changing movements. The eyes glides along the lines of an edifice, lines planned by the architect; the cause of this movement of the eye is to be found in the principle that lies at the bottom of the significant designs created by the dancer in the formless unsignificant space. Thus, conversely, dancing may be called animated architecture.

"Whether it is a church, a theater, or a dwelling, the space designed by the architect always serves some practical purpose which determines its size and its style. The soaring columns and mystic gloom of Gothic churches, for instance, symbolize their transcendental character; the splendor of the Florentine palaces conveys the impression of princely opulence; the cosy comfort of Dutch interiors radiates simple solidity. The dancer, on the contrary, impelled by his need of self-expression, delineates space untrammeled by considerations of utility; he practices, in its purest form, the art of creating designs in space."

Pencil Maker Gives Son Property in Evanston

Wesley L. Knox has sold the northeast corner of Edgemere court and Main street, Evanston, 193x300, overlooking Clark park, to John C. Wahl, head of the Eversharp Pencil company, for $80,000. The south sixty feet have been given by Mr. Wahl to his son, J. Estabrook, and the balance sold to Sidney S. Gorham. Two residences will be erected and the property landscaped. Mr. Knox bought the property in 1890. It was then a sand dune with only one small tree on it. He at once set out trees and shrubbery on this and other property he acquired at the time.

$700,000 Addition to Shoe Factory

Above is a $700,000 addition to the Florsheim Shoe company's Belmont avenue branch factory, designed by Architect Alfred S. Alschuler. More is told about it in a nearby column.

"PRESTO-UP" Permanent Garages!

These world's famous "Presto-Up," patented permanent Garages are easily within reach of all. Cheaper than garage rent because they pay for themselves in one year, earning 100 per cent on the investment for you. Many are buying double garages and allowing the rental on the other half to pay their installments.

Made Complete Here in Our Factory!

"PRESTO-UP" PATENTED GARAGES COME TO YOU IN COMplete units, can be erected in a day, eliminating all the worries of buying lumber, hardware, glass, paints, etc., and the attendant annoyances and muss and fuss around your yard for weeks; therefore do not be confused by attractive offers that mean only a load or two of rough lumber—when you buy a "PRESTO-UP" you can come here and see the buildings showing exactly how the finished building will appear on your lot. No guesswork; no substitution; no disappointments. "PRESTO-UP" garages are permanent, much stronger than many garages built under old style methods.

QUICK DELIVERY!

Garages erected by customer can be delivered immediately. When erected by us a few days extra are required. Time payment orders require a few days additional.

ALL OTHER SIZES TO CHOOSE FROM AT PROPORTIONATELY LOW FALL SALE PRICES!

Best Quality Material Throughout!

ONLY THE BEST LUMBER USED—EXTRA HEAVY SILLS, plates and corner posts—clear kiln dried fir siding—fifteen year guaranteed slate surfaced roofing, all hardware, extra heavy hinges, patented door holders, patented "No-Sag" roof trusses. "No-Sag" auto doors. Auto doors painted both sides, balance of garage painted outside one good coat of house paint, trimmed in white. Many other exclusive features make them the best garages on the market. We invite your most careful comparison.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

PLAN 15 STORY HOSTELRY FOR THE GOLD COAST

Horace L. Brand to Build on Cedar Street.

BY AL CHASE.

Chicagoans are slowly but surely learning that motor noisy and gasoline odorous boulevards are not as satisfactory for hotels as the nearby quiet side streets, with honkless atmosphere, clean pavements and gasless air. Time was when every hotel outside the loop must be on a boulevard if possible. Now prospective hotel builders more and more avoid the roar and smell of motor packed parkways and seek sites on quiet bystreets little used by cars.

The gold coast is to have a magnificent new hotel tucked away on one of its quietest and most exclusive thoroughfares—Cedar street. Horace L. Brand is going to erect a fifteen story structure at No. 33, which is expected will equal anything in Chicago's hotel world.

Setback Gives Promenade.

Glaver & Dinkelberg, architects and engineers, have drawn plans for a structure interesting in several ways. Every room will have an outside exposure, for the new Hotel Brand will be only fifty-eight feet deep, one of the shallowest in the country, although 210 feet long.

Above the thirteenth story will be a set back similar to the method now so common in New York, in compliance with the new zoning law, and the fourteenth and fifteenth stories will comprise this section. These two floors will be surrounded by an open air garden and promenade.

Topping all will be a two story pent house to care for all the ordinary roof architectural atrocities which disfigure the average skyscraping hostelry. But instead of it being merely stuck on the top, as is the custom in many Chicago structures, this is made an architectural part of the whole and adds to the beauty of the entire structure instead of detracting from it.

A Hint to Architects.

We respectfully call what Glaver & Dinkelberg have done to the attention of the architects of several big Chicago hotels recently erected, in which either no attempt was made to hide the usual roof disfigurements or, if so, they were placed under boxlike structures which bear no architectural relation to the rest of the structure. We wonder if architects think the average citizen suffers from myopia and can't see above the cornice?

The new Brand will have 408 rooms, all with bath, from the fourth to the fifteenth floors. The first floor will have the lobby and shops. A grill, main dining room, private dining rooms, music gallery, and kitchen will be on the second floor. The third floor will contain the men's writing room, cardrooms, ladies' parlor, lounge, etc. There'll be a billiard room and bowling alley in the basement.

Work is expected to start in the spring, with completion date set for late in the fall.

Old People's Home for Norwegian Lutherans

Architects Lindblad & Carlson designed the new building of the Old People's home for the Norwegian Lutheran Bethesda Home association as shown above. It'll cover the entire block, with 266 feet of west frontage on Nordica avenue, between George and Wolfram streets, with 200 feet frontage on each of the latter thoroughfares. It will be fireproof and care for approximately 100 aged men and women. There'll be an assembly hall and a large dining room. Work will start within a month, with the completion date set for next spring. The present home is at 2244 Haddon avenue.

PREDICTS DOWNWARD TREND IN BUILDING COSTS DURING 1924

Walter J. Greenebaum, vice president of the Greenebaum Sons Investment company, yesterday predicted that although there would probably be some activity in construction during the early part of 1924, no records would be broken. Instead, he believes the general movement in building costs in 1924 should be slightly downward.

"During the early part of April, when building construction was booming, THE TRIBUNE printed an interview in which I predicted that there would be a slump during the latter part of the year," he said. "This prediction was confirmed immediately afterward, when most of the more responsible first mortgage bond houses announced that they would do no more new financing for speculative purposes until building conditions were more stabilized. The word of caution sounded from many sides was heeded throughout the country in time to avoid any serious trouble.

"Because of the scarcity and inefficiency of building labor and high cost of material the boom is now gradually subsiding. The greatest activity of the year has been in residential and industrial buildings, while there has been a decided decrease in business buildings, hospitals, and public works of all kinds during the last few months."

Begin on Chinese Cafe at 7455 Cottage Grove Ave.

Oldefest & Williams designed the $150,000 Mannos building, work on which has just started at 7455 Cottage Grove. It will have four stores, an elaborate Chinese café with dancing floor, leased for twenty years at a term rents lof $132,000 to Mandol & Chandoe, operators of the Jack Rabbit inn at Stony Island and 67th, and a billiard hall and offices. Nick Mannos is owner. Completion date is set for Feb. 1.

General Offices of Palm Olive to Move to Chicago

The Palm Olive company will move its general offices from Milwaukee to the two upper floors of the London Guarantee building, of which Willoughby & Co. are agents.

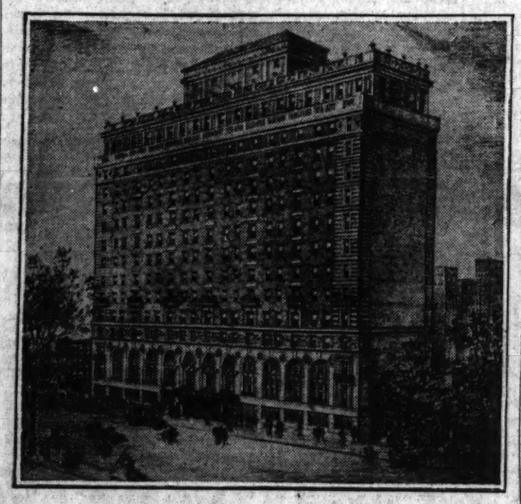

BUYS MADISON-KEELER CORNER.

Frank A. P. Gasiolo, manager of several theaters, has bought the 50x175 with old improvements at the northeast corner of Madison and Keeler for a reported $50,000 cash.

$150,000 FOR EVANSTON FLATS.

Roy F. France has sold the new twenty-flat flats at Sherman and Reba, Evanston, to L. E. Cohen for a reported $185,000, subject to $150,000, through Liepold & Hicks.

$1,500,000 Hotel for Cedar Street

Glaver & Dinkelberg are architects and engineers of the above Hotel Brand, to be built at 33 Cedar street. It will be of Bedford stone and granite up to the fifth floor, and of light pink brick above that, with quoins of terra cotta matching the stone base. All four sides will be of the same kind of brick. The roof of the two story penthouse will be of green tile. More is told in another column.

PLAN $250,000 FAMILY HOTEL ON PINE GROVE

Harold T. Peterson has bought the lot at 3727-29 Pine Grove, 50x225, for a reported $40,000, and is wrecking the present improvements to make way for a fifty-one kitchenette apartment building to cost $250,000, the general contract for which has been let to Kurt Rosenthal & Co. Olsen & Urbain are architects. The building has been leased for ten years to John Hays, to be operated as a family hotel.

Mr. Rosenthal has bought the 108 feet at 3237-45 North Ashland and will erect six stores. LeRoy Hirsch was broker.

PLANS EVANSTON SUBDIVISION.

Franklin Gray has bought from Dr. Fenton B. Turck approximately 5,300 feet of frontage on Emerson, Dodge, Brown, Grey, and Foster, in Evanston, near the sanitary district channel, for a reported $50,000, and will subdivide. Quinlan & Tyson represented both parties.

BUYS ACRES FOR INDUSTRY.

William P. Hoyt sold sixty-five acres at the northeast corner of Ellis and 130th to Abraham Waraaw for the Lawrence estate at $48,750, for industrial purposes.

$350,000 Flat and Garage for New South Shore Park

David Saul Klafter is drawing plans for a $350,000 garage and apartment building, to cover the entire block of north front on 75th, between Essex and Kingston. Rudulph Lederer bought the site from the South Shore Land trust for $121,750.

Mr. Klafter also is drawing plans for a $150,000 store and flat building at the northeast corner of 79th and Phillips for William Jackson. Both deals were made by the North Shore Trust & Savings.

Building Material

We are wrecking twelve blocks of buildings on South Park Avenue from 23rd Street to 35th Street, including very fancy homes, warehouses, factory buildings, public garages, stores, office buildings, apartments, etc., and have building material of every description for sale.

On account of the limited time we have to complete these wrecking operations we are selling everything at extremely low prices. Take advantage of this opportunity to obtain your repairing or building requirements at an enormous saving.

Realty Comments

Ross & Co. have revised and enlarged their map of the near north side so that it now covers a territory extending north to Fullerton, west to Cleveland avenue and Townsend street. Its in colors and is one of the most comprehensive and valuable maps of its kind we've seen.

Some zoning items: Wheaton, after more than a year of uncertainty, has at last passed a zoning ordinance. Harvey is now considering zoning. Highland Park is considering increasing its zoning scope by annexing all of Deerfield township.

Alfred Gordon writes in that he unintentionally misinformed THE TRIBUNE that he was editor in chief of the Oak Parker, as printed in this department recently. "I find I'm not the editor in chief of the Oak Parker, nor am I the editor of the Oak Parker," he writes. "My title appears to be editorial writer of the editorial page of that publication."

Fred J. Stebbins has been elected president of the South State Street Improvement association, succeeding Philetus W. Gates. Murray Wolbach is the new vice president. Arthur B. Hall is treasurer. John P. Hooker continues secretary and Leo Heller executive secretary.

Woman Pays $100,000 for Uptown Six Flat Building

Mrs. Emma McFadden has bought from Erich Edelmann the six flats at 616-18 Waveland for a reported $100,000, subject to $55,000. Miss Theresa Peyton was broker.

FLATS FOR NORTH KEDZIE.

Oman & Lallenthal have designed a forty-eight flat building to cost $275,000, to be erected at 2114-22 North Kedzie by A. Z. Eliscu and D. Horowitz.

BUYS NINE ONE STORY STORES.

The nine one story stores at the northeast corner of Kimbark and 61st, 70x177, were sold by Harry Levine to J. S. Frank, through E. G. Pauling & Co., for a reported $85,000. Hugo Ash represented the buyers.

GRASMERE HOTEL LEASED BY MANAGER OF PLANTERS HOTEL

E. L. Wenzel, operator of the Planters and Washington hotels in the loop, has leased from Frank Cuneo the Grasmere hotel at the southeast corner of Sheridan road and Eastwood for ten years at a term rental of $239,000. It is a four story building with 110 rooms.

The Grasmere Hotel company has been organized with Mr. Wenzel president. His brother, Fred B. Wenzel, will be manager. All of the present furniture has been sold and the building is being entirely refurnished. It will reopen on Nov. 1.

Mr. Wenzel recently leased the northeast corner of La Salle and Randolph and intends to erect a $1,500,000 twenty-six story Hotel Lincoln.

Printers Buy Site on New Boulevard for $100,000

The Magill Weinsheimer company has bought the northeast corner of 25th and Grand boulevard, 250x127, from the Mary Morris Walker estate for a reported $100,000, as a possible site for a large printing plant. The Bowes Realty company and Harrison L. Van Schaick were brokers.

PLAN CHOP SUEY CAFE.

The Monroe inn has rented the second and third floors at 42-46 South Clark and will remodel into a Chinese-American café. F. Johnson of W. H. Wilson & Co. represented the lessors and A. Z. Ohlsen of John P. Hooker & Co., the lessees.

NORTH LA SALLE RESIDENCE SOLD.

The twenty-two room residence and commercial garage at 1557 North La Salle, 50x151, have been sold by Paul F. Battle to Julius Solovay and Harry Levin for a reported $40,000. Frankel, Casey & Co. represented all parties.

WHEAT VALUES AVERAGE HIGHER; CORN IN SLUMP

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Hedging sales against purchases of Canadian wheat by American mills, cash estimates that 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 bu had been bought so far, had a decidedly depressing effect on values this side of the international line. Minneapolis showed the most weakness, and at the inside was off 1⅛c from the close of the previous day, but finished 1c lower. However, the undertone locally was not weak, with the finish unchanged to ½c lower, ruling that something decidedly bullish would come out of Washington shortly having some effect. December finished at $1.06¾ and May at $1.11⅛.

Corn was firm early, but broke sharply toward the last and finished ⅛@⅜c lower, with December at 73½c and May at 71⅝c. Oats were ½c higher to ½c lower and rye unchanged to ¼c lower.

Wheat Higher for Week.

Despite the unusually heavy movement of Canadian wheat into this country, prices averaged higher for the week, with the finish at net gains of ⅛@⅜c. A material decline in the price of old and new cash corn was reflected in futures, which were off 1⅛@2¼c, as compared with the previous week, while oats were unchanged to ⅛c higher and rye ⅝@¾c higher. Lard gained 15@25c, ribs 7½@25c and clear bellies 12½c for the week.

The pronounced weakness at Minneapolis was the direct result of hedging there by mills, which were estimated to have taken 250,000 bu over night, making around 500,000 bu in the last few days. The wheat was said to have been bought at equal to 2c under what the same grade could be bought in the sample market. A local mill is bringing down a cargo of Canadian wheat and Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Michigan and New Jersey mills were credited with having made liberal purchases on the basis of $1.30@1.32, c. i. f. Toledo for No. 2 northern.

While grain traders confidentially expect that the import duty on Canadian wheat will be raised to 45c per bu, grain from that country is flowing into the United States in sufficient volume to put a check for the time being to the talk of domestic scarcity east of the Rockies. Export demand is slow.

New Cash Corn Lower.

Increased receipts of new cash corn are having a depressing effect on futures. Local arrivals of new were around 25 cars and prices off 2@3c. Messages from Decatur, Ill., indicated that arrivals of new grain there Monday would be around 50 cars. Old corn here was unchanged to ½c higher. The futures held up well early, but the undertone became weak at the last and the finish was at the bottom. Weather conditions are a dominating influence.

Selling of May oats here against purchases at Winnipeg by spreaders was a feature in that market. Trade, however, was not large, but the undertone was much firmer than corn.

Northwest Sells Rye.

Houses with northwestern connections were on the selling side of rye. Bulls are getting no encouragement in the way of export demand and the action of what has considerable influence at times.

Provisions were dull and slightly easier with lard off 2½@5c at the last. Ribs and clear bellies were nominally unchanged. Cash trade was reported as fairly good. Packing of hogs at Chicago for the season to date is 5,313,000, against 4,024,000 last year. Prices follow:

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

With imports of Canadian wheat increasing there is a disposition on the part of American holders to let go on strong spots. This tends to weaken values in the northwest which is the highest primary market in the country and check new investment buying. The trade awaits definite news from Washington as to the attitude of the government officials on the proposed plan for relieving the farmers.

Deliveries of cash wheat at Winnipeg so far this week exceed 2,000,000 bu at October price, with No. 2 northern 2¾c under, and No. 3 at 8c discount, the latter being on a delivery basis. It is the latter grade that is being brought into the states for milling, being good wheat. Country deliveries in western Canada continue heavy.

Winnipeg reports that only 40 to 60 per cent of the wheat leaving farmers' hands in the northwest is being marketed. There is a big demand for Buffalo tonnage, and with the difficulty between the Canadian commission and the American boat owners settled a large movement is expected.

A Winnipeg man claims that there is a larger export business in wheat under way daily than is reported. He also says that there is an extended short interest in futures there with no one getting anywhere on short sales.

"Emergency relief has been the war cry for the last several months of those who are trying to devise methods of helping the farmer," says S. C. Harris in an extended review of the wheat situation. "We do not know of any single plan for assistance which has implied any permanent subsidy. The implication in every case has been that if we could get rid in some way of 50,000,000 or 100,000,000, or 102,000,000 bu of wheat this year we would have worked out the farmers' salvation." "How much truth is there in such an assumption?" says Mr. Harris. He continues: "Politicians and others who are ignorant of conditions in the grain trade say honestly they believe that a gift of wheat to Germany will permanently solve the farmers' problem, but men who have devoted their lives to a study of the grain business can hardly be expected to share sincerely in this opinion. There is no evidence that the farmer himself is willing to resort to a reduction of acreage in order to pull himself out of the hole. Is he keeping faith with the taxpayer when he asks for 'emergency relief?'"

Nearly 50 per cent of the receipts of corn at Chicago yesterday were of new, a large percentage being sample grade. Wet weather yesterday materially lowered the grading.

"Sales of corn for October shipment have all been filled," said a local shipper. "Two of the largest shippers came into the market at the last and bid old No. 2 white up to $1.05, while yellow was $1.03. I cannot recall a year when there was so little corn sold to go east in November as at present and it is difficult to place any corn for shipment within the next thirty days."

Wheat stocks at Fort William are 23,265,090 bu, an increase of 3,846,000 bu for the week and a year ago stocks were 26,883,000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn since Nov. 1, 1922, aggregate 276,584,000 bu, compared with 337,000,000 bu for the same time last year. Chicago has received 117,220,000 bu against 183,815,000 bu last year.

Primary receipts of grain last week of 18,556,000 bushels were 9 per cent below the five year average, showing a reduction for the week of 5,802,000 bushels and from last year of 6,803,000 bushels. Wheat receipts were the smallest and of oats were the largest in more than five years, while of corn they were the smallest at this time since the last week in October, 1920.

CASH GRAIN NEWS

Export demand for wheat at the seaboard was slow, with sales estimated at 100,000 bu in all positions. Russia was reported offering wheat abroad cheaper than American durums, and was said to be competing for the Greek order due around Nov. 1. A foreign export house at New York was credited with stating that his firm had bought 100,000 tons of Russian wheat for European account, or 3,700,000 bu.

Chicago handlers sold 75,000 bu wheat, 35,000 bu corn, and 75,000 bu oats to the domestic trade.

Offerings of spot wheat at Chicago were limited, with No. 2 hard 2@3c over December. Receipts, 10 cars. Outside markets unchanged to 1c lower.

New cash corn dropped 2@3c at Chicago and prices are gradually readjusting to a basis with futures. Around 50 cars of new were received, with prospects for much larger arrivals this week. In the cash table Chicago quotations for No. 4 and lower represent new grain. Receipts, 165 cars.

Old corn here was unchanged to 1c higher, while other markets were unchanged to 2c lower with Kansas City leading.

Cash oats continue in demand, with No. 2 white 1¼@2c over and No. 3 white ½c under to 1½c over the future. Receipts, 45 cars.

COTTON MARKETS

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—COTTON—Realizing sales carried prices off early, but good buying developed later, which sent values to the highest of the day and closed them at around the top, with net gains of 36@13 points. A New Orleans house estimated the crop at 9,500,000 bales, the lowest so far. The impression is the next government report, due Nov. 1, will show a smaller crop than that of last month. Cold weather prevailed over northern Texas and Oklahoma. Marketing has been heavy, and the bulk of the crop has passed from farmers' hands. Prices follow:

Mortgage Maturities

Re-financing—One of the Principal Functions of This Organization

When the mortgage matures and a renewal is contemplated, the problem of re-financing should receive as much thought and consideration as was given when the original loan was placed.

Our many years of experience in Real Estate Financing places us in a position to give sound counsel and advice on this important branch of the business. We are in a position to consider renewal loans in amounts up to $1,000,000 on high grade apartment houses, good industrial buildings and centrally located business properties.

How Much Are Your Bonds Earning?

As every experienced investor knows, it is not the interest rate alone but the final yield that counts in determining income.

Here is an ingenious chart that takes the place of the bulky and complicated bond yield tables for which investors have had to pay from $2.50 to $5.00.

This chart shows yields of from 3% to 10%, and can be used on maturities ranging from 6 months to 30 years. A supplementary interest table shows accrued interest at rates varying from 3% to 10% per annum.

We shall be pleased to mail one of these charts without obligation to any investor who is interested.

FOR SALE
Portland Cement Plant

In order to clear up an estate we offer this wonderful property at an exceptionally low price for immediate sale.

Properties include approximately three hundred acres containing millions of tons of raw material, quarries, power house, rotary building, raw material building, shale and crusher building, cement warehouse, dry grinding building, office building, machine shop, railroad sidings, tenant houses and outbuildings.

These buildings with present machinery have an appraised value of over five hundred thousand dollars. Altho the plant has not been operated for some time it could, with some addition to the present equipment, be developed into as fine a producing Portland Cement Plant as there is in the country. The product has always stood the highest tests.

Centrally located in the State of Indiana, and easily accessible—with favorable freight rates to the Chicago, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Toledo, Cleveland, Cincinnati, and intermediate markets. This proposition is an exceptional buy and will be sold at a bargain.

A payment down option will be considered pending visiting the properties or a more detailed description furnished upon application.

BRITAIN'S LABOR TROUBLE LAID TO FARM DESERTION

BY SCRUTATOR.

As the imperial conference continues its sittings and as winter creeps up, the pages of British newspapers are smeared with calamity. Although the number of unemployed is less than last year, concern over the coming winter is deeper. The unemployed have shown an uglier mood than is usual among the British working class.

Americans who have been fed up with the strictly constitutional and parliamentary talk of the leaders of the British Labor party have not generally noted that these official leaders are losing their grip on their followers. They talk like a lot of Girondins already. Judging from past form, Britain is getting ready to "muddle through" again. The muddle this time may be rather drastic.

The pat explanation of Britain's plight here and over there is the French policy in Germany.

We are told on all sides that Britain needs a revived Germany and central Europe.

No sane man would dispute that this is desirable. But how much is it going to help Britain? Getting down to brass tacks, how much is Britain's plight really due to either the war or its aftermath?

In 1912 and 1913 it was this strong industrialized Germany that was eating Britain up. Her ocean carrying business was being taken from her. Her markets were being lost. A commonplace magazine story from nearly every port in the Far East pictured the German commercial traveler going out and getting the business, while the Briton was playing cricket or sipping 5 o'clock tea. Unemployment was becoming chronic long before the war.

Granted that the war and the disorganization of Germany has brought the crisis to an earlier head than would have otherwise been reached, isn't the fundamental cause of Britain's trouble further back?

As history unfolds and science unlocks the secrets of human progress and behavior, the nineteenth century assumes a new aspect.

In science and the increase of man's power over nature it was a great age. In politics and economic theory it represented an effort to apply to all sorts of men institutions and laws which were assumed to have validity, because they conformed to a lot of metaphysical abstractions.

Both prophets and charlatans abounded. It would be presumptuous, this close at hand, for any one to pass judgment, but it is not impossible that in history's final reckoning many of the prophets will turn out to have been charlatans, and many of the rejected teachers will be vindicated.

In repealing the corn laws Britain surrendered to "liberalism" on the economic field. She embraced free trade and its implied internationalism. She elected to stake her future on her ability to pay for her victuals with the product of her factories sold abroad.

The Tories protested that no nation could endure on such foundation. It is beginning to look like the tories were right.

Certainly the soundest parts of the fabric of the British empire today are the colonies and some of the tropical possessions. Without them Britain would be in a terrible pass indeed. But colonialism and expansion represent successes of tory policy. To Cobden and the Manchesterians they are hateful.

But it is hard to read a British newspaper today and refrain from the thought that, even if Britain had altered her course as late as Joe Chamberlain's day, she would be better off.

Of course, she will come through; so will Germany. It is just as impossible to destroy a whole people as it is to indict one. Both Germany and Britain have brains and fighters left. But both of them would be better off today if they had a bigger percentage of farmers like France and the United States. We will hear much of "back to the land" from both countries in the next few years. And, lest we get all swelled up over here because the Lord was so kind to us in the matter of land and fuel, we had better realize that the mistaken choice that Britain made eighty years ago will be up to us soon.

FINANCIAL NOTES

In yesterday's stock markets, thirty-six issues broke through to new low records for the year. The thin market for a few ordinarily inactive issues resulted in breaks of 3 to 7 points when they were pressed for sale. The customary industrial leaders yielded slightly, if at all, and most of the high grade rails held relatively firm, although Atchison yielded fractionally to a new 1923 minimum price, as did Frisco common.

Among those to sink to new lows, however, were such issues as American Sugar common and preferred, Famous Players common and preferred, American Woolen common and preferred, International Harvester common and preferred, Coca Cola, Central Leather, Producers and Refiners, American Smelting, and the Market Street Railway issues. Some of these recovered all or part of their losses in the sporadic short covering that took place just before the close. The brisk recovery in Famous Players was based on a more favorable interpretation of its recent decision to temporarily suspend the production of pictures.

Selling of the American Tobacco and Tobacco Products issues was based on reports of a department of justice inquiry into the trade agreement recently announced by the two companies. Officials, however, seemed no opposition to the deal and it was stated that attorneys of both companies have made a thorough canvass of the legal side of the deal and are satisfied that any opposition would not be sustained.

A shrinkage of more than $2,000,000,000 has occurred in 233 listed stocks since the bear market got under way last March. At that time, according to a compilation made by the Standard Statistics company, the market value of these stocks was no less than $14,000,000,000 and the decline to the present date is in excess of 15 per cent. Nevertheless, the value of these securities still is $2,500,000,0000 greater than it was at the trough of the bear market in 1921.

Extremely thin markets have developed in any number of the inactive stocks on the exchange and woe betide the helpless stockholder who is obliged to dump his stock on the market. "At the market" orders get a cool reception from the specialists these days and in most cases a big loss must be taken. An instance of this occurred just before the market closed yesterday. Union Bag and Paper had been ranging quietly between 57 and 60 during the week. The last sale was 57. An unfortunate speculator was obliged to sell 500 shares at the market. He got 50 for it.

The General Motors corporation announced yesterday that the Olds motor works of Lansing, Mich., has entered into a contract with Kelly-Springfield for the purchase of a portion of its tire requirements, but that the contract does not include all the original tire equipment for the Oldsmobile and other General Motors units as previously reported.

Stockholders of the White Rock Mineral Springs company will vote Nov. 15 on a proposal to change present outstanding common stock into 200,000 shares without par value. The plan provides for the exchange of five shares of new stock for each one of the old shares.

The Chicago Federal Reserve bank reports the weekly movement of credits as follows: Debits to individual deposit accounts reported for the week ending Oct. 24, by 268 banks in 35 leading clearing house cities in the seventh federal reserve district, aggregate $1,239,957,000, an increase of 3.6 per cent compared with a week ago. Aggregate debits to individual deposit account reported by 261 banks in 33 clearing houses amounted to $1,131,473,000, an increase of 7.3 per cent compared with the corresponding week of last year.

With the view of affording additional protection to investors Chicago bankers and members of La Salle street banking houses have reorganized the Advertisers and Investors' Protective bureau, Inc., with the aid of the Chicago Association of Commerce. The bureau rendered effective service for several years, and there is now a broad demand for the revival of its activities.

The special stockholders' meeting of the Beechnut Packing company to vote on the proposed stock dividend of 50 per cent will be held Nov. 14. Holders of record Oct. 29 will be entitled to vote.

Directors of the Oklahoma Natural Gas company at their meeting to be held shortly will increase the dividend rate to a 6 per cent basis. The stock is now paying 4 per cent. Later on it is the intention to place the stock on an 8 per cent basis, according to authoritative information.

D. L. Owsley has been appointed receiver of the Sapulpa Refining company on application of the officers of the company. Attorneys say the receivership will be short, as reorganization plans are under way.

There were 469 commercial failures in the United States last week, according to figures compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., compared with 386 in the preceding week and 357 during the corresponding week last year.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Following the trend of the listed markets, local unlisted securities, with few exceptions, developed a reactionary tendency and the majority of issues suffered declines.

Ford of Canada was under pressure throughout, breaking from 320 to a close of 302. Paige-Detroit reflected a further decline of 1 point to 17½ bid, 17⅝ asked. Timken-Axle was fractionally lower at 5⅝ bid, 5¾ asked. Rickenbacher Motors was offered at 8¼, with little interest on the buying side. Motor Products was an exception, advancing approximately 8 points to a close of 153 bid, 153 asked. Butler Brothers after selling at 32 broke to a close of 32¾ bid, 34 asked, ex-dividend 62½ cents. Fairbanks Morse showed little change, all trades being made around 48¼ to 49.

Elgin National Watch was generally wanted at 9¼, with odd lot offerings at 48. Republic Coke was quoted throughout 43 bid, 45 asked, with no reported sales. Some few trades of National Grocer common were reported at 7⅞ and 8. Northwestern Yeast was quoted 190 bid, 193 asked, with little stock changing hands. Creamery Package was again offered at 34, with buyers at 33½. Bunzyus common sold at 89½, while the preferred was quoted 104 bid, 106 asked. Kellogg Company common again sold at 20⅝ and 21.

Public Utilities ruled firm throughout. American Light and Traction common was the outstanding feature of the list, advancing some 7 points to a close of 118½ to 119½. Offerings of Illinois Traction common found ready sale at 50½ and 60. Commonwealth Power, Railway, and Light common was heavy, relinquishing 1½ points at 33½ bid, 34½ asked. The Commonwealth Power Corporation preferred, ex-dividend 1¾ points, closed at 69½ bid, 70½ asked.

The sugar issues were dull with little change in quotations. Bid and asked prices follow: Columbia, 6⅝ to 7; Holland-St. Louis, 5¼ to 5½; Michigan, 5⅜ to 6; Utah-Idaho, 3½ to 3⅝.

CORPORATION EARNINGS

REPUBLIC STEEL.

Consolidated income statement, including Wharton and Northern Railroad company and Ferro Monte Railroad company, for quarter ended Sept. 10, 1923, shows loss of $79,789, after provision for depletion, depreciation, and maintenance. This compares with deficit of $18,741 in preceding quarter and loss of $03,533 for first quarter of 1923. For nine months ended Sept. 30, 1923, the company reported a loss of $192,063.

COLORADO FUEL AND IRON.

For the quarter ended Sept. 30, there was a deficit of $356,344 after interest, depreciation, and preferred dividends, against a balance of $458,057, or $1.33 a share on common, in preceding quarter and deficit of $171,462 in 1922. For nine months to Sept. 30 the balance available for common was $564,126, or $2.29 a share, after deducting interest, depreciation and preferred dividends, against a deficit of $581,161 in 1922.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA EDISON.

September net earnings were $1,178,000, an increase of 26 per cent over September, 1922. For the twelve months to Sept. 30 the gross was $12,485,000 and net was $11,285,000. Balance after charges was $8,012,000, an increase of 17.14 per cent over the previous year.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—COTTONSEED OIL.—October prices advanced 80 points above the previous high, or to 13.50c. Later months closed 3 to 10 points net lower. Sales, 4,900 brls. Prime crude, 10.00c asked; prime summer yellow, spot, 12.00c bid. October closed 13.50c; December, 11.26c; March, 11.27c; May, 11.42c, all bid.

The oil industry continues to present a problem perplexing alike to those engaged in the business and to the investor in oil securities. In July we published an article dealing with the country's overproduction at that time and its probable effect on the industry. This overproduction still continues, with the resultant reductions in prices of crude oil and its derivatives. Although retrenchments have been reported all along the line, and drastic measures attempted to remedy the situation, production and storage continue to be vastly in excess of the demand for the products. And, despite the fact that oil is being produced greatly in excess of consumption, there are over 500 refineries in the United States having a combined capacity of about 2,175,000 barrels, which is very largely in excess of even the present abnormal production.

It is estimated that over 1,000,000,000 gallons of gasoline are in storage at the present time. This is about 50 per cent more than the demand seems to warrant. It will cost millions of dollars to carry this and other oil storage through the winter, until consumption is resumed on a large scale in the spring. Many companies loaded up when prices were high. They now have to choose between two evils—either to unload at a large sacrifice at the present market, or to continue paying heavy storage charges which some of them cannot afford. Competition is forcing refineries to shut down, and it is probable that a number of these never will reopen.

A good deal of financing will be necessary in the oil industry during the winter to carry companies over the slack season. Of course, there are some companies who financial strength will carry them through the winter months without financing, but there are weaker companies that will go under.

On the whole, the present situation in the oil industry is not one to inspire confidence, and until real proof is forthcoming that production actually has been reduced to such an extent as to make a readjustment of the industry possible the prospective purchaser of oil securities will do well to make a most careful and thorough investigation before investing. It is by no means safe to assume that the real crisis has yet been passed, or that the low price level in oil securities has yet been reached.

FORMAN FIRST MORTGAGE GOLD BONDS

Either an Investment is Sound or Unsound —there is no Halfway Ground

THE slightest doubt—the least suspicion of unsoundness—is sufficient to put an investment into the questionable class.

To be perfectly safe every detail of an investment must be "beyond reproach." There must be no vague or clouded statements, no uncertain or unexplained details.

Only an investment of absolute integrity and proved soundness can be expected to pay interest and principal promptly and fully when due. Such an investment is the only one worthy of the name—all others are merely speculations.

To assist the investor in selecting investments which will be 100% sound we have embodied in a book the investment knowledge acquired in our thirty-eight years of conservative business practice—during which time many millions of dollars have been invested in 20,000 separate investments without the loss of a penny to any customer. This book is called "How to Select Safe Bonds." It is now free to every investor. Mail this request blank at once for your copy. There is no obligation.

The New York Times.

New York, Oct. 27.—[Special.]—Today's stock market repeated the pictures presented in the two or three preceding days of a generally motionless market in which, however, pressure was applied by professional speculators to force down the price of certain isolated stocks.

The real investment community does not appear to have been moved to action either by its own necessities or by the spread of anything like apprehension regarding business conditions. Its attitude has been one of apathy, of unwillingness either to buy or sell; yet the testimony seems equally to be that the available investment fund is large and widely distributed. This is undoubtedly a curious situation whose larger results are likely to be determined by actual developments in trade or politics.

Trend of Prices Is Downward.

While the movement of prices on the stock exchange was decidedly irregular during the two hours of business, due to the evening up operations for both long and short accounts, the trend of prices, especially in the industrial stocks, as shown by the averages, was lower.

At the start of business prices were little changed from the previous closing, but as the forenoon progressed liquidation was again in evidence among those stocks which have been weak of late. Just before the close, however, there was a rally which carried many issues above the low prices for the day. Among the market leaders, such as American Can, Steel common, Studebaker and Baldwin, only fractional declines were reported, these stocks again displaying resistance to the decline, as they have done recently.

European Affairs Ignored.

The indifference which the stock market has shown in regard to the new move in reparations was fully duplicated today in the foreign exchange market, which scarcely moved during the day. Sterling and francs were a small fraction lower, while the mark's infinitesimal figure moved up to nearly double its lowest price of Thursday.

There was no further demonstration of importance in today's cotton market, which, in view of the recent violent advance, is likely to be in a state of more or less confused uncertainty while awaiting the government's special estimate of next Friday. It has been the hard fate of the cotton trade, in several recent years, to have prices battered one way and then another by official forecasts which would be published in one month and radically corrected in another.

New York Bank Reserves Fall.

Although excess reserves of the New York clearing house banks decreased $16,103,710 this week to $21,991,020, aggregate reserves are still in a comfortable position with a total of $512,849,000. There was an expansion of $9,263,000 in loans, while deposits experienced a shrinkage of $5,039,000 and government deposits were reduced $5,003,000. Meanwhile circulation was increased only $4,000. WILLS SAINTE CLAIRE

Supreme

THE supremacy of the Wills Sainte Claire is the supremacy of inherent quality—the inevitable expression of justified public confidence.

Never before has engineering genius produced a motor car that so completely realizes the highest expectations of experienced motorists.

The Wills Sainte Claire is a distinctive car—exclusive in design, unequalled in the fineness of its workmanship.

A car that brings to you not merely transportation for a season or two—but an indefinite number of years of joyous, carefree, contented motoring.

The materials of which it is built—Mo-lyb-den-um steel for all its essential parts insures strength and durability beyond all possible requirements—and that means long life and freedom from trouble—low maintenance cost—years of dependable service.

The design of its motor, embodying the finest principles of engineering practice insures an exceptional range and volume of power.

The craftsmanship of it—so fine and accurate in its precision that every part and bearing is instantly interchangeable without fitting.

The Wills Sainte Claire is to an amazing extent a care-free car.

There are no chains or belts on the motor to stretch or cause trouble—every moving part is driven by smooth, silent specially designed Mo-lyb-den-um steel gears, that afford not only increased efficiency but a marked saving in power—

Then too, there are the long, specially designed springs, perfectly balanced between front and rear to receive and absorb shocks—the low hung scientifically distributed weight.

The sensitive, specially designed steering gear—the brakes with their extra large braking surfaces, responsive to the lightest touch—the short turning radius that enables one to slip quickly into a convenient parking space—.

These are the things that bring to the heart of the Wills Sainte Claire owner an ever increasing feeling of pride in the possession of this most distinguished of American Cars.

You must see and drive the Wills Sainte Claire for yourself. In no other way can your realize the thrill of its performance. It is a new experience in motoring that we cordially invite you to enjoy. A telephone call will place a car at your disposal.

GILDING THE 'SET TRAP' FOR YOUTHFUL FASHION FOLLOWERS

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—The precocity shown by younglings in following fashions frankly amazes 5th avenue clerking forces. The youngest girl can tell them exactly what she wants. Usually it is something another girl she knows has—when it isn't her mother's fashions she's demanding.

This cue has not been lost on the avenue. Seawalls one house catering to youth makes up a style which it advertises to the skies, and when Miss Ruth comes in demanding exactly what Miss Jane has, there's a whole windowful, to say nothing of several racks full of the same thing, delightfully varied in color, and the transaction between buyer and seller is quickly completed, to everybody's satisfaction.

Such houses as this deserve praise, because they make the young like young styles.

There are, you know, always two sides to this question of dressing the adolescent. One goes in for making miniature women and men of them—and it must be admitted they look cunning even so; the other sticks to bringing out the characteristics of childhood and early youth—the evanescent thing about that period so beautiful. It is in the better and more exclusive shops you find the second method practiced, though the first has far and away the largest following.

Among the French in this era of simplified styles—and perhaps before, for all I know—there exists a practice in certain families of dressing quite large children exactly as their younger sisters and brothers. One of the foremost shops in New York is catering strongly to that mode this autumn, and showing delightful sets of dresses for young members of the family, from misses in their teens down to 6 and 7 year olds; also brother and sister sets.

It must be granted that the practice has points in its favor besides those scored by the dresses themselves. I can think of three right away: Absence of heartburning rivalries because "sister has this and I have that"; the ease of passing garments on at that quickest growing period, and the glorious possibility of inculcating simplicity of taste at the most impressionable period of a woman's life. There is no end to desire when tots begin by wanting and getting just what mamma wears—made up into small sizes.

Speaking generally, that is what we have. Clothes for girls, juniors, and misses share and share alike with prevalent fashions for women. Tiers, side drapes, coat models—tinsel and fur trimming, knee flounces, and so on—velvet for every day and velvet for Sunday—we get them all in youthful sizes, and even the exact preferred cut of decolletage in evening array, and so on.

It was pleasing, therefore, to note in certain exclusive displays that mother was being segregated, as it were. The youthful models seemed to be quite one thing and the adult modes quite something else. Perhaps, after a while, youth will be left to youth in this land of ours. I remember hearing a Polish woman remark that her first impression of this country was that we had no women. "You have only young girls," she said.

Perhaps the shoe has been on the other foot in the styles. This showing put it on the right one. Its young modes went in for short skirts and tight hips. The dresses and coats look much alike, at that, as they do in older modes, the line of the jacket being carried without break into the skirt, giving at the most a two piece dress look. In the special order departments of certain shops the only day dress model they show for young people is the straight line frock, preferably of twill or cloth, but, if you must, of velvet. Some exclusive houses show no velvets at all in young dresses, and absolutely no flares, tiers, or drapes.

The twill influence and the straight line are the rule for young girls; poiret with a bloom on it for the misses, and serge as you decrease the years. Otherwise wool crepe and jersey for practical, serviceable daytime use, and for evening taffeta and chiffon made up in bouffant styles, with high colored satins occasionally appearing.

The twills run largely to navy blue and brown, with beige, tan, henna, and rust colors greatly liked, and pin tucking and braid trimming in evidence. Deep Byronic collars and cuffs of white linen finish many of the twills for misses, and collar and cuff additions of other sorts, as well as washable vestee effects.

At the far left I am showing one of the cleverest of the cloth frocks of the fall, the reigning youthful straight line cut with the slit turnover collar line that goes with it so effectively. Tan kasha cloth is used, with narrow tucking in two panels, one on the bodice, finished off with arrows of stitching, and the other on the right side of the skirt. The collar carries the pin tuck and arrow finish, and there is a girdle of silk cord with long silk fringe, held with a golden brown enamel buckle. The girdle passes through an applied circle of tucking on the right side.

Speaking of sets, so many clever effects are being produced with them this fall it is a pity for youth not to realize its opportunities with them. Illustrated with figure No. 1 is a scarf and Chinese hat set of black velvet richly embroidered in gold, red, blue and green in Chinese effect. Such small hats, brilliantly colored and frequently made of patterned braid, are seen everywhere now, especially where society gathers to view outdoor sports. And the scarf is never far away, either tied close and high about the neck or flung backward over each shoulder, or making a diagonal splash of color inside the front of an open jacket.

To wear with such a dress, when occasion demands an afternoon coat, if personal preference demands that it shall look like mother's, I give No. 2, a double tiered side buttoned style of pebbly surfaced, reddish brown wool, with a big collar and huge cuffs of taupe wolf. The characteristic cloche is a golden brown felt trimmed with tan grosgrain ribbon. Feather trimmings, small and chic, are beginning to appear on these little hats, glycerned ostrich and coque foremost; but the ribbon finish is still good.

Speaking of a tendency on the part of high class shops to serialize their girls' frocks, No. 3 must be noted. One bright fall day a whole windowful of these frocks appeared, not duplicates, though looking much alike in material and colorings, and every one of them sported a cravat of silk, drawn through a slit above the bust. You might have the cravat in almost any color, and buy more when you wanted variety.

Given ties of different colorings, a whole boarding school of girls would be pleased to go in for these little duplicate frocks. Taupe colored wool eponge was used for this model, with a tie of green flat crepe. Otherwise it was self-trimmed and simplicity personified. The taupe suede hat had a cut leather trimming in green. The one concession to adult styles consists of the short gloves of No. 3, with the flare embroidered cuffs. Everybody's wearing them, even the youngest.

An easy concession to the mode is the bright topped skirt or one piece dress, to be wore with a little jacket of the skirt's material—or separate coat on colder occasion. With older girls the tightly held hip line seems to be favored, but for so young a maid as our little No. 4 we select a slightly flaring front. This suit for a 12 year old appeared in a leading shop in black velvet combined with white broadcloth. The blouse top used the white effects, there were insets of white on the coat, and both broadcloth and velvet carried a decoration done in twisted silk ribbon, held with gathering thread. Three buttons ornament the side closing the little skirt, and the girlish hat is of velvet, broadcloth, and ribbon trimming. Plaided separate skirts are good fall style for both young and mature.

In youthful modes it is quite the usual thing to build a hat out of the same fabrics as the costume—thus setting another definite boundary for youth.

Speaking of styles held in common by youth and years, note the tassel on the diamond shaped Chinese hat of the young person led along by nurse. It's not a bit exaggerated by the artistic temperament. Such upholstery bell pull effects appeared among the first fall millinery, to tell us of the Chinese feeling in the new modes. Otherwise our friend is in a swagger coat of black velvet, trimmed with gray wool stitching and imitation astrahkan—astrahkan quite monopolizing the trimming and frequently the whole body of coats for little girls. Almost all young children's costumes are furnished with muffs, and so with No. 5.

O MY SON — BY MARY HEATON VORSE

A Glimpse of Miss Spong's Heart.

MISS SPONG'S efficient back was turned on Paula. In Miss Spong's adequate lap Anthony reposed. Miss Spong was talking to him in a fashion no one would have believed possible. She was saying:

"Now hm gottum baffums, him gettum dinnin—then him goum bye-bye." Those were the astonishing words that came from the correct Miss Spong. Paula looked at her. You would know exactly what kind of face she would have to look at her square, straight back, and no words like this should come from a face which belonged to that back. Paula tried to signal over Miss Spong's back to David, but he was plunged in a ruminant contemplation of his son. There was no comfort there. Paula knew that David was probably thinking about how he was going to teach Anthony to shoot—something that would shut her out. She turned her eyes away, and wished she had never had a bedroom full of patterns. A room with patterns rambling over wallpaper and cretonne chairs with more patterns is no place in which to lie in bed for days. You get lost following patterns. It was at this point that Paula asked the classic question:

"When am I going to sit up?" This was when Anthony was five days and six hours old. Miss Spong answered without turning her head.

"O, in another five days, maybe." Then she added in a severe tone which put Paula back into the first grade again: "That is, if you are quiet and don't fret yourself to pieces."

When she spoke in this severe way Paula felt as helpless as she had in the presence of her first teacher, who knew more than any one else in the world and had a terrific power over Paula and all the other children. Paula wanted to scream: "Five days more—nearly a week in bed. I won't! I won't!"

But she said timidly: "What about the peasants who get up and clean house a day or two after their babies come?"

"Look at 'em when they're 40!" Miss Spong answered with brief contempt; then she said to Anthony: "Now was boofums, boofums! Now him silly mummer give lovum baby dinnin," and with her uncanny expertness she laid the baby beside Paula—and then a curious thing happened. For a fraction of a second Paula saw as through the crack of an open door into Miss Spong's heart, and instead of a starched and efficient nurse who made one feel in the first grade, Paula saw a lonely woman going from home to home and giving to each of the nurslings she saw come into the world a piece of her heart, lavishing on the children of other people the expert care that she could not give to her own.

Rising Up.

THE days of waiting to get out of bed ticked themselves off.

"Lucky enough, too," Paula informed Miss Spong. "Do you know what lies right behind the next piece of knowledge about the wallpaper pattern? Insanity, Miss Spong; that's what lies there."

To this Miss Spong replied: "Yes, most women are dotty after they've had a baby. Now put your feet down like this and steady yourself as you stand up."

"Wouldn't you think," said Paula, disagreeably, "that I'd broken both legs instead of having Anthony?"

She raised herself slowly, and then an amazing thing happened. Her legs didn't want to carry her. They had a curious buckling feeling as though the bones inside were soft spaghetti instead of hard stuff.

"Why!" she said. "Why!" She looked at Miss Spong in bewilderment. She was like a gutter fish with nothing left inside her except a heart that beat like something frightened. "Why," Paula repeated, "I'm weak."

She had been so strong and confident lying in bed. There hadn't been a day after the beginning when she hadn't felt quite adequate to getting up and running around the room. Really she had only stayed in bed out of consideration for the family, and now, behold, her legs had betrayed her. Her body was as feeble as Anthony's.

She walked waveringly the dozen steps to a chair that Miss Spong had prepared for her, and et herself down in it as if she could never get up again. She felt all of a sudden as though she had crossed over a tenuous bridge and was looking at life from the other side of it. She had always looked at life from the point of view of health and strength, and now she looked at it from the point of view of bewilderment and weakness. She had been betrayed by her own self. She could feel her lip quiver as by its own volition instead of hers.

The Calamity.

PAULA had accomplished what is known as easing her mind. In other words, she had told David what she thought of Miss Spong—she was a martinet, a hospital product. She kept David out of the room, saying Paula needed quiet. That was her chief offense. Then there was her scientific explanation of all human things. Paula simply couldn't forgive her for insisting that her son didn't know her.

"Of course, I know he doesn't know me the way you do, David," she said. "It's something quite different. I don't have to be told he's nothing but a little animal, but, don't you see, it's the beginning of communication between him and me. Maybe he does only recognize me by a sense of smell. I don't care. He knows me. Besides, I can't see the use in just making me nervous all the time by shooing you out of the room just because Miss Spong has hospital habits and wants me to get to bed at just such an hour. It's bad for me."

"What's that?" said David. While Paula was talking his attention had been diverted by a constantly growing volume of sound. It had begun with a whimper which increased to a roar.

"That's Anthony crying."

David went into the baby's room. Anthony was crying. He was crying at an hour when he usually slept peacefully. He was beating the air with his hands, kicking, too. His face was so red that it verged on purple. David looked down at his son.

"My God!" he thought, "I wonder if babies can have apoplectic strokes.' The fear that is always lying in wait for young parents made David's heart take a beat. Babies are such fragile things. A modern parent like David has read statistics, horrible figures about how much chance to survive a small baby has. He heard Paula's voice calling.

"What's the matter?" By the tone of her voice David knew the same fear that had chilled him had Paula by the throat. He tried to be nonchalant about it.

"O, nothing, he's just crying."

"I know he's crying." There was no doubt about that. Volumes of sound filled the air. No one unacquainted with new born husky babies could have dreamed that anything so small could give out a volume of sound like that.

The ceremony of the bath was about to begin.

"Where's Miss Spong?" asked David.

"Why, she's out. You know that," said Paula. "We gave her this long afternoon out just to get rid of her."

Indeed they had. David had insisted that he could perfectly well bring the baby to Paula for his nursing, and he had done it—having glanced surreptitiously into the book again to make sure that he knew how to lift babies and wouldn't break Anthony in doing it. That had gone splendidly.

"Maybe he's hungry," David suggested. Paula shook her head.

"It'll be an hour before nursing time comes. Shove the bassinet in here. I want to look at him." David wheeled in the bassinet. "Feel of him and see if he's all right. Maybe the pin got unfastened." Everything was as it should be. There wasn't a reason in the world for Anthony to be screaming like this. They looked at each other in blank terror. They had no resources in the face of this calamity.

The Two Terrors.

WHO would have foreseen that anything like this would happen during Miss Spong's first afternoon out? Who would know Anthony was going to scream as if in mortal agony? He'd never cried like this before. Paula and David searched each others' eyes for some reassurance. Their faces only reflected each others' fears.

"What is the matter do you think?" asked Paula. Her eyes were dark with the fear.

"Search me," said David, forlornly. "When did you say Miss Spong was coming back?"

"Not for an hour." An hour! When perhaps Anthony would scream and scream until he burst a blood vessel, an hour of intolerable anguish. They looked at one another, helpless and lost, overcome with terror.

"Maybe it's colic," Paula suggested. When a baby is born there are twin bugbears waiting for its parents, croup and colic, terrible things. Torture for the new born, torment of the parents.

Anthony's screams continued. They filled all space. They shut the door to every other thing in life. David continued to pace the floor. Paula clenched her hands.

"She here, I can't stand this," said David. He looked up colic in the index of the book and turned to the pages.

There was a noise of an opening door. It was followed by the noise of brisk, efficient footsteps. Miss Spong, neatly tailored, pink cheeked from the outing, came into the room.

"Well, what's all this? What's the matter with my baby?"

"We don't know," they chorused.

The fireman appearing at a burning house, the lifeboat coming to shipwrecked mariners, were nothing compared to the celestial appearance of Miss Spong.

"Is he—is he dying?" asked David.

Miss Spong kept her face serious, but lurking behind her seriousness was laughter.

"No, Mr. Andrews," she said. "He's not dying." A note of the laughter that she was keeping back crept into her voice. It was the most reassuring sound that Paula had ever heard.

Saved by the Hospital Woman.

DAVID sat down on the bed beside Paula and took her hand. Both of them looked at Miss Spong with a look that approached reverence. They had both gone through one of the most hair raising experiences a grown person can have. They had been confronted with a sinister situation full of nameless terrors. While Miss Spong had been out Anthony had cried and cried, and they hadn't known why, and they hadn't known what to do about it. They hadn't even dared to take him up. The book tells young parents distinctly that babies mustn't be taken up except for grave reasons. Now Miss Spong's expert hands felt Anthony over. She took him in her arms. Instantly the awful noise of his crying stopped. His little wobbly red head lay inertly on Miss Spong's capable shoulder. Expertly she pulled down his clothes, with the other hand she smoothed down the bed.

"He wanted his position changed and to have his clothes straightened," she remarked, putting him down on his side, covering him up again. Anthony had dropped off into peaceful slumber.

"I thought the book said you mustn't take them up—not ever," said David.

You could see Miss Spong's shoulders shaking as she leaned over to straighten the covers, tucking Anthony in.

"O, the book!" she said. "You have to use sense, Mr. Andrews! You can't treat all babies alike. Goodness! Mrs. Andrews, you look like you had been drawn through a knothole. I knew I shouldn't stay out so long. That's why I came back. You excite yourself too much every time Mr. Andrews is home. Mr. Andrews, you go read your Sunday papers, please, while I look after my patient." Gratefully, Paula let Miss Spong wash off her face and comb her hair.

"You poor little thing," said Miss Spong, speaking to Paula as if she were a baby. "You mustn't get so upset every time that husky young one of yours yells. He's got a mighty temper, don't forget. He's just going to yell every time things cross him."

Paula gave herself up to Miss Spong's ministrations. Nothing had ever seemed more delicious than to be taken care of. No one had ever seemed so kind. From the depths of her gratitude, Paula spoke:

"I don't know what I'll do when you leave, Miss Spong," she said.

Nurse Says Good-by.

A FIRE was lighted in the grate. An oil mat was spread before it. The baby's tub swung like a rubber hammock. On one chair was the bassinet with all the little implements of the baby's toilet in pink and white celluloid. On the other side folded piles of clothes that looked as though a little girl were going to dress a big doll.

Miss Spong put on her bath apron. The ceremony of the bath was about to begin. It was the last bath before Miss Spong left. Miss Spong put on her bath apron, giving the effect of a high priestess dressed in sacred vestments. She lifted Anthony from his bassinet with a gesture of such expertness that it seemed to Paula to partake of juggling; she knew that never in the world would she be able to have that professional gesture of lifting up babies—even if she had twelve Anthonys. Miss Spong then pulled off Anthony's dress in such a way that he never noticed anything was happening. She unbuttoned his flannel petticoat over his shoulders. She made short work of the rest of his garments.

With incredible swiftness she soaped him from head to foot, and as quickly rinsed him. She lifted him out and wrapped a blanket snugly around him and patted him off with a soft towel; then she powdered him. She worked with the sureness of a perfect machine. There was a tenderness in the way she touched him. She looked down on him as he lay spread on her lap with that compassion with which mothers look at very young babies.

"You poor little thing," she said. "You poor little frog." She spoke just as if Paula weren't in the room, and as though for a moment Anthony were her son instead of Paula's.

She slipped on the clean clothes with the same precision that she had used in taking off the others, and handed him to Paula.

"I'll be getting dressed," she said, "while you give him his dinner."

She stood before Paula repeating over again where the baby's things were kept, giving admonitions about regularity. Paula heard nothing of this. Miss Spong was actually going; that was all she knew. After this everything was going to be up to her.

Miss Spong came back dressed in her street clothes. She took Anthony from Paula, and put him across her shoulder, where his head dipped into the hollow of her neck comfortably, and for a moment she talked absurd baby talk to him. Then she looked at Paula sternly, with the air that means: "No, I'm not going to show any weakness."

"It's astonishing," she said, "how attached you get to the little things. And he's such a beautiful baby; he certainly has come along fine. Well, good-by, Mrs. Andrews. I'll run in and see him once in a while."

UNFORGIVABLE BEAUTY SINS

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—This will introduce a series of the four outstanding sins against beauty, unforgivable because they indicate above everything else bad personal management and because their offensiveness affects not only the individual but those who come in personal touch.

Today we shall take up halitosis, the polite word for unpleasant breath.

As the mouth wash advertisers would say: "Her mirror tells her many things about herself, but fails on this insidious destroyer of charm."

It tells her her hair is done most becomingly and that it is well groomed and netted to perfection. It tells her her makeup bears the imprint of an artist hand; that her evening dress is exquisite, but it fails to disclose the reason why she is not asked a second time to dance with that heavenly Apollo with the dancing feet of an alias Lord Renfrew.

She may visit her manicurist regularly, have her hair oiled and brushed till it shines like satin, her face massaged, ice rubbed until every blemish has disappeared—and yet it may profit her nothing to spend her whole year's pin money if she has not sought to discover the value of a sweet, clean breath.

She may be in pathetic ignorance of the opposite condition with her, but ignorance is no excuse in the eyes of any law. One does not wait until one is arrested and fined to become acquainted with traffic regulations.

One Thing to Do.

So, one must not await punishment to awake one to the offense of halitosis. Few people recognize they have it. Friends will not tell them bluntly. Consequently, there is but one thing to do, and it is to ask and find out; or learn the causes and deduce therefrom the possibility of one's being afflicted. And be fastidious about overcoming the cause if one find oneself subject to the condition.

Unless one is suffering some deep rooted organic disorder that requires medical direction, halitosis may be overcome by attention to a few important items of personal hygiene.

Diseased teeth and gums, adenoids, infected tonsils, abnormal conditions of the nose, indigestion and constipation, excessive smoking and neglect of mouth hygiene are the usual causes to be investigated by the person who wishes to find out whether he has an unpleasant breath.

Two Unfailing Signs.

A bad taste in the mouth and a coated tongue are sure indicators that the breath gives offense. This bad taste and coated tongue may be produced in many ways, other than by indigestion and constipation. Their chief causes are the conditions outlined in the preceding paragraph.

A certain amount of coating on the tongue in the morning is almost surely present with smokers. Foul breath and furring of the tongue, it must be understood are not always due to digestive disturbances, so that the taking of laxatives when the conditions are present is not always proper.

A visit to the dentist would establish the guilt of teeth and gums that require attention. A few more visits and the breath may be restored to its normal wholesomeness.

Following Teeth Neglect.

Most persons do not know that the base of the tongue is often the site from which bad breath arises, and attribute it to catarrh. If there is a continuance of the coating, whether of gastric origin or throat disorder, it is, of course, a subject for medical treatment.

If the tongue is covered with masses of thickened, decomposing material, which may extend forward to the tip and cause visible coating, remove the material by scraping as far back as one can reach with a tongue scraper. The root of the tongue should also be carefully cleansed with a tooth brush. By taking care not to hit the roof of the mouth, gagging is avoided.

Food acids are particularly serviceable in cleansing the tongue and membranes of the mouth. These acids are found in grape juice, orange juice, apples, and vinegar. Such mechanical cleansing is particularly important before retiring, as it is usually during the night the most damage is wrought to the mouth.

The breath cannot be sweet unless the teeth are scrupulously clean and the tissues of the mouth healthy.

Constipation Frequent Cause.

There is no doubt that those who suffer constipation and indigestion may suppose an unpleasant taint upon the breath according to the degree of the ailments.

Normally the intestines contract so that their contents are carried downward. Under constipated conditions the movements may occur in the opposite direction—toward the stomach.

Dr. William S. Walsh explains: "In order to understand how these backward movements occur we may conceive that the movements of the intestines proceed normally until they reach the accumulated waste. When they reach this they are broken up or checked. This checking causes the intestines to ripple and carry some of the intestinal contents backward. If the ripples are strong they may carry bile and intestinal secretions into the stomach and thereby cause the stomach to contract and force material toward the mouth. If the contractions are great vomiting may occur; if they are mild there may be acid eructations, bad taste in the mouth, deposits upon the tongue."

Regular evacuations relieve these symptoms.

Constipation leads to indigestion, and food not properly broken up and absorbed sets up an acid disturbance and fermentation that makes their presence known in an unpleasant breath.

Proper diet and mouth hygiene, therefore, are the sweet and wholesome breath regulators, providing teeth and gums, tonsils, nose, and throat are not diseased.

A mouth wash recommended is a weak solution of bicarbonate of soda and common salt—a half teaspoon of each to a pint of water—or the soda alone in as much water.

There are on the market some excellent mouth washes. But no breath deodorant will serve to save humiliation as long as the real cause of the trouble is being carried about in mouth, throat, stomach, or intestines

And do the bending exercise every morning and night—you know, that good old standard of touching the finger tips to the floor without bending the knees. Do it, beginning with five times morning and night, gradually increasing until you can do it twenty times a day without getting short of breath or anything. There is a psychology about doing exercise that is valuable. You feel better almost immediately, and there is established a sort of pride in the renewed youthfulness, which acts like a pricking conscience when the temptation comes to get lazy again. I think exercise more than diet gives you that feeling of accomplishing something, because the response is more immediate. Although keeping a parsimonious eye on the food bill is not to be underrated.

MAY L.: IT IS EXTREMELY DIFficult for me to advise a becoming style of coiffure, without having seen the young woman concerned. However, it is not a difficult problem to solve. If you cannot afford to have a hairdressing expert work out the most flattering mode, why don't you look in magazines or newspapers at pictures of beautiful women and study their style, try it out before your mirror or, with the help of your girl friends, among whom you may find one quite adept at hairdressing, try out several different styles until you have the one that suits best. About the only rules to help in a decision is for a long, thin face to avoid being topped by a high hair dress; for a broad round face to accentuate the breadth with a coiff that is low on the crown of the head and puffed wide over the ears. The middle part and hair drawn straight down to a knob on the nape of the neck are trying unless one is of a most individual type or exceedingly beautiful.

O, DON'T YOU REMEMBER—

Oh don't you remember our terror, Ben Bolt,
When it seemed we had best repent—
And were set down to learn
(Lest we later should burn)

SULPHUR CLEARS ROUGH, RED SKIN

Face, Neck and Arms Easily Made Smooth, Says Specialist

Any breaking out of the skin, even eczema, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation seems to act once to subdue irritated skin and heal eruptions such as rash, pimples and ring worm.

It seldom fails to remove the torment and disfigurement, and you do not have to wait for relief from embarrassment. Improvement quickly shows. Sufferers from skin troubles should obtain a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

Try it first, prove the way to restore
Gray Hair

You are right to be skeptical in regard to any preparation offered to restore gray hair. So many can't do it—so many only further disfigure your hair.

A trial on one lock of hair is your safeguard, and this I offer free. Accept this offer and prove for yourself that your gray hair can be restored safely, easily and surely.

I perfected my Restorex many years ago to bring back the original color of my own gray hair, and since, hundreds of thousands of gray haired people have used it. It is a clear, colorless liquid, clean as water and as pleasant to use. No grease, sediment, nothing to wash or rub off. Restored color even and natural in all lights. Results just as satisfactory when hair has been bleached or otherwise discolored.

MAIL COUPON TODAY

Send today for the special patented Free Trial outfit containing a trial bottle of my Restorex, full instructions for making the comb-and-lock test. Indicate color of hair with X in proper square and send a lock of your hair in your letter.

Atlas Amplitone Loud Speaker, $25

All of the program, natural as the original, reproduced on the Atlas Amplitone. Faithfully responsive, not to just one small range of sound intensity, but to the full scale of tone harmonics. The "double diaphragm"—triumph of the radio and acoustic sciences — automatically accommodates itself to every pitch. Blast and distortion are entirely eliminated. The "double diaphragm" is adjustable to operate most efficiently with individual receiving condition. Ask the nearest Atlas Amplitone dealer for demonstration. Hear the difference this great innovation makes.

This beautiful little set is designed to give a superior crystal reception at a price so low that no one need be without a radio set, even for a single day. This set is the equal of any crystal receiver in the market, regardless of price. It has no superior as to quality of reception, intensity of signals, range of operation, selectivity, or in any other feature of this performance. This is due to our special coil, which consists of a primary and secondary wound parallel. This coil is a very special feature and is covered by patents. With this set it is possible to receive broadcasting for a much greater distance than with the ordinary crystal set. The appearance of the set is very attractive. All parts are nickel plated and mounted on a black composition panel.

BUTTONS OUT OF PLACE.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—There is a pathetic story to be told of a little button that was on a coat at the opening at Worth's. It held a long jacket in place at the waistline, thus relieving the wearer of a waist of hard work. But when the costume got into the main exhibition room on the afternoon of the first showing, it was so if the little practical aid to dress felt oppressed or embarrassed or out of place in a crowd of garments totally without fastening, for it, so to speak, fainted, and fell to the floor. The number of buttons used as fasteners on mantles this season from all the openings could be counted on the two hands.

It isn't so bad if you feel moved to wear them as decoration—but for mercy's sake if you insist on them you must try to be counted among the conservative, if not the passé.

The accompanying coat uses them in the only way permissible—to hold the coat wrap loosely at the waistline. This garment is by Beer and is the first representation of the house in these columns thus far this season. You will observe that the line is almost identical with that of Premet and others. That is to say, the skirt differs in that it is quite straight and totally without a winding staircase for trimming. But the coat overlaps and goes in the prevailing spiral movement. The costume is of dark blue corded kasha, and both the dark blueness and the effect of cording have been commented on before as a part of the current style.

BED COVERS OF ORGANDY.

LAST week, bed covers made of changeable taffeta or cretonne were shown. Today we suggest several other ways of making them.

Can you imagine anything prettier for a child's room than a bed cover made of organdy in pale blue or yellow? This time the cover is pieced down the length on both sides right at the edge of the width; and in cutting the length can be made so that no piecing is necessary. These pieces that hang over the sides of the bed and at the bottom are made as long as one wishes and are set on perfectly plain. There are from three to five ruffles set on across the piece that hangs over at the foot and on the side pieces. These ruffles are about three or four inches wide and made with a tiny heading. One of the ruffles may be made of the bed cover color and the others of one or more contrasting colors. The effect is charming if the right combination of colors is used.

The pillow slip is made with the ruffles set on the ends that hang over the sides.

BUTTONS OUT OF PLACE.

By Mary Brush Williams.
Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—There is a pathetic story to be told of a little button that was on a coat at the opening at Worth's. It held a long jacket in place at the waistline, thus relieving the wearer of a vestee or scarf work. But when the costume got into the main exhibition room on the afternoon of the first showing, it was as if the little button slid to dress felt oppressed by undergarments or out of place in a medley of garments totally without purpose, for it, so to speak, fainted, and fell to the floor. The number of buttons used as fasteners on mantles and dresses from all the openings could be counted on the two hands.

It won't be bad if you feel moved to use them as decoration—but for those who use if you insist on them you will have to be counted among the passés, if not the passé.

The accompanying coat uses them in the only way permissible—to hold the coat wrap loosely at the waistline. The garment is by Beer and is the first representation of the house in these columns thus far this season. You will observe that the line is almost identical with that of Premet and others. That is to say, the skirt differs in that it is quite straight and totally without a circling staircase for trimming. But the coat overlaps and goes in the prevailing spiral movement. The costume is of dark blue corded kasha, and both the dark blue serge and the effect of circling have been commented on before as a part of the current style.

The old fashioned corduroy, as I remember it, the ridges go up and down, while in the new woolen variations on it they run round. This interesting exhibition of the overlapping, spiral movement is accentuated in the present coat with long haired black fur, which takes the same direction. The collar and the cuffs are of the fur, too. The hat accompanying is typical of those of the present, being all crown and no brim, and trimmed in the little black cigrette that finds itself on all fashionable headdress of the moment.

The second drawing is of one of Premet's loveliest models, showing that most prevalent of all the usages, which consists in putting the shiny side of satin out in some parts of the costume, and in others contrasting it with the dull back. As the artist puts it, more picturesquely than I, they use the dull side with the shiny in a decorative way. Down the length of the long waist one sees the shiny surface in this offering, and it is in a lovely shade of green. You might almost say it was a stripe of the shiny, and just under it something that looks like a belt and isn't goes dull. Sewed on to it comes an apron or flounce—or call it what you will—the point is that it is shiny, but with the dull showing down the long points on the under side.

There is no decoration paralleling this in the back, not even the so-called belt. It goes flat and plain. And stabbing this ribbonlike stretch across the front is a double pin of pigeon blood rubies. The dress is sleeveless and has the old bateau line of the neck.

And now comes one showing the use of moire and the total absence of anything resembling a belt. The dress consists of one long, straight line, with plaits on the shoulders like the plaits of a Norfolk jacket, only these extend in the long, unbroken line of the dress. The material is dark blue, and the fur—like most of that today—is brown. If it is not brown by nature, they are dyeing it in the lovely shades which the color affords, and fur takes nicely. The dress is by Worth.

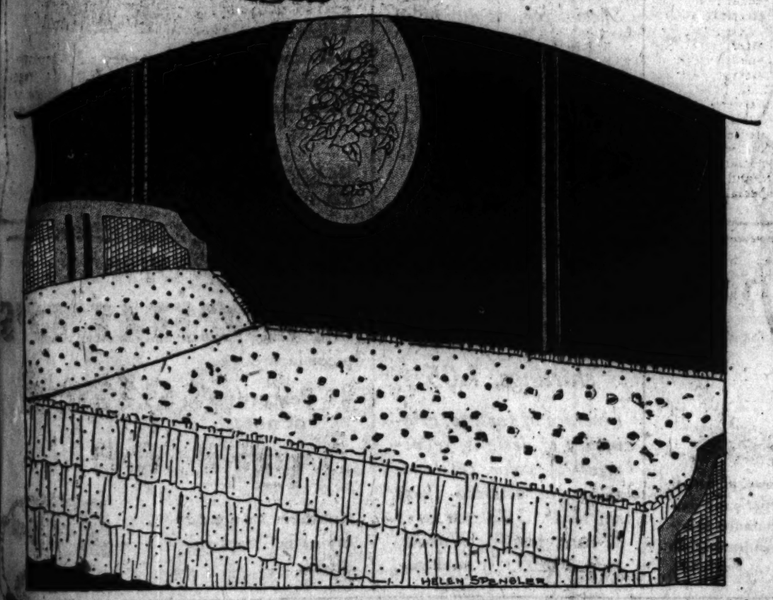

There is a long, full robe of a tassel falling from the left hip. It is of red and black.

The fourth dress is by Worth and shows several of the new movements, among others the attempt, not thus far successful, to thwart the round and the boat shaped necks. This one, as you can see, is V. One has to watch out for them. This is quite all right, and so is that other launched by Jean Patou, or at least most successfully exploited by him, with the long, low sweep to it, and going far over to the left hip to fasten. But for that other line, which crosses over at, O, just any old place where you happen to pin it—that line is likely to make you and your figure look middle aged if you are a mere 25.

This one is more likely to make you look 25 if you are middle aged, so give it consideration. Note its plain, ungarnished line. It is rather out of tune with the rest of the season's offerings, which are frilled and fluted as to neckline in a manner which the French are sponsoring now as a change, but which they will never stand for long. The dress is of dark blue serge and in this particular shows an acceptance of something for a long time passé. We are entitled to our serge once again, and dark blue ad libitum. The sleeves are but a modification of those long prevailing, being the old bell shape launched by Jennie nobody remembers when, and now only ornamented with the everlasting tassel for a departure.

The skirt is trimmed with the spiral ruffle of the day, and au lieu de belt the general vicinity of the waist line is marked as with a tombstone by one of the innumerable ornaments let loose on the town of Paris this fall. It is red, as most of them are.

BED COVERS OF ORGANDY.

Last week, bed covers made of changeable taffeta or cretonne were shown. Today we suggest several other ways of making them.

Can you imagine anything prettier for a child's room than a bed cover made of organdy in pale blue or yellow? This time the cover is pieced down the length on both sides right at the edge of the width; and in cutting the length can be made so that no piecing is necessary. These pieces that hang over the sides of the bed and at the bottom are made as long as one wishes and are set on perfectly plain ruffles. There are from three to five ruffles set across the piece that hangs over at the foot and on the side pieces. These ruffles are about three or four inches wide and made with a tiny heading. One of the ruffles may be made of the bed cover color and the others of one or more contrasting colors. The effect is charming if the right combination of colors is used.

The pillow slip is made with the ruffles set on the ends that hang over the sides.

For a small boy's room a cover made of a tan chambray or plain colored gingham will be smart. This cover may be finished with a deep ruffle of the same material, and a seven inch ruffle set on around the edge of the covering at the top—this ruffle to be made of a checked gingham. The pillow slip, of course, matches.

Attractive covers may be made for a sanitary couch. Denim is a good material, and heavy cretonne will make up beautifully. A fitted top is made the same way as are the bed covers. It is a good idea to have the couch made up and fit the cover snugly over the made bed. Make the sides about four or five inches deep. If a plain color is used, make a box-plaited valance that just escapes touching the floor; if a figured material is used, the gathered ruffle will look well.

Make a couple of plain cases for the bed pillows, and with as many soft pillows as you can add, the result will be an attractive looking couch, when one wants to use it for a bed, all there will be to do will be to take the cover off.

What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework write to Clotilde, Chicago Tribune.

Quick Relief from Constipation

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid liver.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—or torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

THE POTTERS

PROLOGUE.

The Potter idea of Holland was a large flock of wide pants and wooden shoes, entirely surrounded by tulips and windmills . . . a sort of glorified Ziegfeld Follies number interspersed with canals, over which a million Hans Breitmans skated merrily to Amsterdam, or Rotterdam, or Dubbledam, all year 'round.

SCENE I.

PA (as the Potter flivver pulls into Maastricht):
So this is Holland . . . well, well!

BILL: What do you suppose that sign means? "De toegang tot den spoorweg ist verboden."

MAMIE: Why, that's Dutch.

BILL: That's odd—I thought it was Armenian. If you know so much, what does it mean?

MAMIE: Well, smart aleck, "toegang" evidently means going with your toes, and "verboden" means forbidden, and since the sign is at the railroad crossing, it's got something to do with railroads, so anybody except one with your limited intelligence could guess it means you're not allowed to walk on the railroad.

BILL: Bluh, bluh, bluh.

PA (gloomily):
There's another church. Do we have to look at it?

CHORUS OF POTTERS: No! (And yet it's the oldest and one of the quaintest in Holland.)

SCENE II.

Beautiful, wide, straight roads, lined with tremendous trees, lead through town after town filled with neat brick houses with brightly painted shutters . . . doors, windows and front yards bloom with flowers and children . . . an air of solid prosperity and undeniable fecundity . . . the principal industries seem to be children, bicycles and bricks . . . the Potters roll into Roermond for the night, and after dinner at the hotel walk out to see the town.

"Why do you suppose they wear such big pants?"

MA (nervously):
Look, they're all coming out of their houses to look at us.

BILL: Maybe we look funny to them.

(Streets fill magically with highly amused Dutch men, women and children, who gather around Potters and laugh uproariously.)

"What's the big idea? What's so funny?"

MAMIE (excitedly):
What's the big idea? What's so funny?

BILL: It's your peeled nose.

(Potters finally escape and barricade themselves in hotel . . . sight-seeing tours organized among inhabitants, who gather around hotel and watch Potter windows with intense expectancy . . . this is a bright spot in the history of Roermond . . . surely the Dutch can never look as interesting to the Potters as the Potters look to the Dutch.)

SCENE III.

BILL (after a morning's drive through endless rows of painfully neat brick villages):
Do you know what town we're coming into?

MAMIE: Oshkosh, isn't it?

BILL: No, silly; we're coming into Doorn.

PA (colorlessly):
Well, what of it? What's all the shooting for?

BILL: Why, Doorn is where the Kaiser lives.

MA (excited):
O, let's go and see him.

BILL: Sure, he'll probably be tickled to death. Some people at the gate to see you, Your Majesty. Who are they, Fritz? Mr. and Mrs. Potter and family, Your Royalness, in their private flivver. What will I tell 'em? Tell 'em to go chase themselves, Fritz, and bring me a stein of Pilsner on your way back.

PA: Just the same, let's go see where he lives. I bet he's sittin' pretty.

(Potters learn after little inquiry that you turn left when you come to the brick church and follow the street to the new brick guardhouse at the entrance to the Kaiser's private estate . . . sign over gate reads: "Toegang Verboden"; so Potters drive around estate, trying vainly to peer through high wire fence effectively screened with bushes . . . catch glimpse of white house sitting away back.)

MA (excitedly):
That's where he lives.

PA (searching vaguely for suitable phrase to crystalize this historic moment):
So this is where the Kaiser lives? Well, well.
(Feels that this doesn't quite sum up the situation but can think of nothing further.)

SCENE IV.

Every tourist for Holland heads for two places—Volendam and Marken (pronounced Marriker), for here, as but in few spots in Holland, all of the costumes and many of the customs have survived in spite of—or perhaps it is because of the tourists . . . Volendam is but a few miles north of Amsterdam, on the Zuyder Zee, and the road winds most of the way below the big dike which prevents said Zee from spilling all over the country . . . it is here the Potters first see that curious but common Holland spectacle of a sailboat skimming high over the land . . . the road finally climbs to the top of the dike . . . two twists and the queer little, quaint little fishing village of Volendam is before us.

MA (as the children clatter all around the car in their wooden shoes):
Careful, you'll hit 'em. Are they girls or boys?

(It's a difficult question. Up to a certain age they are both dressed alike with the exception that the boys wear little hats instead of the lace coifs . . . the fishermen in their tremendous pants and short jackets sit on their heels in taciturn circles and smoke black cigars.)

BILL: Why do you suppose they wear such big pants?

MAMIE: Why do you suppose the women wear so many petticoats?

MA: And look, all the women's hair is bobbed short like a boy's. Why, do you suppose?

(One legend has it that many years ago when the men of Volendam went away to war the women folks cut their hair off so they wouldn't be attractive to anybody else meanwhile . . . the dear sex hasn't as good a reason as that today . . . Potter equipage continues down dike to the Spaander, where all good tourists go who have been convinced that seeing opera bouffe Volendam is seeing Holland . . . next morning a fishing smack with mahogany colored sails and the subtle aroma of ten thousand deceased fish scuds over the Zuyder Zee with the Potters to the island of Marken, where the costumes are even more picturesque and the tourists even more terrible . . .)

CLEMENS. DAVID.

C.: God save you, David.

D.: And you also, Clemens.

C.: God save you heartily..

D.: And you also, as heartily.

C.: How do you?

D.: I am well, I thank God: at your services and you, Clemens, how is it with you? Well?

C.: I am also in health: how doth your father and mother?

D.: They are in good health, praised be God.

C.: How goes it with you, my good friend?

D.: It goeth well with mee, goes it but so well with you.

C.: I wish you good health.

D.: I wish the same to you also.

C.: I salute you.

D.: And I you also.

"So this is where the Kaiser lives? Well, well."

C.: Are you well? Are you in good health?

D.: I am well, indeed I am in good health, I am healthful, and in prosperity.

C.: That is good. That is well. That is pleasing to me. That maketh mee glad. I love to hear that. I beseech you to take care of your health. Preserve your health.

D.: I can tarry no longer now. I am in haste to be done. I must go. I have need of my time. I cannot abide standing here. Fare you well. God be with you. God keep you still. I wish your health may continue.

C.: And you also, my loving friend, God protect you. God guide you. God bee with you. May it please you in my behalf, heartily to salute your wife and children.

D.: I will do your message. But I pray, commend me also to your father and mother.

(The author presumes, of course, that the father and mother are still living by this time.)

(And that's that—until next Sunday.)

How to Be Happy Though Married

by DORIS BLAKE

RECENTLY there came to me a letter, an extract from which I quote:

"When I read your letter to 'Marjory' yesterday morning it revived the unhappiest year of my life and the pangs of remorse that come with each revival. The details I shall not cover. Like Marjory, I was headstrong and left my home after a quarrel with head high and asserting boldly that I could take care of myself. Enough to say that I had neither sufficient experience nor moral fiber to take the broad highway alone. When I saw your advice to the foolish girl who, because she objected to her father's interference in the matter of her hour of home coming, was about to take up her abode away from the corrective influence, I sighed deeply: 'If I had only consulted some one before I broke with my family how different my life might have been!'

"I went from a small community to a large city. The lonely hours, the meager amount of money left after board was taken from my pay envelope, the monotony of my work I might use for alibis, but when I note other young women who see their lives through, under identical circumstances, with the exception, perhaps, of leaving home in a pique; when I see them make the grade clean and unsoathed I realize there was something lacking in my character. But who knows in youth what character is until it is put to the test? Your Marjory might have survived the test. Because I recognized in her willful rebellion a trait of my own which contributed to my unhappiness, I rejoiced that you urged her to remain under the parental roof."

Companionship Is Protection.

If a young woman wrote to me that she wanted to make headway in a certain vocation for which her community provided no possible opportunity, I doubt if I should hesitate to advise her to try her wings. But I should do it with the proviso that she go to a big city fortified with some knowledge of the conditions of living that would confront her. Particularly I should urge a young woman to live where human companionship would be a feature. Large cities, however, have made some provision for soothing that aching void, where it is possible to be housed and fed by organizations, clubs, leagues, homes under fine patronage with no hint of charity attached to them, but which still require excellent behavior as a protective measure to the girl.

The behavior of the unattached girl and its relation to a happy married life are more nearly synonymous than the adventurous young woman ever dreams.

The temptation to adventure faces an unattached girl in a big city as the same girl would never meet it among her home group.

Not so much on economic grounds, as is frequently advanced in argument, as on psychological.

No young woman ever faces the prospect of starving to death. It is always possible to earn bread. But youth craves more than bread. It craves life and stimulation. Human nature was made for action.

As long as a girl remains with her people and is known to the whole community, she realizes that any infraction of the habits of the group, any immodesty or immorality, will ruin her standing and her chance of marriage and bring her into shame and confusion.

When Inhibitions Are Relaxed.

William I. Thomas, psychologist, says that "when a girl becomes detached from home and group, and is removed not only from surveillance but from the ordinary stimulation and interest afforded by social life and acquaintanceship, her inhibitions are likely to be relaxed. The girl coming from the country to the city affords one of the clearest cases of detachment. Assuming that she comes to the city to earn her living, her work is not only irksome but so unremunerative that she finds it impossible to obtain those accessories to her personality in the way of finery which would be sufficient to hold her attention and satisfy her if they were to be had in plenty. She is lost from the sight of every one whose opinion has any meaning for her, while the separation from her home community renders her condition peculiarly flat and having it in the big city are not one half so good as back home where she need not suffer a lonely hour unless she deliberately chooses it. Theaters, concerts, operas are expensive to attend. The movies she could probably see back home at half the cost. Her chances of meeting eligible young men in the city are much more a matter of luck than back home. Girls who are attractive, clever and lovely, live for years without meeting one eligible youth.

Where to entertain a man if she is lucky enough to meet one? The average city youth cannot afford frequent entertainment. There is no home to bring him to, and a semi-public reception room is not an ideal setting for a budding romance.

As for the girl who leaves home for a boarding place to escape discipline of her parents—she has still to learn what discipline really is. The discipline of an institution or of a cautious landlady has no heart interest in it. Only she is prepared to accept any opportunity for stimulation offered, unless she has been morally standardized before leaving home."

Depends Upon Girl.

When the question of leaving the parental roof arises, the young girl should be advised to consider the step not as it affects her immediate life but the later outcome, particularly marriage.

There are perfectly just and fair reasons for a girl leaving home, and there are as sensible reasons for her remaining there.

It is pretty much a matter of what kind of girl she is and what she wants to get out of life. And in order to get that out of life what is she willing to pay for it.

If it is a good time, a freer time, she is after she may get it; and if she does she will pay bitterly for it. If it is just a good time; her chances of

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going with a fellow three years my senior for six months. I go riding in his car with him. Although he has never asked to kiss me, I am afraid he may some time. I do not wish to lose his friendship, but I don't want to kiss him. How can I answer him without offending him? He is a nice fellow and comes from a good family.

Taking One's Medicine.

"Dear Miss Blake: I really don't know what to do about this. I have been going with a gentleman for several months. He has told me he loves me, and finally one day he told me he didn't love me as much as he used to. In fact, he said he didn't love any one. He calls me up now and then, and I go out with him, because I still love him. But it hurts me terribly when I realize he does not care any more.

"LONESOME."

It is sad, Lonesome, to have to face that fact in cold, raw terms from the gentleman's lips. But, then, life is like that often, and you have to learn to take medicine with a flavor none too appetizing. On how well you do it will depend your chances for happiness. Just buck up and say: "Well, that incident's closed. But that's not my finis by a long shot." And then go ahead and prove it.

LOVER HUSBAND: Since yesterday, yes, and for some time past, I have been looking deep into the mystery of our love—many things are not entirely clear to me and when we are together I can't marshal my thoughts as I'd like—chiefly, I suppose, because you are so distractingly sweet and adorable that I can't concentrate on anything but you.

You, with your dear consideration and unerring goodness in all things to me, have never given me cause to doubt your love, and, except occasionally when I am in an unhappy mood, I do not doubt that you do love me. But, my darling, there is a growing wonderment on my part whether it is the kind of love it should be. If it is not, dear, I have only myself to blame, of course, because it would be because of a lack of some quality in me that would inspire such emotion.

You have told me your love is unreasoning. Perhaps it is because there is apparently no sound basis for the feeling I inspire in you, because, as you have confessed, in your own consciousness you can find no reason for being in love with me, that there arises this shadowy specter of doubt and unrest. It makes me sad at times, for if there were anything worth while in me you would recognize it as a reason for this emotion you have for me.

I know positively why I love you and what it is in you that I admire and adore. I love the nobility of your character and the strength of it—overlooking the one weakness on your part of loving me—I love the bigness of your intellect, the broadness of your vision, the capacity for accomplishment, the gentleness of your dear heart. My life has been gladdened and inspired by contact with you because of these things, and not because of the magnetism we undeniably have for each other physically.

What you have said to me about mon, the revelation of yourself to me through this, has aroused the intelligence in me to a gratitude, a happiness, so completely satisfying, so all-enveloping that regardless of what the future has in store for us, I find my heart always singing a little song of praise that chance has given you to me to listen to, to talk to, and to think about. When love is strong, however, courage and hope have powerful support. It is cold comfort but is comfort, nevertheless, and the future is ahead with my own wish, a fervent one, that you will always be to me what I will always be to you—

YOUR SWEETHEART WIFE.

CLEARS SKIN OF PIMPLES

Remarkable Action of Stuart's Calcium Wafers in Ridding Face of Pimples, Boils, Rash, Blotches, etc.

It is one of the wonders of the human system that certain natural elements have influences without which there is decay. The skin is an example. Take a complexion that is all covered with pimples, blotches, rash, blackheads and is oily and muddy, feed it with Stuart's Calcium Wafers and a marvelous change takes place. It soon becomes smooth and velvety. Pimples and other blemishes fade away. The blood in the skin is purified, the waste matter is burned before it reaches the skin and ere long the complexion is girlish refined and perfectly lovely.

Look closely at a wonderfully beautiful skin, and observe its soft, delicate texture, the pink capillary blood tinting the cheeks. You see what is produced when your skin has been cleansed with Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

No More Gray Hair —Says Science

Wonderful Clean, Colorless Liquid Restores Original Color

Results in a Week

Science again has scored a triumph in the discovery of a very remarkable liquid known as Kolor-Bak. If you are gray, just apply this liquid to the hair and scalp and your hair will soon take on the actual color it had in the past. Not a trace of grayness will remain.

Kolor-Bak comes in the form of a clean and colorless liquid, containing properties which quickly restore the lost color to the hair, and give it renewed vigor. And note that the one preparation is for all colors of hair. No special solution required for each color—no samples of hair required.

You will find also that with Kolor-Bak the hair has the same shade throughout. It does not appear streaked, faded or "dyed."

Every scientist, every physician, knows that gray hair is hair that has ceased to receive its normal supply of coloring matter or pigment from certain tiny cells (called follicles or papillæ) in the scalp, because these cells have become inactive from illness, shock of some kind, scalp disease, dandruff, infection, neglect of the hair, or lack of circulation, etc. But no matter what the cause of the grayness, it is simply amazing to see how it disappears when Kolor-Bak is used. It is a real substitute for the natural pigmentation.

For Dandruff, Itching Scalp and Falling Hair

Kolor-Bak also works wonders in the most persistent cases of dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair, as it thoroughly cleanses the scalp and hair. Many who do not need it on account of grayness use it for its cleansing, tonic properties.

MEN'S FASHIONS

WHAT THEY ARE WEARING IN KNIT GOODS

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

BY A. T. GALLICO.

This department will be glad to answer any questions regarding men's fashions and the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped addressed envelope for personal reply.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—The coming of fall is generally a signal for a boom in knit goods. Knitted vests are seen, the snap on the golf links makes a warm as well as an attractive sweater desirable, and in addition the fall is the gateway to winter when heavy woolen knitted things are in order.

I wanted to get a good line on the autumn sweaters, and the styles that the well dressed man is going to use most, so I went over to a knitting factory and saw them born.

There on the busy knitting machines occupied in turning out the fall crop of knit goods, I saw sweater after sweater growing in the most miraculous fashion. They grew out of the bottoms of the machines in single colors, soft pastel shades, or solid blues and tans and grays, or came out multi-colored in the intricate designs of the Prince of Wales or Fair Isle sweater.

It seemed strange that man, who frequently can be so dull, should have invented a machine so intelligent. The Prince of Wales sweater uses five and six different colored yarns woven into the most intricate designs. The machine that does it makes use of a steel roll that works on the principle of the player piano. The design is worked on the roll, and as it revolves it throws the proper needles into play, and the ones not needed out of play working color and design simultaneously.

Not alone from the pieces of work being knitted on the machines was it possible to learn of this season's knitted goods, but the hundreds of spools of yarn sitting about waiting to be threaded on the machines told their story as well. They came in the soft cashmere that finest and most expensive of all yarns, product of a goat in far off Asia and China; the fashionable camel's hair, next in texture to the cashmere and made from the sheddings of camels. Camels are not clipped. The natives wait for them to shed, gather up the hair from the ground, and market it. There were worsted, which is a wool coming from the sheep. If spun a certain way, it is worsted; if in another, it is called wool yarn and is cheaper and lacks the elasticity of worsted.

Wool yarn is sometimes made out of waste, and to make it cheaper cotton is added. There is a yarn called merino, which is mostly all cotton and is cheap. As the merino is really a high class sheep that gives the best wool, the name is a camouflage, and when you buy a merino sweater you had better make sure exactly what is meant by it. Sometimes sweaters are made with worsted outside and a wool or merino back, but you pay for all worsted. It is cheaper in the long run to buy a sweater in a wholly reliable store.

But to return to these spools of yarn; they came in colors that predicted soft pastel shades for this fall, grays and blues, some exquisite pastel greens, yellows, and tans. Some of them were destined for sweaters of one color, others were to be knitted up into thin borders that would be used on other solid colored sweaters to make attractive color combinations. Still other yarns were the solid primary colors that would go into the making of warm mufflers in one color or stripes, striped or checked sweaters, or the multi-colored designs of the Prince of Wales sweater. One thing was certain, the day of the drab sweater has passed, and the citizen who buys a fall sweater will have plenty of attractive colors and color combinations from which to choose.

Not that the plain natural colored cashmeres and camel's hair will not have as popular a run as usual. They are always attractive, and harmonize well with almost anything. The coat type of sweater is to be seen in plain colors as well as with fancy fronts and sometimes with fancy backs as well. The latter are turned out more by concerns on this side of the water, especially the one I visited, than by the knitting mills abroad, because the latter seem to have fewer machines to do this type of work, and so the backs are made plain. Sleeves are always plain, however.

The sweater with sleeves is more numerous than the sleeveless type, although the latter is to be had. This is probably due to the fact that if the sweater is to be worn without a coat, the sleeves are often a welcome warmth, and look neater; whereas, if the sweater is to be worn under a coat, one might as well have a knit vest.

The sweater vest is running about the same in the favor of the well dressed men as it usually does in the fall. A new note is the Fair Isle pattern so popular in the sweaters, now used in the vests. For country and sport wear nothing could give a more colorful touch to a costume, for they come as bright as one can desire.

The checked front sweater shows no signs of decreased popularity. An especially desirable one from the texture and color point of view was one I saw at the factory. It was of pure cashmere, with plain back and sleeves, coat type, with a checked front of golden brown, tan, and white, the back and sleeves being in the natural color.

White slipover sweaters with colored borders and a colored band at the bottom are going well this season. Necks are either square or oval.

Women the World Over

When the civilian Fascisti corps entered Nuremburg to seize the city for the Royalists they were led by an American woman, the former Ray Beveridge. Her adventurous spirit manifested itself when, as a little girl, she learned blacksmithing.

Though she is a grandmother, Mrs. Winna Dennes of New York sells machinery, is secretary and treasurer of her company, and is said to have a better knowledge of stationary machinery than any man going.

More than 500 women have registered for the School of Democracy which the Woman's Democratic club of New York City has opened at the Hotel Commodore. Some have come from as far away as Virginia.

HOW T

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

PATTERN No. 1641 is cut in such a way as to make it particularly becoming to the full figure, for while the long lines give it the slender appearance we all prefer, the pleated sides will give ample room to walk in easily and will take away from that too tight appearance that one sees sometimes in plain skirts on stout women.

Dark colors and dull finished materials will be most becoming, and in this design especially one material may be used to good advantage. The most difficult part of making this dress will be to lay the plaits, and this isn't hard if done in the right way.

Perforations are made on the pattern, showing exactly how to lay these plaits and a basting thread or French chalk should be used to mark each perforation. After the pattern is removed, start with the plait at the right hand end, and pin in place from the top down. Look at the wrong side and see that the plait is as smooth as on the right side, then baste in place from the top to the bottom. Do this with every plait, and leave the bast-

FROM the ballroom floated the strains of a waltz; the man watched the woman before him, drinking in her loveliness.

"What is it?" she asked.

"I think this is a dream," he answered; "for I never saw anyone so beautiful! I think the greatest charm of all is your wonderful coloring."

The last notes of the waltz were heard.

"That is the end," she said.

"I think it is the beginning," he answered.

Pompeian Bloom—Orange Tint Is Very Popular!

EVERYONE knows that women always look more charming, more youthful, when their cheeks have a touch of color. And, too, a little color in the cheeks imparts sparkle and new beauty to the eyes. So it has become the habit of women to use rouge as regularly as they use their powder.

Pompeian Bloom is a compact rouge made in all the shades required by the different types of women. It is absolutely harmless and will not crumble, yet it comes off easily on your puff for application. Pompeian Bloom is in a dainty gilt box, with a rouge puff, and mirror top.

Try the fashionable Orange tint in Pompeian Bloom. Blends best with Naturelle or Rachel powder.

To obtain instant beauty use the preparations of the Pompeian Quartet in the following order:

Pompeian Day Cream is a vanishing cream to be used as a foundation for powder and rouge. It softens the skin, and protects it against sun and wind and dust.

Pompeian Beauty Powder goes on evenly over this foundation, and will adhere for an exceptionally long time. The Beauty Powder is soft and fine, and comes in the following tints: Naturelle, Rachel, Flesh, and White.

After applying the powder, use Pompeian Bloom, blending it well with the powder to obtain a natural-looking flush. Select the shade most appropriate to your natural coloring. Pompeian Bloom comes in Light, Medium and Dark rose tints, as well as in the fashionable Orange tint.

The fourth step in the Pompeian Quartet is the use of the Pompeian Lip Stick. Its chisel point makes it easy to accent the curves of the lips, and its color is so genuine that its use cannot be detected.

Forecasting Your Winter Complexion

By Mme. Jeannette

A little foresight now will lay the foundation for the health and beauty of your skin during the trying days of winter.

It is during this month that every woman should form the habit of careful daily attention to her skin—her face, neck, shoulders, arms, and hands.

Don't Let Your Skin Get Dry

After the many hours of out-of-door life that always come with summer, every woman's skin tends toward an unhealthy dryness. Pompeian Night Cream is the exact cream to use at this time. It has every property necessary to counteract dryness. It is a direct agent for sanitary cleansing, and it smooths and softens the dry tissue of the skin till the pores again have a chance to "breathe."

I would advise a generous application of Pompeian Night Cream as unfailingly as you go to bed at night.

Rub the cream well over the surface, but do not attempt to rub hard; it is better and easier to pat the cream gently into the skin. Strike the surface covered with cream by using the flat of the fingers—quick little blows, and continue till at least some of the cream has disappeared.

Use soft cloths to wipe away the remaining traces of the cream, and whatever may remain will soften the skin during your hours of sleep.

Morning Loveliness

The first thing in the morning the skin may be "asleep," and there is nothing more helpful to arouse circulation than a wholesome splashing of cold water.

Pat the face dry with your towel, or your bare hands if you prefer.

When you apply Pompeian Day Cream take care to spread it on all parts of the skin, and to blend it smoothly till it disappears.

Powder and Rouge

The Pompeian Beauty Powder should cover the neck and face with even thickness so you will not have a face of one tone and a neck of another.

Pompeian Bloom (the rouge) comes in a convenient compact that rubs off easily for use and stays on well for the user. The new Orange tint is surprisingly natural, especially when used with the Naturelle or Rachel tints of Beauty Powder.

Pompeian Lip Stick

This final touch is essential with the rose-petal cheeks—and its color is natural and healthy-looking.

Patterns by Clotilde

1786—Woman's and misses' slip-on dress. Sizes 16 years and 36 to 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 1 yards of 42 inch material.

1306—Stout woman's dress. Sizes 40 to 50 inches bust measure. Size 40 requires 3¾ yards of 40 inch material.

1641—Woman's one piece dress. Sizes 36 to 50 inches bust measure. Size 44 requires 4 yards of 44 inch material.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

PATTERN No. 1641 is cut in such a way as to make it particularly becoming to the full figure, for while the long lines give it the desired appearance we all prefer, the pleated sides will give ample room to walk in easily and will take away from that too tight appearance that we see sometimes in plain skirts on our women.

Dark colors and dull finished materials will be most becoming, and in this design especially one material may be used to good advantage. The most difficult part of making this dress will be lay the plaits, and this isn't hard if one is the right way.

Perforations are made on the pattern showing exactly how to lay these plaits and a basting thread or French chalk should be used to mark each perforation. After the pattern is removed, start with the plait at the right hand end, and pin in place from the top down. Look at the wrong side and see that the plait is as smooth as on the right side, then baste in place from the top to the bottom. Do this with every plait and leave the basting in until the dress is unished and pressed.

The pattern gives a choice of long, dart fitted, flaring or shorter length sleeves, and the opening at the neck, coming as it does to quite a deep point, is a becoming feature.

Pattern No. 1786 is a pretty one piece dress. It is a slip-on, and is slashed in from theu nder arm edges and the fullness laid in plaits.

One of the beautiful crêpes in a plain color would be ideal for a gown of this kind, and embroidery in contrasting colors could be used for trimming.

The long lines of pattern No. 1306 will make the stout woman look more slender. It is smart looking and will make up well in one of the lovely dress woolens, or satin or crepe—depending largely on just when the dress is to be worn.

It should not be difficult to make. Be sure to apply your length and width measures to the pattern pieces before placing on the material. Many women may take the same bust measure, but all other measures will not necessarily correspond to those of the pattern and it is far easier to mark the alterations on the pattern than to have to make alterations later on in your sewing.

The back and side fronts extend from the shoulder to the bottom of the skirt, and the middle front is laid on a fold of the goods and is also in one piece.

It wouldn't be a bad idea to finish the neck with a wrong side facing and make the collar detachable. It would be attractive to have several different colored georgette collars, picoted on the edge; and collars of fine jet and lace are always becoming. It almost makes one feel as if the dress were a different one each time.

While the dress will look well made entirely of one color, it is one that may be made of two colors, and in that case will need little or no trimming. The front panel and cuffs may be of a contrasting color to the dress, and about the waist may be worn any sort of girdle or sash. The dress is marked for a casing at the waist line, through which an elastic is to be run. Take care not to have the elastic too tight.

Two different ways of finishing the sleeves are given with the pattern; one is fitted below the elbow by a dart making it close fitting, while the other is loose at the hand. If the dart is to be used, baste it in place and try the sleeve on before cutting it away. These darts are set in to throw the necessary fullness over the elbow and to make the sleeve close fitting on the lower half. But arm lengths and widths are by no means the same on different people; hence the necessity of care in the fitting, lengthening or shortening, letting out or taking in before any cutting is done.

Disturbing the Peace.

One day I entered the library shuffling my feet, and the librarian glared at me, saying: "Pick up your feet!" My foot upset a small bookcase, scattering the books far and wide. And among the snickers and jokes I stooped to pick them up, blushing furiously. Then I fled from the library as fast as my legs could carry me. W. M.

All Hubby's Fault.

I was reared in a small town where every one was my friend. After I was married we lived in a city apartment house, and I knew nobody, and was lonely.

When we moved into our suburban home in a rather exclusive neighborhood I was reasonably anxious to make friends with our neighbors.

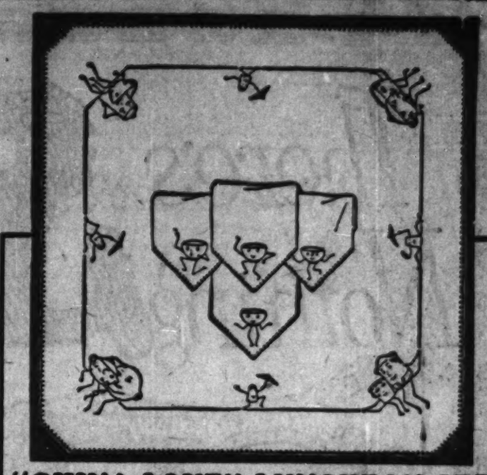

We lived several blocks from the station and I always drove by husband to and from the train, which was a pleasure to us both. One day he telephoned that he would be home early and asked me to be sure to meet the train. I was just ready to start when one of my neighbors called—one I was particularly anxious to have for my friend. I must have appeared nervous, for my guest asked if I were going to meet my husband. I assured her I was not.

In due time my husband arrived, hot and cross. The visitor sat in a deep chair, with her back to the door.

"Why didn't you meet me?" hus band asked.

"I didn't know you were coming so early," I said sweetly, rising to make the introduction.

"But I telephoned you to meet me," he exploded. Then he saw the guest. F. D

Wonderful Adventures of the Dog Club

Mrs. Bear Entertains the Gravel-Pitters

By Raymond Kelly.

"WELL," said Old Mother Bear, settling back in the easy chair to which Carlo, the St. Bernard, motioned her, and sucking on the marrow bone which she had dipped into the pink lemonade, "a dog's life isn't half bad, after all. This is certainly solid comfort.

"You know," she went on, "I'm really rather fond of dogs. I'd like to have one as a pet and playmate for little Ursus here, and I've brought home several promising pups. But that husband of mine doesn't care for pets, and they all disappeared. I wouldn't go so far as to say that I knew what became of them, but I have my suspicions. Perhaps, though, it's just as well, for I suppose it would be rather hard to teach a pup to hibernate."

"What does 'hibernate' mean?" asked Granger the collie.

"Huh," put in Toodles the poodle. "If you'd spent your puppyhood traveling around with a circus and getting an education, instead of loafing on a door mat, you wouldn't have to ask so many questions. 'Hibernate' means to 'sleep all winter.'"

"Why don't you do your sleeping in the summertime, so that you can enjoy the skating season, Mrs. Bear?" asked Granger, the fox terrier.

"Moths," answered Mother Bear. "They simply ruin one's furs, if one tries to sleep in summer. But you are asking about my adventures, sir," she said to Carlo. "Perhaps the one with the syrup tin was the most thrilling, though I've led an adventurous life, for all my being such a home body.

"You see," she continued, "there's a big summer hotel only three miles or so from our den. It's rather a nuisance having so many humans singing and shouting through the woods, but the hotel garbage is simply wonderful. So my husband and I have fallen into the habit of dropping down to the hotel for dinner whenever it happens to be so hot that I don't feel like getting a meal at home. That's how I happened to get caught in that syrup last August.

"If there's any one dish I prefer to all others, it's nice fresh maple syrup. The hotel buys it in ten gallon tins, and cuts the tops out. All bears like syrup and, I'm sorry to say that some I won't mention are rather greedy about it. So you can imagine how pleased I felt to find a can with at least half a pint of the most delicious syrup in it. I put my head in, and began to lick that can as fast as I could, and that was pretty fast, I can tell you.

"When it was all gone, I started to back away, but the can stayed right with me. I was stuck fast. I roared and howled, but that can made such an echo that I nearly deafened myself. Then I tried to run, but I could neither see my way nor smell it. So I just sat down where I was to starve until I got thin enough to get out of that tin. I'd have had to do it, too, if it hadn't been for a zoo-keeper, who was stopping at that hotel. He let me out with a can opener. If you think it takes a brave person to open a syrup tin that has a wild bear in it, you just try it some time," and Mother Bear roared fiercely to show how dangerous a tinned bear could be.

Then she got slowly out of the arm chair, taking her son up with one paw and helping herself to a plate of pumpernickle fudge with the other.

"Good-bye," she said politely. "I'd take one of you along for a pet if it were any use, but it isn't. You wouldn't last."

Bright Sayings of Children

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

The Tribune will pay $1 for each children saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unprintable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address Bright Sayings to Aunty Em. The Tribune, Chicago.

Billie had been hard at play in the back yard. Mother, noticing his dirty face, called him into the house.

"Come, Billie, I must wash your face."

"Why, muvver, whose coming?" asked Billie. J. M. M.

The children were having a loud scrap out in the yard and I went out to see what the trouble was. "What's the matter and whose fault is it?" I asked.

Donald answered for the party, "We don't know, we just are all quarreled up." E. L. R.

Julia went to visit her grandmother the other day just after all the plants had been removed from outdoors.

After looking at all the pots and baskets with interest, she exclaimed, "Well, I'll say you certainly are going to have a flowerful winter." E. L. R.

Our neighbor was to help at a church bazaar and food sale, and my son volunteered to help her carry some of her bundles, thus: "You can park 'em in my 'spress wagon and I'll speed 'em down for you." G. B. A.

We had a family reunion dinner the other day and found it necessary to supplement our regular dining room set with some chairs brought up from the basement.

An attempt was made, however, to camouflage their age and shabbiness by the addition of chair backs made of natural color linen.

At a pause in the conversation, Eli nor convulsed us all by asking: "Grandmother, why did you have to bandage all those chairs?" D. A. T.

A small neighbor comes over early every morning.

Asked one day: "What time does your family get up?"

She answered, "O, time doesn't get us up. We just get up when the clock 'larms." H. M. E.

Marjorie, who had a new baby brother, was sitting at the desk writing diligently.

The nurse asked her to whom she was writing.

She replied, "I'm writing to that ol' doctor, telling him to come and take this baby away. He makes so much noise I can't even fink." J. W.

Arlene was telling about a playmate who had been given a dog for a birthday gift.

When asked if the dog were a thoroughbred, she replied: "I don't think so. He seems to have just an every dog bark." M. O.

Mary's Uncle Ben is six feet two, several inches taller than any one Mary had ever seen.

When he came for a visit Mary looked up at him in amazement and exclaimed, "O, my, Uncle Ben, you're the fartherest man I ever saw!" A. L. H.

Albert and his baby sister were playing in the sand pile. He became impatient and slapped her, which he knew would bring punishment from mother, so he tried to pacify his victim.

From a window above mother was surprised to hear him say: "There, there, now, Honey, brother didn't mean to. His hand just skidded." H. R.

There were three sons in succession in Warren's home, so there was much excitement when a sister arrived.

Warren went to one of the neighbors and excitedly exclaimed, "We have a baby at our house and it's a lady." J. W. W.

Rugs!

The First Consideration—Reliability

The reliability of the house is the first consideration in buying your rugs. Our reputation for reliability rests on these four foundation stones:

1. 49 years' experience in manufacturing rugs.
2. A volume of business, nation-wide, running into millions of dollars a year.
3. The largest and finest stock in the city.
4. Low prices which challenge comparison.

We stand back of every rug we sell. You must be satisfied or your money will be cheerfully refunded.

ENGLISH COTTAGE STYLE.

THE little house illustrated today is designed in the English cottage style. In exterior appearance it is much like the delightful English roadside cottages that are such a delight to artists and travelers abroad.

The walls are of solid masonry, with the exterior faced with limestone, sawed quarry run Indiana limestone being used for this purpose. It is roughly broken to the lengths required and laid up in a random ashlar, possessing all of the interesting variations in color, tone, texture, and grain produced by the quarries.

In interior plan arrangement it is thoroughly modern and American, adapted to the needs of the small family and the convenience of the servantless household.

Window and door panels are the only exterior woodwork. The roof is of a permanent material, like tile or slate. Such a house requires practically no exterior maintenance expense. The varnishing or painting of window frames is all that would be necessary.

Being nearly square in plan, it is most compact and economical to build—just big enough for the small family, yet without a square foot of useless space.

The roof is intended to be of rough dull red shingle tile, but wood shingles, stained a similar color, could be used, of course. A central chimney provides for all flues. This is faced with stone above the roof line, and is topped off with red tile chimney pots.

It will be noted that a simple type of outward opening casement windows is used throughout the house. Either pine or cypress wood, or the new, nonrusting metal casement windows could be used. The necessary screening of these windows is taken care of by screens having either wood or metal frames, set inside of the casement sash. These are operated by a suitable casement adjuster.

The house is designed for a comparatively narrow lot, such as those which are found in so many residential suburbs. Having a total width of only twenty-eight feet, it may be built on a forty foot lot, providing, too, a driveway along one side to a garage at the rear.

A paved terrace, either at the front or rear, is intended to take the place of the usual porch. Direct sunlight is, therefore, assured to all of the first story rooms. This terrace is to be fenced with a hedge and paved with large, irregular slabs of limestone, laid with about two inch spaces between the stones, for grass. Paving could be omitted where it is desired to plant vines or flowers along the walls of the house.

There is a basement under the entire building [except under the porches], lighted and ventilated by windows placed in areaways.

The house is entered through an arched entrance porch, which could be enclosed in winter, to serve as a vestibule. In the first floor hall, a toilet has been provided, an unusual convenience in a house of this size. From the hall an open stairway, convenient to bath, living room, and kitchen, leads to the second floor. A coat closet, opening from the stair landing, is convenient to both floors.

To the left of the entrance hall is a living room, 12 feet 6 inches by 19 feet, with a group of casement windows overlooking the street. An in-a-door bed closet, opening from the front portion of the living room, is provided. This makes it possible for the living room to be used to supplement the bedroom accommodation. At one end of the room there is a simple early English style limestone mantel. At one side of this fireplace an arched doorway opens into the dining room.

Overlooking the garden at the rear is a good sized dining room. It is provided with two china closets, one of those opening into both the dining room and kitchen, so that the dishes in every day use may be reached from either side.

In addition to the dining room, there is a breakfast alcove, with glazed French doors opening from the kitchen, making it unnecessary to use the dining room regularly. The kitchen, while comparatively small, is well arranged.

The refrigerator is placed in the breakfast alcove, where it can be readily reached from the kitchen or from the entrance under the stairway. The rear entry, located under the stair landing and opening on to the driveway at the side of the house, provides direct access to the cellar, and also serves as the kitchen entrance, eliminating all service features from the rear, or garden side of the house.

In the second story there are two bedrooms and a bath, with ample closet and storage space. Both bedrooms are corner ones, having windows on two sides, assuring cross ventilation and plenty of light, and consequently being cool in the summer. The main bedroom is exceptionally large for a house of this size, and the second bedroom is also of good proportions.

All the closets have sufficient depth to be treated as wardrobe closet, and are fitted with hanging poles. Storage space for trunks, etc., is provided under the roof over the front entrance porch, making access to the attic space unnecessary.

HALLOWEEN AND SCOTTISH FOODS.

A Scottishlike collection of refreshments for Halloween might consist simply of apples, hot roasted nuts, and cider. It is, however, doubtful whether any old fashioned Scotsman of position would be satisfied with anything so slight in solids and liquids, but Halloween, we have reason to believe, was a peasant festival, and the "lower orders" had to take what they could get in foods, often small pickings. The best game—grouse, black game, ptarmigan, woodcocks, snipes, partridges, pheasants, and even the hare—and the best meats of every sort, went to the privileged, while the poor might be satisfied to gnaw a marrow bone.

And how the privileged like to eat! And how lusciously they talked about something like a small bird with buttered breast on a bed of brown toasted bread, or about the sweet sounds from the roast on the spit or the steak bubbling and squeaking.

Hunting laws have been strict in both England and Scotland. One has but to read the history of the Airedale dog to find that he was developed, far less than a century ago I think it was, by the stealthy poacher to replace noisier hunting dogs. I was a great deal surprised to have Irish snipe offered me from a rather simple home lunch box when traveling in the British isles.

Soups That Are Substantial.

For a Scottish hallowe'en dinner the soup might be mutton broth with barley, with some raw carrot grated over it, or a chicken soup with leeks, called cocky leeky because originally made of the cock, or the loved hotch-potch, which is really a thick lamb stew with every possible vegetable in it, and especially a head of cauliflower broken into bits. Sometimes neatly trimmed chops are added to it when it is half done—the original meat foundation being neck meat—and served in it. We would not follow any Scotch recipe in making this, because we do not believe it is necessary to cook vegetables three or four hours to make them soft. It destroys the vitamines. If nicely scalded before they go into broth or stew and rinsed with cold water they cook quickly and the stew is the daintier. Cauliflower needs it when for a stew as when cooked in any fashion.

An oyster appetizer is "good and Scotch," for the Scottish people served these bivalves in enormous quantities at a meal, the raw ones on a board, and sometimes in four or five ways. The hot ones were taken from the fire with tongs. Burning hot, they are handed to the eater each with a bit of butter, or here is a bona fide Scottish description: "A hazel nut of butter under the oyster in its deep shell, which you see melts it . . . then shred your eschallot gently into the same; garlic would be better if you had it." After that the oyster is showered with cayenne and a little salt. How these old fellows did pepper things! Hard drinkers have done the same thing the world over, and degenerative diseases of hideous sorts have overtaken most of them, with angina pectoris, etc.

The Scotch, as the English, like to discuss the oysters from different geographical sources.

An eminent Scotchman being asked whether he liked the large or the small oyster, replied: "A difficult question. The large oyster is like your large beauty—melting, luxurious, soul soothing. The small are like your small beauties—piquant, savory, and soul awakening."

Scottish List of Meats.

There might be a long list of cold meats at a Scottish Halloween dinner, mutton, turkey, round of beef, and ham all being appropriate, though the ham could hardly be like the famous Westmoreland brand of which "Christopher North" or John Wilson said: "Lay a knife on it, and its own weight will sink it down through the soft sweet sappiness of fat and lean, indistinguishably blended." What the Scotch make of even the remnants of cold tongue is considerable, and they

HOW TO STOP SOUR STOMACH

Chronic with Many People—Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Bring Quick Comfort—Sweeten and Stop Acid, Sour Risings and Such Dyspeptic Distress.

When the fact is considered that even careful people, those who follow diet rules, get attacks of indigestion, no argument is needed to recommend the best means of relief. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used by lawyers, doctors, teachers, by business men, high livers, society women, industrial workers, clerks, and the worst abused stomachs in the world, those of a host of travelers.

For thirty years people have learned that they may eat what they like or what is set before them, and no matter what the condition of the stomach, if due to dyspepsia, these wonderful tablets stop gaseiness and sour risings, they give the stomach the alkaline effect which overcomes acidity and thus they either avoid distress after eating or else they quickly relieve it. Be fortified. Get a 50-cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store and arm yourself against indigestion.

My Experience is that DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN Is just what you need

This Will Make Digestion Easy

WHAT the dyspeptic needs is not soda and charcoal and breath perfumes but a medicine that will help his bowels to move regularly, for dyspepsia and constipation are allied. If you will take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin systematically as the directions on the package call for you will soon digest your food properly and pass it out normally, and heartburn, belching, dizziness, nervousness and bloating will vanish. In time you can dispense with all medicines as Syrup Pepsin will have exercised the intestinal and stomach muscles so they act for themselves. Mr. Lewis F. Schultz of Rossmor, Ia., Mrs. Victor Knodler of 3625 Bank St., Louisville, Ky., and hosts of others will verify this.

World Acclaims Success

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the prescription of a well-known physician of that name who practiced successfully for 47 years. It has been on the market thirty years and is today the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. Thousands of families have it in their medicine chest ready when any member shows signs of dyspepsia, constipation, torpid liver, sour stomach, biliousness, coated tongue, offensive breath, headaches and such ailments that indicate deranged stomach and bowels. Many serious diseases are prevented by this timely aid.

Formula Plainly Stated

Have no hesitancy giving Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to anyone young or old. It is a mild, gentle laxative free from narcotics. It will not cramp or gripe. The formula is on the package, a compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and simple aromatics. A bottle can be had at any drug store and averages less than a cent a dose. Economical for families and fully guaranteed. You will find it a great improvement in taste and action over castor oil, or "candy cathartics" made from coal-tar that cause skin diseases, calomel that loosens the teeth, salts in water or powder that concentrate the blood and dry the skin.

If You Want to Try It Free Before Buying—

Little children who have to be taught how to play, so cheerless their lives have been—think how they will beam, once they catch the idea that they are really intended to be happy for an hour, and can just cut loose for golden hours—all made possible by your gift of something you didn't really want, anyway.

And games aren't all, by any means! Think of the little girl who never has had a doll and who never even dreams of having a real doll buggy this side of Heaven! How her whole world will be transformed when she learns that the shiny pipe buggy, fresh from the shop where the boys have put it in first class shape, is to be really, truly hers, with a great big real doll! Think of the little boy who, as by a miracle, comes into a toy train that is really his, instead of something merely to be admired in a store window! Think of that—think of the discarded toys in your house—and let's put all of them to work right now, delivering this all but unbelievable happiness upon those who never have dared to hope for a ray of happiness in their pinched little lives!

What's Wrong Here?

(Answer at bottom of this page.)

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

EDITED BY JANE EDDINGTON

have half a dozen names for the turkey, the "hautawdie" of the spit.

To my mind, no one who has not seen a haggis made should attempt that, and, besides, who can get a sheep's stomach and the pluck or lungs, liver and heart? I never realized until I read the "Noctes Ambrosianae," by "Christopher North," in which there are several lengthy descriptions of disasters with it, that the haggis was just a stew and a wet one in a bag or bags the sheep's somach and the "king's hood."

There are a great number of Scottish things like devilled kidneys—"plain broiled and peppered plainly"—which one might have. Take the red herring, which you find listed over and over in Scottish menus, and which is often called "Glasgow magistrate." It would be good for a Hallowe'en celebrated out of doors, as it so appropriately can be celebrated, with the toasting of red herring for part of the entertainment. The rhymed recipe for this may be Scotch or English, but is: "Never a red herring spoke but one, and he said, 'Toast my back before you toast my bone.'"

Takes Skilled Hand.

Our common menus for Hallowe'en are likely to contain "sand witches." We find recipes for terrible hot ones in the Noctes, while little Scotch children get them with sweet fillings and call them "pieces."

As to Scottish breads and bread cakes, are they not legion? It is nothing to have five kinds including small, cold pancakes served at a meal with marmalade. But no amateur can make the simplest of these. The oatcake is made like our corn pone except that it is rolled out thin and toasted. The new cook is likely to get bitter effects in all these cases, as she does with pie crust, and the Scottish shortbreads which so many people would like to make are a sort of sandy pie crust. It takes the skilled hand to do the mixing, and that is the light hand, while the unskilled will be heavy, like feet unaccustomed to dancing.

I have Scottish cook books and Scottish recipes in manuscripts—paid a girl in Edinburgh to copy for me all the recipes she had got in a year at a cooking school—but it seems to me that almost all these recipes need a little alteration to suit our needs.

Tracing Its Origin.

Getting back to Hallowe'en, we may ask "How Scottish is it?" It is, indeed, as Scottish as the thistle and shortbread, the cocky leeky and St. Andrew's day. Scotland has put this day into the wide calendar of the western world, and that was really some accomplishment. Numerous as are the feast days of the countries of the occident, only a few are universal. St. Patrick's day has but a limited observance, Taffy's day is hardly known at all, and what do we know about Guy Fawkes?

It is probably because every man in the world would like to know something of the future that Hallowe'en has been so widely accepted, although some of the incantations and imitation divinations that are so gayly and cheerily practiced on this 31st day of October are no more Scottish than they are New England or Egyptian.

The simple Scottish peasant found read meanings into cabbage stalks, got prophecies from the behavior of nuts when heated, and used apples, candles, mirrors, and especially the dark to find out a fortune for himself. If he pulled a straight cabbage stalk—the cabbage had already been cut and stored—he believed he would get a personable and efficient wife, a crooked stalk gave no favorable omen and was even more discouraging to the girl who pulled it than to the young man, for it indicated a mate who was uncouth and uncomely.

It was undoubtedly the girl who watched the nuts before the fire most closely, the three of them representing herself and two suitors whom she named as she put the nuts to roast. If one jumped, he for whom it was named would be faithless, if the nut cracked, the man would be fickle; if it burned, he would be true.

Hunting the Future.

Apple bobbing, nut cracking, cider or other drinking formed part of this game of hunting the future. Also by smoked saucers and sticks the unmarried sought to find out whether they would marry, and how and when and whom. They sought to find out whether they were to have happiness or sorrow, and whether those who would are these things would be fair and strong, or lame, indifferent, careless, or worse.

It has been more or less common, since the world began, to have refreshments at social gatherings. They who believed the powers of darkness could be challenged certainly consumed apples and nuts and imbibed somewhat. Scottish people would be sure to have food and drink even while practicing these superstitious rites, and it seems strange to me that I have never been able to find in any Scottish cook book a recipe labeled as a Hallowe'en dish.

I have hunted in many books on Scottish life for such recipes without success, even in the five volumes of the "Noctes Ambrosianae," which are a perfect and entertaining mine of information on Scottish eating and drinking—marvelous eating and drinking—with real recipes.

I had never realized how many kinds of bread or soups or meats could be presented at one meal until I read these volumes. There are even diagrams of tables with an unbelievable number of soups, or meats or oysters, upon them. In one case the hotch potch is praised as giving "a dim grandeur to the stairs," and an evening is spoken of as misty, and no wonder, "with thirteen soups a' steaming up the skies." The shepherd of the Noctes speaks of his "ladle hand."

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark

GRANDMOTHER kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied, with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

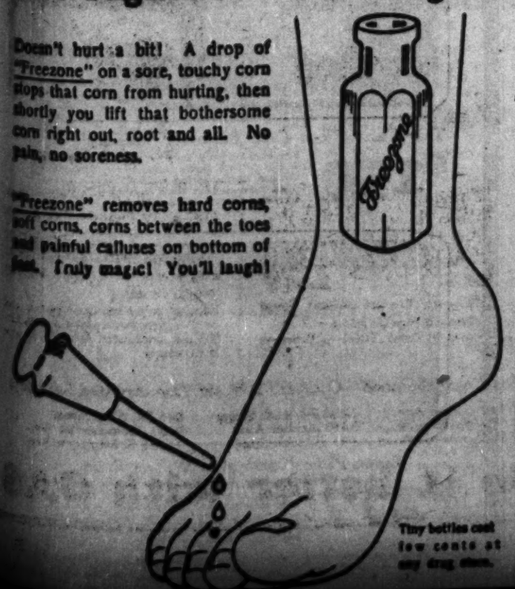

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through the hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color, and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

Corns

Lift Right Off with Fingers

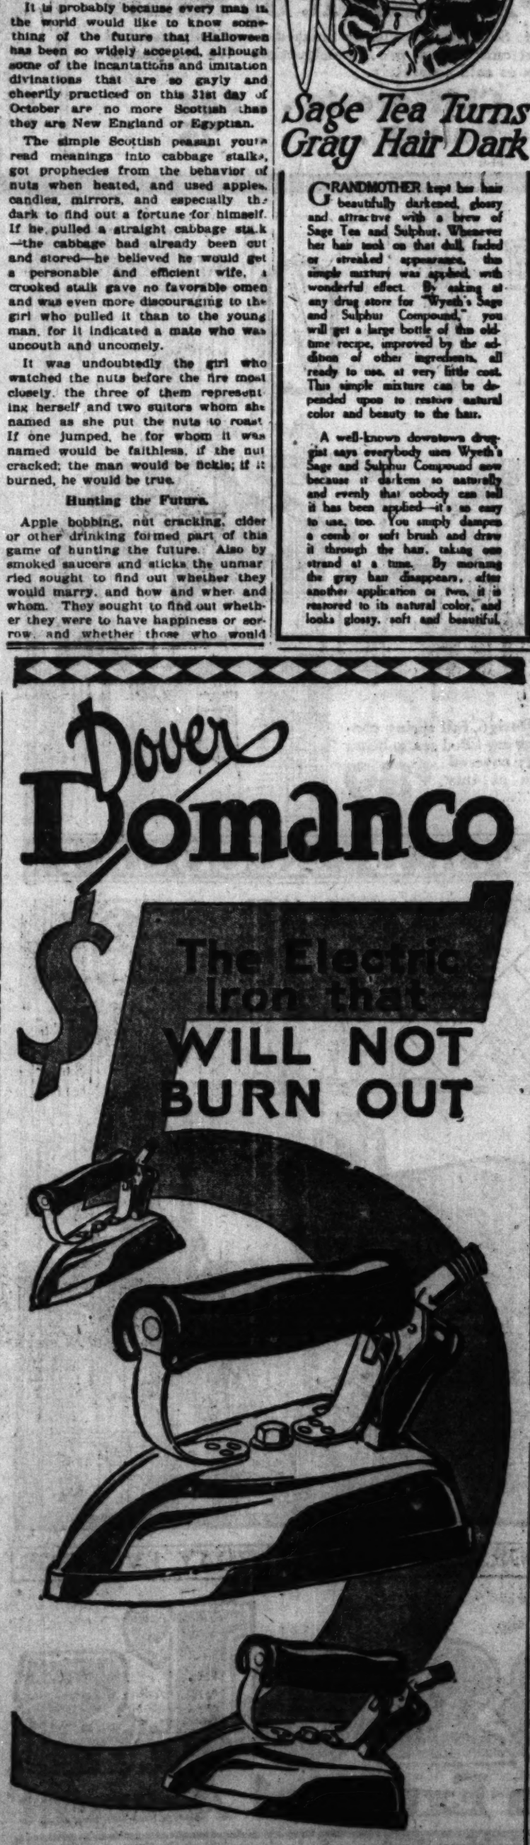

Doesn't hurt a bit! A drop of "Freezone" on a sore, touchy corn stops that corn from hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn right out, root and all. No pain, no soreness.

"Freezone" removes hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes and painful calluses on bottom of feet. Truly magic! You'll laugh!

Tiny bottles cost few cents at any drug store.

5,000 Chicago Girls Go Into This Whirlpool Every Year

Every year 5,000 Chicago girls are listed on the police records as "missing." What becomes of them? Where do they go? Is the road they travel a bed of roses or is it a trail of broken hearts, of vain regrets?

And why do these 5,000 girls leave home? Who is to blame?

You get the answer to these questions in a series of articles prepared for the Evening American by Alice Clement, Chicago's famous woman detective and herself the mother of three daughters.

And Now, for the First Time, the Truth About These Missing Girls

Alice Clement has been assigned to Central police station in Chicago for many years. She has operated almost exclusively on cases where girls were "missing" from home or in trouble as a result of stepping too briskly along the city's gilded road. She knows conditions as no other person in Chicago knows them. And she writes from actual experience—not upon theories or fancies.

In turning the spotlight of publicity upon facts heretofore unpublished, Mrs. Clement will be rendering a genuine service to mothers and fathers. And each and every story she writes will preach a great sermon for the girl who is dissatisfied with her home life.

GOOD morning! (Or, to please those who object to the "Good morning," May you choke—if you want to—before night!) However, getting off dangerous ground——

This cinema sonata, entitled "No Mother to Guide Her," while well acted in the main, leaves one slightly up in the air. It would seem that while not being the most comfortable thing in the world to have no mother to guide her, such a state of being is in the long run the best thing for a girl.

It would seem that a lonely and fear ridden childhood is exactly the requisite needed to bring out all that is best in her. A drunken father teaches her patience. Lack of clothes makes her hardy. Being a target keeps her agile, not to say alert. She grows brave, wary, and, if she has a dear old grandfather who sympathizes with her, self-sacrifice becomes second nature to her.

This, the girl with no mother to guide her.

The girl WITH a mother? Selfish. Deceptive. Shudders over her carefully prepared meals. Won't get up when she should in the morning. Goes around with boys who are also the unlucky possessors of mothers and fathers to guide them, and consequently encounters pitfalls—from which she is rescued by the girl with no mother to guide her.

GENEVIEVE TOBIN plays the unguided young woman of this baffling film.
[Keray Photo.]

Speaking of the boys, it seems they should be either orphans or half orphans to get a good start in the world.

A most baffling picture. Upon seeing it, parents who honestly have the well being of their young at heart will undoubtedly efface themselves at the earliest possible moment. I should say, though, not until they have made over all their possessions to earthquake survivors or homes for the aged, for it seems best for the girl who has no mother to guide her to be absolutely dependent on the neighbors, and for the boy who would be a MAN to sell vegetables to passing automobilists until he acquires sufficient income to start a corner store.

Good Supporting Cast for the Star

The star of this picture with the strangely elusive moral is Miss Genevieve Tobin. That is, Miss Tobin is the unguided young woman. The unguided child is played by a darling youngster named Ruth Sullivan.

Miss Tobin does some pretty good work, but to my way of thinking she is not nearly so clever as the guided daughter, impersonated by Dolores Rousse. The guided child really don't matter much, for she only enters the picture long

Her Dinner for a General Puts Pola in a New Light

By Mildred Spain.

LOS ANGELES.—[Special Correspondence.]—Mme. Pola Negri proudly introduced Hollywood's stellar attractions to her countryman, Gen. Joseph Haller, at a distinctive dinner dance at the Biltmore on Saturday, Oct. 20. Mark the date. For it was on that night that Pola played the rôle of society leader for the first time since her American debut. And, Oh! what a different Pola from the haughty, bored lady who lent her charms to that Lasky luncheon only a few months ago. The Pola of Saturday's banquet was all sweetness. She has been changed from the continental great lady into a lovable Lasky star. And there has been much rejoicing.

She is "our Pola" now.

POLA NEGRI
Once so haughty; now she strives to please.

Pola's party was quite an occasion with more than 200 movie stars, studio officials, members of the Polish colony, journalists, the mayor, and a prince included.

Among the guests were Richard Dix, Rupert Hughes, William Hart, Miss Mary Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Sills, Charles de Roche, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Kathlyn Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lasky, Jeanie McPherson, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil De Mille, Mr. and Mrs. Adolphe Menjou, Mr. and Mrs. William De Mille, and Prince Lasaref.

Gen. Haller was Mme. Negri's house guest during his three day visit here.

Charlie's Back, and Isn't Seeking Leisure

The above reminds us that Mr. Charles Spencer Chaplin returned from New York in a happy mood, and is moving into his Beverly Hills home near the Pickfair estate.

Edna Purviance said that the only way she kept history dates in her mind was to remember just what cardiac affair Charlie was going through during the filming of his pictures. "A Woman of Paris" saw the entire Pola engagement through.

Chaplin is to start work without resting. Edna Purviance will probably be his leading lady, as she has remained faithful to her art and platonic as to heart.

As for Pola, there will be two more pictures made in the Vine street studio, and then New York. Madam said she could do without climate, but she must have grand opera.

Theda Bara, one of the first ladies who paid and paid and paid in the pictures, returned to Hollywood and the screen on Thursday morning. She was enthusiastically welcomed by Virginia Brown Faire, Marjorie Bonner, Kathleen Key, and Menifee Johnstone, who carried armsful of chrysanthemums for Theda.

Younger Sets Are Busy Day and Night

The younger set—sets, there are two of them—are enthusiastic about everything these days.

Next Tuesday night Our club will entertain all the lady interviewers of the fan magazines. Helen Ferguson is to be hostess supreme, dressed as a cunning child. All of the girls have decided to carry out the kid motif.

Lillian Rich, Carmel Myers, Colleen Moore, Clara Horton, Vola Vale, Gloria Hope, Laura La Plante, Carmelita Geraghty, Mildred Davis, Edna Murphy, Patsy Ruth Miller, Gertrude Olmstead, Virginia Fox, and Virginia Valli will be there. And Mary Pickford has promised to come if there isn't any night shooting of "Dorothy Vernon."

Priscilla Bonner will entertain the other group of younger film actresses, The Regulars, at its Halloween party. The Regulars have added Mary Philbin, Pauline Garon, and Doris May to their membership list.

Doris May may be a Regular, but first of all she is a bride. She has been visiting her relatives in Oregon during

Wagnerians Are Here and Operas Are Many

By Edward Moore.

WITH three items of the "Ring," three more Wagner operas, two American premieres, and a Mozart work added for good measure, everything is set for a busy week at the Great Northern theater, where the Wagnerian Opera company is moving in today for a fortnight's visit.

So much of the schedule has escaped Chicago hearing for so many years that the week's activities can almost be classified in the novelty list. "Die Walküre," of course, has come in for frequent treatment at the hands of the Chicago Opera at the Auditorium, and it is only two seasons since "Tannhäuser" had a series of performances there. But "Das Rheingold" and "Siegfried" have not been heard since the 1916-17 season under Campanini's régime and Egon Pollak's baton; Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" goes back still further; "Die Meistersinger" was last heard in April, 1910, Arturo Toscanini conducting and the Metropolitan company singing; and "Der Fliegende Holländer" has not been given since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary.

HERMANN WEIL as Hans Sachs in "Die Meistersinger" tonight.

As for the real novelties, they are Eugene D'Albert's "Die Toten Augen" and Wilhelm Kienzl's "Der Evangelimann." Both have cheerful little plots. "Die Toten Augen" tells of a blind woman whose sight is miraculously restored at the time of Christ's entry into Jerusalem. The first man she sees is better looking than her husband, and as she falls into the natural error of mistaking him for her husband the husband promptly kills him and she destroys her own sight again. "Der Evangelimann" deals with crime and repentance, the crime being a lover's setting fire to a building containing the rival and the girl. As few operas are real operas without deeds of violence, the theme of broiled soprano has occasionally been used for one of the deeds.

You will follow the path of wisdom in case you intend to patronize the Wagnerians during their stay here if you will watch the advertising columns for the time of beginning before you start for the Great Northern. For "Die Meistersinger," which will open the season tonight, is announced to start at 7:15, and several others are also due for early starts. From which it is inferred that the Wagnerians do not look with favor upon cutting their scores.

Other items about the organization say that its promoters plan to make it a permanent American institution, and that they have begun by taking time at the New York Manhattan for the next five years. In the process they will add American singers to their roster. Joan Ruth, a young Bostonian, is one of the first. She will appear as Cherubino in "The Marriage of Figaro" Wednesday afternoon, and will have other parts, the bird in "Siegfried," for one, later.

The names of the singers at present are merely names as far as Chicago is concerned, to be associated with memories of rôles later. But among the principal women are Editha Fleischer, Ida Moerike, Ottilie Metzger, Elsa Gentner-Fischer, and Marie Höllischer, and some of the men are Theodor Latterman, Robert Hutt, Eduard Kandl, Hermann Weil, Adolf Schöpflin, Paul Schwarz, Rudolf Ritter, and Benno Ziegler. There will be four conductors, Josef Stransky, former conductor of the New York Philharmonic; Eduard Moerike, Ernst Knoch, who used to live here, and Alfred Lorentz. Theodor Latterman is the stage director and Kurt Albrecht the technical director.

"Follies" Holds Forth Until 2 O'Clock Sunday Morning

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—For seventeen years it has been the Ziegfeld custom to take each new "Follies" show first to Atlantic City, ther sto be tried on the boardwalk crowd and such Philadelphians as appeared. These public rehearsals used to run from 8 o'clock in the evening until sometime past 1 o'clock in the morning, and usually they cost the producer $40,000 or $50,000. Following each performance he would order scenery and costumes representing some such sum cast into the discard.

FANNIE BRICE
courts smiles and tears, as is her way, for "Follies."

Also he would throw out a half dozen or so comedians and others who did not live up to his expectations, and these would rush down to the beach in the early morning hours and tell the ocean about it. Which, as you can readily understand, was wont to make the wild waves wilder. But by the end of the week that particular "Follies" was ready for New York and history.

Comes now the inauguration of a new custom, known as "opening cold" on Broadway. Last Saturday night a new "Follies" revue began at 8:50 and ran until 2:15 Sunday morning. The seats cost $22 each. And most of those in the capacity audience, racially and commercially interested in getting their money's worth, stayed through.

Your correspondent, being a guest, staggered out at 1:30 just after Eddie Cantor, sitting as a spectator in the fifth row, pulled a hammer from his pocket and loosened his seat from its hinges. Two ushers ran down to stop him. "I'm all right," expostulated Eddie; "it's my seat. I paid $22 for it and I'm going to take it home."

It has not been difficult for Mr. Ziegfeld to trim two hours out of his program, because two hours of it were devoted to stupid acts and chorus repetitions. And yet the trimming process is never as easy as it sounds, seeing that no two people are agreed on what to cut. Not even the professional playgoers.

We, for instance, thought a sketch by Frederick Lonsdale in which a bridegroom is confronted with visions of his loveliest mistresses the night before his wedding, and rather sadly put to it to find appropriate words of farewell for them, a clever conceit for the Ziegfeldian type of show. And we found a resurrected George Cohan sketch, "The Farrell Case," pretty dull. But next day we read Prof. Broun and discovered that he didn't care for the mistress review at all and was rather pleased with the Cohan burlesque. So, as you friend says, there you are.

This new "Follies" is, up to now, deadly as to comedy, riotous as to dancing numbers, gorgeous, as usual, in its decorations, and spotted with enough novelties to cause talk. One of these is a "Shadowgraph" sketch, for which red and green paper spectacles are furnished with the programs. Looking through these you bring the performers directly up to you, and the impression is that they are bouncing around on the heads of your seat neighbors. An amusing novelty with great possibilities.

Another is a webbing incident, with eighteen or twenty pink-legged, strong-armed little girls drawing themselves up to the top of the proscenium arch on streamers of webbing, and there doing the usual athletic stunts connected with this form of exercise. They finish by sliding to the ends of their ropes swinging recklessly out over the bald heads. The swinging has been done before, but we never have seen so many good looking youngsters so well trained in aerial gymnastics.

Meet Merton Gill, Acted to the Life

By Sheppard Butler.

NOW and then a part and an actor meet so happily that most of us, without giving any particular thought to the matter, accept the result as a completely authentic portrait. We don't stop to examine or analyze; the impression is spontaneous and direct.

No one, I suppose, who saw Joseph Jefferson in his most famous rôle ever read Washington Irving's "Sketch Book" thereafter without visualizing Rip Van Winkle in terms of the player's mien and mannerisms. Indeed, it is not too difficult to conceive the fantastic idea that Irving, when he wrote, had a prophetic vision of the man who was to act the part.

There was a like inevitability in the way William Gillette's gaunt figure fitted into the character of Sherlock Holmes. Who, in America at least, pictures Sir Arthur's redoubtable detective with any other visage or deportment than those of the lean and mordant Gillette?

Other instances come to mind, but not many of them. These things have little to do with planning or prearrangement. They just happen.

And I rather suspect that, if "Merton of the Movies" lives long enough, one of them will prove to have happened in the case of this young actor named Glenn Hunter. He seems Merton Gill to the life, as the hackneyed saying is. Moving through the lively and variegated scenes at the Blackstone, he conveys not so much the idea that he has built up a characterization as that he is, veritably, the bemused boy Harry Leon Wilson wrote about, wandered by some strange chance from the pages of the book into the surroundings of the play.

GLENN HUNTER
as "Merton of the Movies."
[White Photo.]

The notion might be completely wrecked by observation of the "No. 2 company" which is playing "Merton" somewhere else. Maybe another can impersonate the youthful Mr. Gill as persuasively as Glenn Hunter. But I doubt it. At least, there is the evidence that the same piece with another actor failed in London.

To me, this satisfying discovery that Merton, on the stage, is just what I imagined him to be in the book adds enormously to enjoyment of the comedy Messrs. Kaufman and Connelly have put together. Mostly, if one must see a play made from a novel, it is better not to have read the novel. So often one must readjust one's own ideas to those of the actors, and contentment and illusion are disturbed thereby.

This, Surely, Is the Boy You Know.

Here Merton comes in upon you as a familiar friend. Yessir, that's him all right—Gashwiler's hired boy who clerked around the store and was nice and pleasant to everybody, but wasn't worth the powder to blow him up when he got to reading them movie magazines and taking a mail-order course in acting. He had a cowboy suit in his trunk and a lot of fool notions about practicing tragedy on the store dummies, and finally Gashwiler had to let him go. There he is in the picture on this page, looking stern and noble for the imaginary camera—just a lonely, determined kid, funny, of course, but with something kind of pitiful about him.

He is still the Merton you know when he gets to Hollywood—goodness knows how he got there—and is mixed up in all the preposterous happenings they invented for him. A lively temptation to overacting here, for there is much that

BARKLESS AIREDALES OF HOLLYWOOD BY RICHARD HENRY LITTLE

TOURISTS to Hollywood always want to know what corner they must stand on to see the daily parade of the thousands of beautiful but starving girls who have come out to be stars in the movies but found the million dollar jobs all taken. Seizing a half dozen crusts of bread from the breakfast table, I hurried to the street the first morning I arrived in Hollywood.

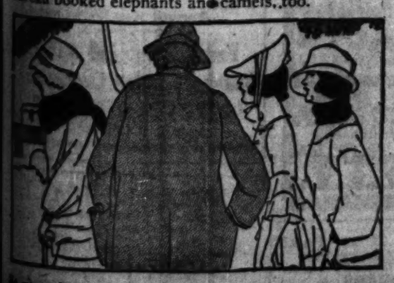

There were many beautiful girls walking briskly along. They were all well fed and well dressed. I would wait until the deluded beauties from Silo Junction, Ind., and Criss Cross, Ga., came by. Then, as the white faced, despairing, movie-mad young women dragged wearily by with smothered sobs, I would step forward, and, registering philanthropy, would say, "Cheer up, girls, here is a crust of bread for six of you, anyhow, and tomorrow I will bring you more crusts, unless Mr. Davis, the genial manager of the Hollywood hotel, watches me too closely."

But though for days I paced up and down the endless streets of Hollywood with the six crusts of bread in my pocket not one starving lady could I find. Finally I journeyed far down to Los Angeles, nine miles away, to consult the service bureau. The service bureau is where the people who want to be in the mobs in moving picture scenes apply for jobs. "Extras," they call 'em in the movies.

There were several hundred people standing or sitting around the service bureau. Most of them had whiskers. A man from one of the studios parked his car in front of the service bureau and hurried inside.

"A dozen Airedales for Warner Brothers, and make it snappy," he said.

I didn't see any Scotch dogs around. But they must be there, because Warner Brothers had sent over there after them. I wondered if the service bureau booked elephants and camels, too.

It was absolutely impossible to find a starving lady.

A man bounced out of the service bureau and ran around in the crowd, picking out a man here and there. He lined up twelve men, all heavily whiskered, at the front door. "Here's yer Airedales," he said. "Wait till I check 'em up."

AH, so a gentleman with a beard was an Airedale in the Hollywood language! I asked a clerk in the service bureau why they called bewhiskered gentlemen Airedales.

"Dinged if I know," he said, "unless it's because when there was such a call for westerns—that is, western pictures—the pictures wanted miners, prospectors, and rough types that didn't have nice, pretty beards like bankers or college profs. They wanted whiskers that bristled, the kind that never had a barber to comb 'em down and trim 'em smooth. They wanted whiskers like the hair on an Airedale, so after a while they just called everybody with whiskers 'Airedales.'"

Airedales are very popular with directors, I found. Directors are fond of what they call "types," and an Airedale is a grand type, while a smooth shaven man is just a singed cat that doesn't stand out in a mob scene. So the Airedales are very popular. There's always a big crowd around the casting director's office of every studio each morning, and most of them sit around there all day, pulling their whiskers to make 'em grow longer.

And especially old Airedales. Directors seem to think that a young Airedale hasn't got enough character. An old Airedale has got lots of character. The directors say so. So every old gentleman in Los Angeles raises whiskers and gets in the Airedale class and he's sure of a job in the movies. As soon as I get a little older I am going to grow wild whiskers on my face and go out to Hollywood and be an Airedale and get seven dollars and a half a day. Smooth faced men in the mobs are often paid only five dollars a day; but let a director lay eyes on a fine, shaggy, romping old Airedale and he'll give him seven dollars and a half every day, and maybe more.

Peter the Hermit is one of the most picturesque Airedales in Hollywood. But do not picture Peter the Hermit residing in some lonely canyon, dark and drear, and far from the maddening haunts of men. They tell you that in Hollywood, but I never walked down Hollywood avenue, elbowing my way sometimes through the crowds, but I would run across Peter the Hermit. Peter has long, rough whiskers and wears a cloak, sandals, no hat, and carries a staff.

You can buy pictures of Peter the Hermit all over Hollywood, and in the picture Peter is standing in front of a deep cavern, apparently ten thousand miles from the marts of trade. The movies often use Peter the Hermit in their pictures. Peter walks on "as is"; he doesn't need any makeup or costuming. But when they want the lonely Peter I think they usually pluck him off a street car or dig him out of the middle of a crowd on Hollywood boulevard. When I first heard of the much revered old hermit I hired a taxi and scoured the canyons all the way to Santa Monica. That's where all reports said I would find him.

Airedales straining at the leash.

"Who you a-lookin' for?" the taxi driver finally asked.

"Peter the Hermit," I said.

"Better wait till night," said the taxi driver; "probably you'll find him down to the dance at the Cocoanut Grove in the Ambassador hotel."

And so another Hollywood illusion was smashed all into little bits.

I GOT out three crusts of bread and sat down in the inner office of the service bureau, facing the window at which the extras apply for jobs. I waited for a beautiful, wan faced girl to stagger up to the window and say, "O, sir, I walked all the way here from Lather Falls, Me., and, although I am strangely beautiful, I cannot get a job in the movies, and, as you see, sir, I have nothing to eat but this stick of rouge and a powder rag."

Then I would throw her a crust of bread and bid her eat and be merry.

The first one up after I took my station and got all ready with the crust of bread was an Airedale. O, very much Airedale! I waited for him to bark. But, speaking growlingly through his whiskers, the Airedale said, "Anything for me today, Harry?"

"Sure," said Harry; "they're doing a western over at Universal. Get out there."

The Airedale disappeared with a howl of joy. Up came another Airedale. He got a job. So did the next Airedale. Four more Airedales, and then appeared a roguish, girlish face.

"Anything doing in the baby vamp line today, Harry?" asked the girlish, roguish lips.

"Gosh almighty!" said Harry. "Where all you baby vamp types been? Hustle over to the Lasky lot."

Three more Airedales and then a stern looking, middle aged woman grabbed the window.

"How is the market on sour-faced females?" she asked.

"No demands right now," said Harry. "Look in tomorrow."

Exit sour-face.

I asked Harry about the beautiful girls who were supposed to be arriving in trainloads from the east every few hours.

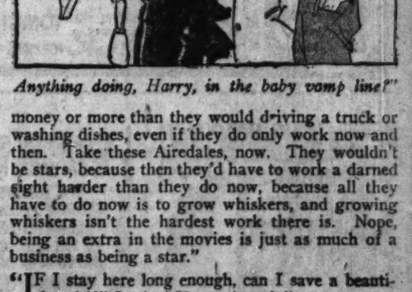

"Apple sauce," said Harry. "But there's enough of 'em, at that—too many. And there's no chance for 'em. There hain't no chance for any more outsiders in the movies. Do you want to know how many people we got down in our books here right now, ready for the word to jump right into a lot and start acting?"

Certainly I wanted to know.

"All right," said Harry; "we got one hundred and twenty-five thousand names on our books. No outsiders have a chance. We demand people who come here now and want to register to show their stills. Yes, sir, they've got to show stills made on a motion picture lot. That is, if they hain't been in the movies they can't get in. Los Angeles is a big town—pretty near a million—and out of that we get all the types we want."

I wanted to know if all the people who worked in the movies as extras had aspirations to become stars.

"O, a few maybe have," said Harry, "but with a lot they just like to be extras. They get as much money or more than they would driving a truck or washing dishes, even if they do only work now and then. Take these Airedales, now. They wouldn't be stars, because then they'd have to work a darned sight harder than they do now, because all they have to do now is to grow whiskers, and growing whiskers isn't the hardest work there is. Nope, being an extra in the movies is just as much of a business as being a star."

Anything doing, Harry, in the baby vamp line?"

"IF I stay here long enough, can I save a beautiful girl?" I asked Harry, hopefully.

"There hain't nothing to save around here but Airedales," said Harry, "and they don't want to be saved. Sometimes a dame comes past that thinks she's got Mary Pickford backed off the map, but when she finds she can't break in she either gets a job being a steno in a real estate office or goes to washing dishes or else she beats it back home. Pretty faces hain't nothing in the pictures—what the directors want are types."

"What kind of a type am I, Harry?" I asked.

"I won't tell you," said Harry; "you'd git sore. But if you'd raise whiskers you'd be a great western. You'd have to train down some—too much stomach. Directors like prospectors and miners and old Injun hunters to be all caved in like an old soldier's grave—hungry looking, you know."

I asked Harry if it took long to pick out the types for a big "mob scene."

"Biggest order we ever had was for twenty-five hundred people," said Harry. "Picked the lot of 'em in two hours and thirty-five minutes by the watch."

Henry talked like a cattle buyer.

"Do you drive 'em over to the lot on the hoof?"

"Nope," said Harry; "we give 'em a ticket to show the gatekeeper. If there's a big bunch for one place the studio that wants 'em generally sends in some busses, and if not they go out on the street cars."

The telephone bell rang.

"Somebody wants a pack of Airedales," I said.

Harry answered the phone and listened. Then he turned around and spoke.

"You win," said Harry.

Meet Merton Gill, Acted to the Life; Theater Brevities

is farcical in these picturesque Hollywood incidents. Screen idols pose as artist, directors bellow and tear their hair; everything is in the mood of travesty, and a little extravagant. But through it all Merton is the same wistful boy, beset with a single grim purpose, and all but destroyed by heartbreak because they didn't take him seriously.

So, an essentially comic adventure is veined with pathos by the consistent fidelity of its central character. Hunter does that, and I say it's fine acting.

I don't know whether it makes any difference that Hunter has actually had some of the experiences he undergoes in the play. But you may be interested in hearing that he has. When he first went to New York he had the movie urge, and he found it hard sledding.

"I spent most of my time," he says, "hanging around the studios at Fort Lee, looking for a job as an extra. I used to haunt the offices until they got tired of seeing me and had to fairly drive me away. I remember how I used to look through the glass doors of the old World Film place while they took pictures in which June Elvidge appeared. I gazed fascinated until a man came out and told me to beat it."

Anyway, he knows how it feels.

Those Inscrutable Press Agents!

One of the minor joys of assembling a theatrical column is that one sees all the press stuff. You know—neatly typewritten matter, ready to go to the printer, helpfully conveying such things as "'The Curse of Fate,' which began its engagement in [illegible] Monday, is a huge success at the theater, where the clever comedy has been playing to capacity audiences nightly since its arrival. (Please fill in the name of your city and local theater.)"

Sometimes a provocative inscrutability creeps in among the mailed sheets, and then it is fun just to sit and ponder. What perverse humor, for example, do you suppose prompted the sending of these two items from the same producer, solemnly folded together in the same envelope?

Follett's Onslaught on Producers of Filth.

"Support clean and intelligent plays. Punish the producers of filth not only by staying away from offensive plays, but by boycotting everything they produce. Teach the men who operate only for profit that clean and thoughtful plays are profitable and that the clean kind are dangerous."

TO PRESENT RISQUE PLAYS

The Selwyns announce that the Grand Guignol players, now appearing in New York, will add to their comedies and plays of horror some that are decidedly risque. The first week's bill of the French company was tempered by modesty in view of the fashionable audience present for the premiere, which included many debutantes.

Or, what obscure impulse, do you imagine, leads the Chicago manager for "Merton of the Movies" to prepare an article at some length setting forth that his is "the only play which has maintained its company unaltered since its first performance almost a year ago?"

"Even the Extras," He Says.

"'Polly Preferred,' he observes tolerantly, "has had a couple of slight shifts, if you want do include the substitution of one bus boy for another in the automat scene. The cast of 'Seventh Heaven' has not remained intact, for Austin Strong, the author, who used to beat a drum in the wings at the climax of the second act, does so no more." But in "Merton," he avers, "even the large crowd of extras has remained unchanged. One of the extras did drop out, through death. But none of the other extras, or principals, has been withdrawn or been replaced."

Perplexity is explicable in this case because of two circumstances.

In the first place, no one has found any particular fault with the "Merton" company at the Blackstone. It is delightful, and needs no defense.

In the second place, it just happens

Or what obscure impulse, do you imagine, leads the Chicago manager for "Merton of the Movies" to prepare an article of some length setting forth that he is "the only play which has maintained its company unaltered since its first performance almost a year ago?"

Perplexity is explicable in this case because of two circumstances.

In the first place, no one has found any particular fault with the "Merton" company at the Blackstone. It is delightful, and needs no defense.

In the second place, it just happens that, not counting extras, whose names are not printed, the Blackstone program reveals at least seven instances in which the personnel of the cast has been changed. Rosenblatt, the director, played in New York by Edwin Maxwell, is now being acted by Albert Cowles. Miss Ellen Southbrook has replaced Miss Gladys Feldman as the picturesque Beulah Baxter. Mrs. Patterson, Merton's landlady in Hollywood, is impersonated now by Miss Peggy O'Day instead of Miss Clara Sidney. And so on. All of which, it may be added, was the first thing commented on the other night by one playgoer who came and told me of having seen "Merton" in New York before seeing it in Chicago.

Why, then, so explicit a managerial bulletin as that quoted above? One can only wonder. Great fellows, these press agents, but sometimes a little baffling.

GOSSIP OF PLAYS AND PLAYERS

Rachel Crothers' comedy of "Mary the Third," long listed as a Chicago prospect, has found definite booking at last. It will follow "You and I" at the Playhouse, arriving there on the night of Sunday, Nov. 18. If, therefore, you have postponed attendance on "You and I," one of the best comedies of recent seasons, you have but three weeks in which to rectify the error. The Crothers play is another of those things which take the years at a bound; it starts in 1870, leaps to 1897, and winds up in 1923, the proceedings involving three Marys of as many generations. Miss Louise Huff acted them all in New York last season; no information is at hand as to who will do it here.

John Westley, usually a good actor, will have the leading rôle in Owen Davis' "Home Fires," when that play comes to the Central Nov. 11 to inaugurate Lester Bryant's new proprietorship of the theater. Others of the cast will be Miss Francis Charwood, Miss Marion Ballou, Miss Charlotte Learn (hitherto known as Chicago's champion understudy), and Theodore Westman Jr.

Joe Laurie of "The Gingham Girl" has been devoting his idle moments to writing a comedy. He calls it "They're Off," and Messrs. Schwab and Kusell, owners of "The Gingham Girl," have promised to produce it next season, probably with Laurie in the leading rôle, which is that of a jockey.

"The Beggar's Opera" will end a run of nearly four years in London next month. This, of course, far exceeds any American theatrical record, but it does not equal the London mark of "Chu Chin Chow," which ran for five years.

Leo Ditrichstein's second attempt with "The Judge of Zalamea"—presented this time in Philadelphia and under the title "Right Is Might"—was no more successful than his first experiment four or five years ago in Chicago. Accordingly the play has been definitely shelved and rehearsals of another piece are under way. The new one is of foreign origin and Gladys Unger has made the adaptation, but beyond this Mr. Ditrichstein has revealed nothing.

Owen Davis' new farce, "The Nervous Wreck," is so well liked in New York that there is thought of organizing a second company to act the piece in Chicago, perhaps with Taylor Holmes as its principal player. Lynne Overman considered undertaking the task for a time, but he now has his promised play by George M. Cohan—"The Dress Suit Man" is the name of it—and will start rehearsing it this week.

Various distinguished outlanders will be in town tomorrow, among them David Belasco, coming for the premiere of the new Barrymore play at Powers', and Sam H. Harris and Irving Berlin, who will superintend the launching of the second "Music Box Revue" at the Colonial. As to the latter entertainment, inquiries at the Colonial box office have indicated that some folks think it the same "Music Box Revue" as that we saw last season. It is not.

By way, perhaps, of comparison with the Kaufman-Connelly version of "Merton of the Movies" at the Blackstone, Prof. S. H. Clark of the University of Chicago will present his own adaptation of the story at the Selwyn this afternoon. The recital is the first of a course of six, to be given on successive Sunday afternoons.

"Follies" Holds First Nighters Till 2 O'Clock in the Morning

songs through the nose a Chicago surgeon of dubious record recently fixed for her. Whatever else he did to it, he did not ruin it for musical purposes. She also does a tragic bit as a fool in motley, which is decidedly good.

The Whiteman orchestra, considerably less funny than its members suspect, is still the best of the harmony bands when it settles to playing the jammed classics of its repertoire, and helped a lot with the tail end of the show.

The best of the others include Brooke Johns, a teethy and amiable enthusiast of the supper clubs; Edna Leedom, a blonde beauty become a vaudeville song reciter, and Bert and Betty Wheeler, messy but amusing comics from the variety. Miss Leedom sings cynically of men and their frayed lines of conversation; of how they are misunderstood by their invalid wives and how unselfish is their interest in the struggling choristers.

"But," say they, "we'll not get married, dear, for awhile. It would kill my poor old mother for me to wed a gentile."

Hap Ward, once of Ward and Vokes, worth several millions but homesick for the stage, is in the cast, and has resurrected one of "Percy and Harold" sketches that used to go so well on the popular priced circuit. It will not go at all with the "Follies" crowd, brought up on Bert Williams and Will Rogers. So Hap will probably be permitted to retire again with his millions.

The new "Follies," taken from end to end, is the usual big and the usual gorgeous exhibit. No one of his rivals can attract, costume, or handle crowds of beautiful girls quite as cleverly as Ziegfeld. But they are gradually making it more and more difficult for him to retain his leadership as a producer of entertainment as well as pictures.

Francine Comes to Town.

You know the sort of kitten heroine Francine Larrimore plays so well—the pink kind that purrs and scratches by turn and is ever so surprised that friendly men—even the rich ones—ever expect anything more from a girl.

She has another such part in a piece called "Nobody's Business," which came to town this week. Again she is from the west, and she comes to New York to make her fight just as a man does.

And from the first she is on her guard against the fellow with the fur coat and the possessive look in his eye. But she gets into a jam just the same, and the rich man, drinking liquor, spends the night in her rooms.

So much is admitted. But before the evening is over it becomes important that the young banker who wants to marry Francine shall know in which of her rooms the rich man stayed.

She tells him the story and he is satisfied. Truth is a lot stranger than Broadway fiction and harder to believe. So at the end of the play, after the lovers have run away to get a license, one character says to another:

"Do you believe that story?"

"Hell, no," says the other.

And, being one of the audience, you can take your choice. Louis Bennison, Josephine Drake, and Frank Conroy are in the cast. Frank Mandel and Guy Bolton wrote "Nobody's Business."

On a Tragic Theme.

We had quite a run of new plays again last week. The best of them is one written on a tragic theme by Maxwell Anderson, grown serious, not to say sad, as an editorial writer on the Morning World, New York.

"White Desert" is the title, suggested by the snow sweep of a North Dakota prairie in mid winter. The Kanes, Mary and Michael, have gone there to take up a homestead. Their nearest neighbors are the Petersons, Sverre and Annie. Thrown together, these four soon find themselves the center of a tense drama. Michael, a little doubtful of Mary, seeing she came to him in their engagement period, grows wildly suspicious and insanely jealous when she and young Peterson seemingly find each other congenial.

His bitterness grows until he openly accuses her of all the lustful things he is thinking of her, naming her names we, being a pure correspondent, cannot print. Then he goes to town and Mary, hot with resentment, determines to be even with him. Whereupon she invites young Peterson to stop awhile, seeing there is a blizzard blowing.

Michael returned, contrite and forgiving, asks Mary's forgiveness for all the things he said. And Mary, nothing if not true to her vow, confesses what she has done. At first Michael believes he has been served right, and is willing to cry quits. But at the first appearance of Peterson he knows he cannot. And Mary knows it. And Peterson knows it. So Mary starts away to live her own life elsewhere when Michael, taunted by Peterson, grabs a shotgun and shoots her dead.

A tense and gripping tragedy, beautifully staged by Brock Pemberton, and acted to the hilt by Beth Merrill, George Abbott, and Frank Shannon.

The New Plays

OPENING TONIGHT.

"Magnolia" [Illinois]—Leo Carillo in Booth Tarkington's comedy of Mississippi in the '60s, originally known as "Cunnel Blake." The company includes Miss Martha-Bryan Allen, Miss Elizabeth Patterson, Miss Helen Flint, J. K. Hutchinson, John Rutherford, and John Nicholson.

OPENING TOMORROW NIGHT.

"Laugh, Clown, Laugh!" [Powers']—Lionel Barrymore in a new play by David Belasco and Tom Cushing, from the Italian of Fausto Martini's "Ridi, Pagliaccio." Miss Irene Fenwick will be in the cast, as will Henry Herbert, Ian Keith, Sidney Toler, and many more.

"The Music Box Revue" [Colonial]—The second of Mr. Irving Berlin's stately pageants of this title, populated by such entertainers as Miss Charlotte Greenwood, Clark and McCullough, the comedians; William Gaxton, Sam Ash, Miss Helen Rich, Miss Ruth Page, Miss Leila Ricard, et al.

IMPENDING JOYS.

"Home Fires" [Central, Nov. 11]—A new comedy of American life, by Owen Davis.

"The Passing Show of 1923" [Apollo, Nov. 11]—Latest of the vivid annuals from the New York Winter Garden.

"Mary the Third" [Playhouse, Nov. 18]—A comedy of three generations by Rachel Crothers.

"Abie's Irish Rose" [Nov. 25, possibly at the La Salle]—Anne Nichols' biracial comedy, whose success here and there about the country is the current wonder of the theater.

A New Tweed Suit for Youngsters
With Separate Waist—Equally Smart With Coat Off or On $10
A new, smart and practical suit for a youngster from 4 to 10 years old is sketched at the left. In it he will be comfortably dressed when he takes his coat off in the house. Coat is tailored like Dad's. Separate sport waists come in various weaves and beautiful shades. Fabrics are all wool tweeds.
Other Suits of Tweed, Velvet, Serge, Corduroy, Pongee, Silk and Linen, $4.95 to $15.
Kiddies' Overcoats
$16.50
A great selection of Juvenile Overcoats of such mannish cut and good tailoring that they present unusual value. Model sketched in center has either raglan or set-in sleeves, comes in rough Tweeds, smooth Cheviots and Cassimeres, in blending overplaids, mixtures and herringbones.
Other Juvenile Overcoats from $15 to $45
The Polo Hat, $3.45
This popular little hat, sketched above, has earlaps that fold up inside or can be removed. Brim also pulls down to keep back of neck warm. In High Pile Plush, $3.45; other materials are less.
Others in High Pile Plush, Velvet, Felt and Beaver Cloth range from 95c to $5.95
Children's Round-Toe Shoes
$4.25
This is a sensible little last for growing feet, sizes 9 to 13½, in black or brown calf with sturdy soles.

enough to make a face at her breakfast.

The supporting cast is well chosen. There is some worth-while photography. The direction is up to the story, which is an adaptation of an old stage melodrama, I believe.

In closing, I don't know what to say. Shall parents be told to see the picture at their peril? Shall children be warned to keep their mothers at home? Shall the parent and teacher associations throughout the country be abjured to tie up the young of the community when the film makes its appearance?

My goodness, I don't know!

See you tomorrow!

KICK KORNER

Its Object—Objection

More Than Kind.

Dear Mae Tinée: Some dumb person recently wrote in condemning your method of criticizing a picture. He complains about your cheery "Good morning" and "See you tomorrow." I suppose he would like to have you open your article with "I think the world is coming to an end today" and close it with "See you at the morgue." There is only one thing I am absolutely certain of in my mind, and that is if you would make a good scrubwoman, that the only thing that mankind could do for you would be to keep your scrub brush.

See you later. L. C.

[Editor's Note: O, o'er your words I sure do gloat. Thanks SO MUCH, L. C., for your note!]

Rises to Protest.

Dear Miss Tinée: Why so unfair to Gloria Swanson? It seems that no matter how Gloria acts or looks, you refuse to give her credit. Take "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," for example. I really enjoyed that picture. It was nothing high brow, of course, but an amusing farce, directed and acted with intelligence. That sort of light diversion is a pleasant relief from so many hair raising thrillers and emotionally exhausting dramas of love and hate.

There were others, too, who did not share your viewpoint. A contemporary critic said it was as good a film as it was a play, and Miss Swanson quite as expert as Ina Claire. A leading movie magazine considered it one of the best six pictures for August, and Gloria's acting one of the best six performances of that month. I have also read favorable comment on this picture in leading papers of other cities.

Credit for this should be given to Miss Swanson, who alone by her efforts raised the film out of the commonplace, handicapped as she was by a thin plot and mediocre support.

I believe every one is entitled to his private opinion, but since the opinion of a critic is not private, all the more

HEROES of the WEEK

General, Prince, and Mayor Attend "Our Pola's" Party

the last weeks while her husband, Wallace MacDonald, has been registering under the Kliegs for "Thy Name Is Woman." Doris telegraphed she was coming home. Husband, all moved up in Spanish costume, rushed to the station to meet her. The tourists were given a first hand glimpse of that awful Hollywood, and Doris says she will never believe romance dies with the tocsin of the Tiajuana blues.

Conrad Nagel, who holds a place right up beside MacDonald for being the most devoted husband in Hollywood, is to build a Spanish style house in Beverly Hills for his family, wife and daughter Ruth.

The magnet shaped lobby of the Egyptian theater was the scene of Sid Grauman's anniversary party. The theater, one of the show places along the boulevard, was a year old. The star guests were Nita Naldi, Pola Negri, Agnes Ayres, Theodore Roberts, Leatrice Joy, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Sigrid Holmquist, Mary Astor, Charles de Roche, Rod La Rocque, Kathlyn Williams, Buck Jones, King Baggot, Irving Cummings, Al St. John, and W. N. Selig. There was dancing in the open lobby, and a 400 pound anniversary cake was featured.

Rupert Hughes, author, director, and genial host, previewed his latest Goldwyn picture, "Law Against Law," at his residence on Western avenue, Los Angeles, before a brilliant gathering. After the picture there was a supper dance.

Members of the cast present were Helen Chadwick, Lew Cody, George Walsh, Carmel Myers, Hedda Hopper, Dale Fuller, Kathleen Key, Rush Hughes, Lucien Littlefield, Marjorie Bonner, Victor Potel, and Pattison Dial.

Others in the large gathering were Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Lehr, June Mathis, Mae Murray, and Robert Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Seastrom, Marshall Neilan, and Blanche Sweet, Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Bosworth, King Vidor, Emmett Flynn, Claire Windsor, Mr. and Mrs. Carey Wilson, Eleanor Boardman, and Joseph Jackson.

Dear Miss Tinée: Some dumb person recently wrote in condemning your method of criticizing a picture. He complains about your cheery "Good morning" and "See you tomorrow." I suppose he would like to have you open your article with "I think the world is coming to an end today" and close it with "See you at the morgue." There is only one thing I am absolutely certain of in my mind, and that is if you would make a good scrubwoman, that the only thing that Standard could do for you would be to keep your scrub brush.

See you later. L. C.

[Editor's Note: O, o'er your words I am so gloat. Thanks SO MUCH, L. C., for your note!]

Time to Protest.

Dear Miss Tinée: Why so unfair to Gloria Swanson? It seems that no matter how Gloria acts or looks, you refuse to give her credit. Take "Blue-beard's Eighth Wife," for example. I really enjoyed that picture. It was rather high brow, of course, but an amusing farce, directed and acted with finesse. That sort of light diversion is a pleasant relief from so many nerve-racking thrillers and emotionally straining dramas of love and hate.

There were others, too, who did not share your viewpoint. A contemporary critic said it was as good as film as it was a play, and Miss Swanson quite an expert as Ina Claire. A leading film magazine considered it one of the best six pictures for August, and Gloria's acting one of the best six performances of that month. I have also had favorable comment on this picture in leading papers of other cities. Credit for this should be given to Miss Swanson, who alone by her efforts kept the film out of the commonplace, handicapped as she was by a poor plot and mediocre support.

I believe every one is entitled to his private opinion, but since the opinion of a critic is not private, all the more reason why it should be fair, impersonal, and unprejudiced.

Please, Mae, try not to let your personal prejudice influence your write-ups so much.

E. W.

[Editor's Note: You ought to read me oftener. There are times when I'm quite fond of your favorite.]

An Eye for Flaws.

Dear Miss Tinée: I feel I must give voice to my reaction to "The Midnight Alarm." First, when the building was burning, a man appeared on the roof and the fire captain on the street motioned emphatically to him to jump. He did, and of course was killed on the cement below. Later on in rescuing others, a net was held below. Why wasn't the net used for the other man?

Also in the first part of the picture—the scene was laid about twenty years back, yet they raced along in autos of the newest models. The autos of twenty years back were not imposing affairs.

When the girl was locked in the vault for, at most, an hour or two, she was suffocating to death, although a person can live in a vault for about twenty hours. Then when they opened the vault door, she revived immediately in the smoky air, with which the room was filled.

Also it is evident that the scene was laid in Los Angeles, and the orphan girl longs for the sight of a blade of grass. There are several blades of grass in Los Angeles. I know, for I've seen them.

The only one who played her part well was Alice Calhoun, who is sincere—no, not the only one, as the one who took the part of Chaser also was good.

Not having seen the original "Spoilers," I cannot compare them, but while I think the recent one good, I think it started out too wild. One who had not read the book would not know that the boatload of people—which boat was loaded "to the roof" practically, were people so anxious to get to Alaska that each of them would almost commit murder at the prospect of delay. Also why did Cherry Malotte wear the latest style gowns when the scene was laid some twenty-five years ago?

This is my first kick, but I felt that these errors were too flagrant to pass without protst.

FALLING HAIR

DANDRUFF, itching scalp and falling hair are signs of an unhealthy scalp. Sergeant's Mange Medicine makes the scalp healthy. Then it will grow healthy, luxuriant hair. Sergeant's is a real scalp medicine—standard for 50 years. Nothing else approaches Sergeant's for actual results. Its sulphuretted pine and other natural oils kill dandruff germs and fertilize the hair roots, stop falling hair and cause the hair to grow thick and fast all over the head. Results are almost immediate. Barbers apply Sergeant's. A large bottle is only 65 cents at drug stores and toilet counters.

The Devoe Margin of Supremacy

"It's Better to Paint than Replace"
—says Father Time

ONE of the greatest economies revealed to mankind by Father Time is the inexpensive use of Paint and Varnish Products to avoid costly replacements in and about the home.

The thin film of paint or varnish that adds so much to the beauty of your possessions is an absolute safeguard against the deadly, destructive effects of wear and rot.

When you apply Paint or Varnish Products—use Devoe—thus securing all the protection you can get from any other product—plus the economy of extra covering capacity and extreme durability.

Ask for the Devoe Agent and you'll find the Devoe Margin of Supremacy.

The P. N. Practical Front Corsets. They Are Different

Third Floor—Dearborn Street.

Ideal corseting displays the best lines of the figure while masking faulty points of contour; but always there must be the look of naturalness; the impression and effect of personal comeliness, independent of artifice.

Are Yours the Lines of Youthful Flexibility? How Young Will You Look at 40?

Think about this fact today; give your figure a few moments of sincere looking-glass study; note where it already conforms with today's youthful style silhouette and where it needs a little intelligent control. The hips? Do they need some persuasive "modeling"? The back? Does it need more erect "poising"? —then consult our trained corsetieres; whose time and helpfulness are at your disposal to assist you and fit you correctly to the individual model your figure requires; no charge for fittings.

P. N. Practical Front Corset, Style 8466. Ease abides in the inner elastic vest, which holds the front steels right at the center of the body and permits no riding up; strange, you say, that the invaluable charm of the girlish look should so easily be found for you—but true; featured in a beautiful silk brocade material; flesh color; very low topped; wide graduated front clasp; beautiful straight back; sizes to 36 at..... $12

Wagnerian Singers Are Here with Busy Season of Opera

American people. He and his band form what is perhaps the most nearly institutional of our methods, formal or informal, of musical propaganda; for he manages to get about more than anybody else with something musical to say, and goes to many places where the only professional playing heard.

"... persons who think of music only in terms of "uplift" have stared blankly, incredulously, even protestingly, at the writer when he has spoken in this vein about John Philip Sousa. Their attitude is that a man whose tunes can be picked up and whistled after a hearing or two is hardly to be classed among the musicians. About all the explanation worth giving is that there are countless musicians who have never recorded a tune that might be picked up and whistled.

Sousa has a vast body of other men's music at his ready command. As is known, he has edited many of the great symphonic works to the purposes of his band. Operatic Wheels Revolve.

That the operatic machinery at the Auditorium has been set in motion for a new series of activities is evidenced by several seasonal phenomena. For one, there has been a tremendous migration of songbirds headed hitherward during the last week. For another the press department relays its directive for the opening performance and several more.

On Thursday night, Nov. 8, the curtain will rise on Moussorgsky's great work, "Boris Godunoff," the first time this company has ever presented it, with Feodor Challapin in the name part. When Challapin sings in an opera, his aura is quite likely to blot out those of the other singers, and as a matter of fact there are so many roles in "Boris Godunoff" that none can take the commanding position of his. Still, one finds the names of Forrest Lamont, Cyrena Van Gordon, Virgilio Lazzari, Edouard Cotreuil, Margery Maxwell, Mary Fabian, José Mojica, Maria Claessens, Desiré Defrere, and many more, twenty-one in all. The conductor will be Giorgio Polacco.

The theater will remain dark until Saturday afternoon, when Fernand Anseau, the new Belgian tenor, will make his American debut in the first part of the title rôle of Saint-Saëns' "Samson and Delilah," and Louise Homer will return for the second section of the same. Cesare Formichi will sing the part of the high priest, and the baton will be in the hands of Ettore Panizza. Saturday night is set aside for "Lucia di Lammermoor," with another returning singer, Florence Macbeth, as Lucia, and Giullo Crimi and Giacome Rimini as the prominent men.

There will be a Sunday matinée, but it is not yet announced. "Faust" is up for Monday night with Mr. Anseau as Faust, Edith Mason as Marguerite, Georges Baklanoff as Mephistopheles, and Mr. Polacco conducting. "The Jewess" is due on Tuesday, with Charles Marshall, Rosa Raisa, Angelo Minghetti, Miss Macbeth, and Mr. Polacco as conductor. Mr. Challapin will put on the vestments of Mefistofele in Boito's opera of the same name on Wednesday, with Mr. Crimi, Miss Mason, and Miss Van Gordon as some of his associates, and Mr. Polacco at the baton.

And Their Cost.

That the chief cost of giving opera does not lie in the salaries paid its principal singers is one of the interesting deductions from a chart issued by the Chicago Civic Opera company. At least two other items are nearly as high. Figuring last season's costs to a fractional percentage, it is seen that artists' fees ran to 21.96 per cent of the total, and that second place is tied between the cost of orchestra, musical staff, chorus, ballet, and stage force, and—an item seldom considered in this connection—rent of theater, warehousing, and transfer expense. For each it is 20.28 per cent. The company explains that it owns neither the Auditorium theater nor its warehouse, but leases them, and hence this item of cost is high.

The next largest item concerns repairs to scenery and costumes, and amounts to 15.68 per cent. Publicity and administration claims 9.28 per cent, rehearsals 7.35 per cent, and the miscellaneous expenses were 5.32 per cent.

The summary is interesting from many points of view. For every dollar taken in at the box office last season, $1.547 was spent. Deficits, it would seem, are still necessary, though they do not arise from what most people think are the real causes.

Florida West Coast invites you.

When the ice king holds sway in the North, the Florida fisherman is in his paradise.

Fishing is just one of many attractions found on Florida's West Coast. Sporty golf courses; wide, sandy, palm-bordered beaches; big league pre-season baseball games, canoeing, yachting, tennis, roque, croquet, bowling-on-green, band concerts in beautiful parks, excursion trips on water; long summer drives on velvety roads through orange and grapefruit groves laden with ripened fruit and fragrant bloom, all combine to put joy in living.

Fruit growing, truck farming, commercial and investment opportunities are afforded more abundantly on Florida's West Coast than elsewhere. Recreation, rest and attractive business chances abound on every side in this fast growing, year-round section. The West Coast has fast train service, with through Pullmans, over two railway systems, direct from all northern transportation centers. Any of these organizations will help you plan a never-to-be-forgotten winter in Florida. Write

Burn Smoke and Gases and Save ⅓ to ½ in Fuel

COLES Hot Blast Heater

You need spend only ½ to ⅔ as much for fuel, yet have greater heating comfort and a cleaner home, with this wonderful stove. It burns the gases and smoke which other stoves waste up the chimney and which mean a waste of about 60 cents on every dollar spent for fuel. Cole's Hot Blast mixes superheated air with the gases and smoke and drives them back upon the fire, where they are consumed.

This Saving Guaranteed

Read this binding guarantee of the manufacturers:

When our stoves are operated according to our directions and connected to a good flue, we guarantee:

A saving of ⅓ in fuel over any lower draft stove of the same size; with soft coal, slack or lignite;

Cole's Hot Blast or Cole's Radiant to use less hard coal or coke for heating a given space than any base burner made with same size fire pot;

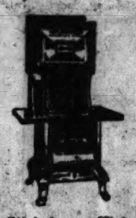

That the rooms can be heated from one to two hours each morning with fuel put in the stove the evening before;

That the stove will hold fire with hard or soft coal from Saturday night until Monday morning;

A uniform heat, day and night, with soft coal, hard coal, lignite or crushed coke;

Every stove to remain absolutely airtight as long as used; the feed door to be smoke and dust proof;

The anti-puffing draft to prevent puffing.

Cole's famous High Oven Range is one of the most popular ranges ever built. It gives you this same saving of ⅓ to ½ in fuel. Also made in gas-coal combination.

Cole's Cabinet Gas Ranges are famous for their perfect baking and cooking, with wonderful gas economy.

With this guaranteed saving and all these important advantages, can you afford to buy any other stove? Go to the nearest dealer listed below. He will be glad to show you Cole's Hot Blast Stoves, Ranges or Furnaces.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Public Invited to Federation's All Day Meeting

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

TOMORROW will be an all day union meeting of the fifteen ministerial bodies which compose the Chicago Church federation. Beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning a conference on the "Church, the Newspaper, and the Community" will be held. Active newspaper writers and editors on various Chicago papers and several pastors representing different denominations will speak. From 12:15 to 2 o'clock the Church federation will hold its annual meeting and luncheon.

At 2:15 the church and newspaper program will be resumed and continued until 5 o'clock. There is no registration fee required and all laymen as well as ministers, men and women, are invited. The meetings and the luncheon will be held at the Hotel La Salle.

The ministers who will speak are the Rev. William Chalmers Covert, the Rev. Ernest Bourner Allen, the Rev. Simon Peter Long, and the Rev. Frank D. Sheets. W. Frank McClure ... represent the Chicago Association of Commerce. Col. R. R. McCormick, George C. Bastian, and Mrs. Louise James Bargelt will represent THE TRIBUNE.

THE REV. MILTON M. McGORRILL.

The Rev. Milton M. McGorrill, the new pastor of the Normal Park Baptist church, comes to Chicago with a special record of leadership among young people. He was vice president of the Baptist Young People's Union of America, two years director of young people's work in the Baptist northern convention, and chairman of the committee which launched the first young people's program for all young people's organizations in the history of the convention. He was refused ordination by the Baptist temple, Brooklyn, N. Y., where he had been minister of education and associate pastor one year, because he would not give an unqualified statement of belief in the virgin birth of Christ. Later, on Sept. 17 last, he was ordained in the Central Square Baptist church, Portland, Me., and accepted the call to Normal Park church. Mr. McGorrill is a graduate of Bowdoin college, Maine, and did post-graduate work in Columbia university and Union Theological seminary, New York. The Rev. W. H. Jones, until recently pastor of the North Shore Baptist church, Chicago, gave the charge to the candidate on the occasion of his ordination in Portland.

Lutheran churches will observe today as Reformation Sunday. It is one of the most widely observed Lutheran anniversaries.

Dr. Thomas Nightingale of London, general secretary of the National Council of the Evangelical Free Churches of England, will speak at the Sunday Evening club tonight. His subject, "Christianity and the Modern Challenge," has a bearing on his observations since his appointment in 1920 to the office which has brought him in close touch with present day problems of the churches.

Dr. Nightingale will also speak at the annual meeting of the Chicago Church federation at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow at the Hotel Morrison.

The Chicago conference of the Illinois synod of the Lutheran church will meet at Elgin tomorrow and Tuesday.

Channing Pollock, author of "The Fool," will speak this evening in the First Presbyterian church of South Chicago, 91st street and Exchange avenue, the Rev. G. C. Whimsett, pastor, concerning ideals of the theater.

The young people of the Millard Avenue Congregational church will give a musical play, "The Jayville Convention," on Friday evening in the Lawndale Masonic temple for the benefit of the church building fund. The Rev. James Watson is pastor of the church.

The fiftieth anniversary celebration of the Jackson Boulevard Christian church will close today. Beginning this evening special evangelistic services will be held. The Fife brothers will assist the pastor, the Rev. Charles R. Oakley.

Read what these leaders of thought say about

The Freeman

Zona Gale:
"The Freeman, a great paper and a great work."

Havelock Ellis:
"I always enjoy reading the Freeman. America is to be congratulated on the production of a paper which maintains so high a level alike in thought and expression."

Senator Borah:
"Will you kindly put me upon your mailing list, for which I enclose check? I congratulate you upon the splendid publication you are putting out."

Henry Seidel Canby:
"A weekly which apparently specializes in good English, since one can read it with a sense of pleasure as of a walker on a mountain who finds a path."

Jerome K. Jerome:
"What warms my heart toward the Freeman is the fight it is putting up for freedom of thought and speech."

G. Lowes Dickinson:
"I have enjoyed reading the paper which I think perhaps the best written of all weeklies, and certainly not the least intelligent."

George Santayana:
"Far as I am from sharing its political faith, I find the Freeman far better written than anything I saw in my day; there is a consciousness in it of the world at large, and of the intellectual landscape, things I used to miss in America altogether."

Israel Zangwill:
"I feel bound to tell you, that though I have only seen one number, the Freeman has already excited my enthusiasm."

C. Lewis Hind:
"I have no hesitation in saying that it is one of the best written weeklies that I read."

N. Y. Times Book Review:
"The Freeman is a weekly that is always well written, and, whether or not one agrees with its conclusions on many questions, one cannot but respect and admire the manifestations of literary ability that lift it so far above the dull level of heavy political conjecture. Its book reviews are always scholarly pieces of work, . . . it is seldom that at least one of its special articles is not of more than ordinary interest."

Wherever English is read the Freeman is admired.

Thousands of men and women who have time for only one magazine that represents the living world of culture choose the Freeman.

The Freeman is read and quoted the world over.

New Town and Country Receiver

By Dr. Fulton Cutting and Mr. Bowden Washington

For more than 10 years Dr. Fulton Cutting and Mr. Bowden Washington have been designing the highest type of professional radio equipment — U. S. Naval Apparatus, Radio for the U. S. Merchant Marine, U. S. and foreign land stations. And now, they have turned their attention to Radio for the Home—you can own a genuine C & W Receiver—know the simplicity, ease of operation, sharp selectivity and clear reception that characterize the best professional equipment.

At last, a successful all-purpose receiver. Out of the years of experience of Dr. Cutting and Mr. Washington has come this "Town and Country" model—a portable that you can carry with you when and where you wish—yet possessing every feature of C & W excellence as a radio set for your home.

In your home, without the carrying handle, "Town and Country" is a handsome 2-tube, double circuit cabinet set, highly selective, range up to 1200 miles, capable of operating a loud speaker for local or near-by stations.

and then, at a turn of the switch—

it becomes a 2-tube, single circuit portable set—ready to operate on any sort of temporary antennae—a wire around the top of your car—stretched along a tent top—or across the room in the home of a friend.

It's the complete all-purpose set—no compromise. Self contained—uses dry batteries and they're in the cabinet. LARGE dry batteries that last. It's complete with Brandes Head-set—ready for antennae and ground wires when you get it—ready to give you "what's in the air." Price, $97.50. See it at one of our dealers listed below—or write for literature.

V. Blasco Ibañez
makes his Dream come true
A Cruise round the World

From a recent unsolicited interview with the great novelist at his famous Menton-Garavan Villa, France, published in L'Intransigeant, Sept. 15th.

When asked if his November trip around the world would be a lecture tour, Ibañez replied characteristically:

"No, no, no! It is simply the great pleasure of which I have dreamed for a long time, the crowning event of my career, and for which I am at last able to pay. It is this AMERICAN EXPRESS tour of the world which will be made on a splendid steamer leaving New York with a group of exclusive passengers.

"The cruise will last four and a half months.

"We will cross the Pacific to Japan. There they will give me a reception. My works are being translated into Japanese. China has an immense future. We will visit Pekin, the Desert of Gobi, and then Burmah, the Indies and Ceylon. I shall disembark at Khartoum, where I shall descend the Nile to the Mediterranean, and there re-embark. And notice the end of the voyage . . . ."

His hand pointed to the great blue "Mare Nostrum" which one sees through the trees in the garden and through the alles ornamented with Spanish pottery.

"The last stop arranged in Europe for my tour of the world is at Monte Carlo. I shall get off then—not two steps distance from here, as though from my own yacht, and leave the others to pursue their journey toward New York."

In less than a month, this marvelous cruise under the experienced management of the American Express Travel Dept. will leave New York on the S. S. Franconia.

133 glorious days covering 30,000 wonder miles on land and sea; varied, novel, meeting strange peoples face to face in strange lands; visiting shrines of history, romance and story. It is all so full of exotic charm that it will remain with you always as a dream come true—a dream changed into the one memorable experience of a lifetime.

Itinerary includes—Havana, Panama Canal, San Francisco, Hilo, Honolulu, Japan (13 days—Yokohama, Kamakura, Tokyo, Kobe, Kyoto, Nikko, Inland Sea, Miyajima), Shanghai, Hongkong, Manila, Batavia, Singapore, Rangoon, Calcutta, Colombo, Bombay, Port Tewfik, Cairo, Naples, Monaco, Gibraltar—and home. Carefully planned shore excursions from all ports of call included in cost. Special inland trips optional.

It is not yet too late. The Franconia is the newest of the Cunard Fleet—a magnificent ship, safe and speedy, with all the luxuries of an exclusive club and built especially for long distance cruising. Only the fact that it has an exceptionally large proportion of choice accommodations, enables us, at this late date, to offer a limited number of most desirable state rooms with private bath. These rooms will be allotted in the order of application.

B32; B42	double rooms	$4,400 ($2,200 per person)
B14	double room	3,400 (1,700 per person)
B28	double room	3,400 (1,700 per person)

a few moderately priced reservations are also available

If for business or other reasons, the sailing date from New York, Nov. 15th, is a little too close for you, remember that the sailing date from San Francisco is not until Dec. 4th.

Eleven Men Say:

"A WORLD CRUISE is a 'man's job' and you did it extremely well."

"WE HAVE EATEN at first class hotels all along the way and we are always glad to get back to the boat, as the food is better than at the hotels."

"TOO MUCH CANNOT be said regarding the good time Raymond & Whitcomb have given us on every day during this splendid trip."

"THE BOAT, ITS CAPTAIN, the cuisine and service more than filled our expectations."

"IT IS A PLEASURE to be on a cruise when one hears only words of commendation."

"I CONGRATULATE YOU on the re-charter of the 'Resolute.' I have been on many trips . . . the 'Resolute' is the best equipped for cruising of any ship I have ever been on."

"WE HAVE AN ABUNDANCE of room. We are not stepping on each others' toes on this vessel."

"I HAVE NEVER SEEN anything done on so lavish a scale and I speak from experience after twenty years' work in trying to please the traveling public."

"THE PLEASURES I received will live in my memory forever."

"THE FOOD on the 'Resolute' was perfect in every detail."

"IT WAS SOON evident that there was a master mind working out all details."

These quotations are from voluntary letters from our 1923 cruise-passengers on the sister-ships—"Resolute" and "Reliance."

All Outdoors invites you to San Antonio

Picture the delights of life in a favored clime, where Winter means playtime; where Nature has lavished her gifts that you might make the most of them. This is San Antonio!

Do you yearn to golf over velvety courses; match your skill against fighting black bass; tramp the hills for deer, wild turkey and other game; swim in crystal pools, motor over paved roads to mountains or sea; play tennis and polo; pitch horseshoes or engage in any other outdoor recreation?

Then come to San Antonio. All Outdoors bids you welcome! Bask in the sunshine. Breathe the perfume of roses in parks and plazas. Visit the Alamo and missions. Inspect the nation's largest military establishment. Explore winding streets of the quaint Mexican quarter.

You will find every day in San Antonio crowded with new interest and pleasure.

Medina Lake, only a few miles away, offers the finest black bass fishing in America. There are comfortable lodge and hotel accommodations for sportsman and vacationist.

Then back again along a paved scenic drive to San Antonio, a city of more than 200,000 hospitable people—famous for its healthful climate, pure artesian water, unexcelled hotels, good schools and many churches.

Time—the Chicago Business Man's Problem

You can depend upon the Willys-Knight all the time—

YOU HEAR wonderful things about Willys-Knight reliability and economy everywhere. You hear of owners driving 50,000 miles and more without having a tool touched to the Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine. It is true.

You hear owners say that the Willys-Knight engine is even quieter and smoother at fifteen and twenty thousand miles than when new. It is true. You hear that carbon only makes the Willys-Knight better. It is true.

You hear owners say, "I could step into my Willys-Knight any morning and start across the continent, KNOWING that I would get to the coast without trouble." That also is absolutely true.

Give your Willys-Knight its modicum of gasoline, water and oil and rest easy in your travels. It rolls off the miles with no more fuss or flurry than a jeweled timepiece quietly ticking off the minutes and hours. The ENGINE ACTUALLY IMPROVES WITH USE! There are no valves to grind. In all the years Willys-Knight engines have been built, not one has been known to wear out.

Beauty and luxury also weigh heavily in the scale of Willys-Knight greater value. Pictured above is the 5-passenger Willys-Knight Coupe-Sedan, an original creation that gives you the combined benefits and conveniences of a sedan and a coupe. Doors both FRONT AND REAR give easy access to the roomy, rich comfort inside without crawling over tilted seats or other occupants.

This and the other Willys-Knight models, and all the big-powered, economical Overland models, are putting more go in Chicago. These cars are sold and served in every neighborhood in Chicago. Go to the nearest showroom. You will find friendly folks there, and see an array of fine cars built to your fancy, need and price—cars that outshine, outrun and outvalue anything on four wheels at the price.

P.S. The Rent-A-Car Company, 1426 So. Michigan Avenue, has just added six more Willys-Knight Sedans to its fleet of twenty. People do like to drive Willys-Knights!

Overland Models: Chassis $395, Touring $495, Roadster $495, Red Bird $695, Champion $695, Coupe $750, Sedan $795. Willys-Knight Models: 5-pass. Touring $1175, 2-pass. Roadster $1175, 5-pass. NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Earnest as Well as Gay Days on Social Calendar

By Mme. X

LET no one think that the opening of another social season means merely the setting in of festivities, the beginning of balls, dinners, theater parties, luncheons, teas, and so forth. If it were anything so simple and candid it would be an easy matter to prepare wardrobes, houses, and the rest of the social machinery.

Inextricably mixed in with the gayeties and amusements are many other elements, such as charities, art, music, and the rest of the innumerable pursuits that make for culture and philanthropy. The stored up energy of a long and wholesome summer is being made manifest by the daily mail which loads the postman's knapsack down with invitations, not only for social affairs, but also for lectures, charitable entertainments, musical events, club meetings, and all the other devices for using time with so-called profit.

Nor should politics be omitted from this roundup of the activities of the socially important. Ever since the passage of the nineteenth amendment up to now somewhat overshadowed by its immediate predecessor, the eighteenth) women have been taking an increasingly active part in the machinery by which we elect our officers, national, state, and municipal. So eminent an authority as ex-Senator Lawrence Young Sherman said recently to Mrs. Silas Strawn, head of the local women's Republican committee, that today the women of the country held the balance of power in their hands; that if any party, or any official, or any political group incurred the disapprobation of the general public it was the women who were the chief road of escape from intolerable rule or from bad conditions brought about by dishonest government. In other words, he "passed the buck to us."

Urging Women to Vote.

Some few farseeing women have recognized this fact and have been calling upon their fellow women to realize their new responsibilities and to come forth from the pleasant obscurity of their homes and enter into their heritage of political power, a call that the majority treat much as social calls are answered by men. When we are told by political statisticians that only 52 per cent of the possible voters, that is of men and women who have the right to vote, cast ballots in the last presidential election we get a realizing sense of the lack of appreciation on the part of a formidably large part of the population of their privileges and responsibilities. It is with this knowledge to inspire them that a small body of women has been at work in all parts of the country for the last few years organizing women into efficient units under the banners of the two principal political parties which are the machinery through which our representative government functions. In Pennsylvania, under the energetic and able leadership of Mrs. Barclay Warburton, the women of the Republican party secured the nomination and election of the present governor of the state, Gifford Pinchot. The story of how they accomplished their end is one of the most entertaining of the many annals of politics. That they did it in one of the most politically speaking, "hard-boiled", and conservative of our forty-eight states only shows what can be done in any or all of the others if need arise.

Political Club Idea Liked.

Psychology is an increasingly important factor in success today. It inspired the small but ardent body of women political organizers, who had been meeting but indifferent success in their work of teaching women the importance of joining either one or the other of the political parties, to suggest that the women form political clubs. For over half a century women have been working through club organizations and are familiar with the name and the process. The idea made a hit, and now all over the land political clubs are springing up. Here in Chicago the Woman's Roosevelt Republican club has been growing in grace and power for the last two years. It is uniting with the state and county women's Republican clubs in making the issue in the coming election the business of getting an honest and efficient government.

As part of the two day convention of the state Republican women, the Chicago organization is giving a banquet next Thursday evening at the Congress hotel in the historic gold ballroom, when the guests of honor will be Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, sister of the late Col. Theodore Roosevelt, and Senator George Wharton Pepper. The latter is a comparatively recent acquisition to the senate from the Keystone state. He belongs to an old Philadelphia family (and to be of an old family in the city of brotherly love is to be an American aristocrat of the first water). He is a lawyer of note and already has made his mark in the senate. It is the first time he has accepted an invitation to anything in the nature of a public function in Chicago, so the women naturally feel quite triumphant to have secured him for what is to be their most important gathering so far.

Over a thousand guests are expected on this occasion which promises to be a really brilliant affair, and most of the prominent women from the state association of Republican women will be there. Mrs. Walter Brewster is chairman of the committee on arrangements, and helping her are Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mrs. Robert Greaves McGann, and Mrs. Joseph Griswold Coleman.

The state association of republican women's clubs has taken a whole floor in that attractive and unique three story building just south of the Boulevard Link bridge on the east side of Michigan avenue, whose top floor houses one of Chicago's most conspicuous bachelors, Frederic McLaughlin, while its ground floor offers cash registers to an eager world. Here both the state association and the women's Roosevelt club are domiciled in club headquarters furnished attractively by Mrs. Joseph Cudahy and offered to Republican women from all over the state. There is a dining room and kitchen in the club as well as a comfortable lounge and pleasant committee rooms. By the way, Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns, who is president of the Woman's Roosevelt Republican club, will preside at the Thursday evening dinner, and will introduce the speakers. Both men and women are invited to this affair, which promises to be a great occasion.

Twelve Charities Under One Roof.

Tomorrow afternoon, almost across the street from this political headquarters, the house warming of "The Twelve Social Agencies," who have combined and taken unto themselves an abode in the Keehn building at 308 North Michigan avenue, will be held from 4 to 6 o'clock, when the world is invited to dedicate the building "to the spirit of friendly service." The twelve philanthropies which will be housed there are the Chicago Association for the Prevention and Relief of Heart Disease, the Chicago Council of Social Agencies, the Glenwood Manual Training school, the Illinois Home and Aid society, the Illinois League of Women Voters, the Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene, the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness, the Infant Welfare society, the Joint Service bureau, the Religious Education association, the United Charities of Chicago, and the Chicago office of the National Board of the Young Women's Christian association, certainly a varied collection of enterprises to help mankind.

The hospitality committee, of which Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy is chairman, includes the Mesdames Boerne Bettman, James L. Houghteling, W. A. Locy, William S. Monroe, Clair Moore, Herbert F. Perkins, William P. Sidley, Theodore G. Soares, Stanley M. Wiley, and Morris Wolf.

Similar unions under one roof of various welfare societies are to be found in the United Charities building at 105 East 22d street, New York, in St. Paul in the Amherst building, and in Harrisburg, Pa., Boston, Philadelphia, Louisville, and Cleveland. Coördination and, as far as possible, coöperation among charitable undertakings is as necessary and valuable as in any other big business. This community building is a step towards a more complete and unified organization of all the philanthropical enterprises in Chicago, and as such should have the interest and support of the public spirited and far-seeing citizen.

Popular With High and Low.

Besides these more or less civic gatherings that will draw society folk, some from their bridge and mah jongg, and some from their offices and the marts of trade, there is the forty-fifth annual reception at the Art institute next Thursday afternoon from 3 o'clock to half past 5, when the thirty-sixth annual exhibition of American paintings and sculpture will be opened. I know of no other art gallery that is so much frequented and so popular with high and low, rich and poor, learned and ignorant, as our Art institute. It has from the beginning been one of the principal ideas of its promoters to make of it a sort of people's palace, a place where the citizens of Chicago would feel welcome and at home. The result is that the statistics as to attendance day in and day out outdistance those of similar institutions. I haven't them at hand, so dare not make a guess at them, but know that they are of an exhilerating nature and one to make Chicagoltes proud of their big art gallery.

Foreigners who have been haunting this part of the globe of late years generally say that this country is the hope of art, that Europe is exhausted and not likely to produce anything for many decades to come. It is al-

THE ANNUAL SALE of STEVENS COATS

Why You Will Want to Buy Your Winter Coat at Stevens

Style reputation is based upon something more than a fleeting mode of the moment. Stevens name as a style leader is based upon a fine quality that never varies, an absolute devotion to correctness and value that is always evident—three important principles.

And, on account of these, Stevens is one of the best known specialty shops in America. The undeniable quality of their wraps, the quick knowledge of what discerning women demand, has given us an enviable reputation. We have wraps which sell as high as $650, but we also have coats at $65, $95, $125 and $150, as fine and smart coats as it is possible to find after intensive shopping—the sort of styles and fabrics that it is most difficult to secure. While at $150 to $375 you will find handsome wraps, whose style and quality are unequaled. Stevens coats will always appeal to the woman who considers merchandise from the standpoint of good quality and good style.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

most as if they handed the torch to us and asked us to keep it alight.

Apropos of matters artistic, Abram Poole, who recently spent several weeks with his sister, Mrs. Leverett Thompson, at her summer home in Lake Forest, has returned to New York. While he was here he painted two or three portraits. One of them was a portrait of Mrs. E. W. Everett of 2122 Lincoln Park west, while another was a portrait of one of the children of his brother, Ralph Poole. Much of Abram Poole's work lies along a line that this writer has for some years held to be the coming form of art—that is, mural work in homes and public buildings. Framed paintings are difficult to hang in many of the modern houses, dwellings which are built either in the French, Italian, or English style, as paneled walls, or walls covered with tapestries do not admit of them. Therefore, except for portraits which can be set in the woodwork of the walls, and an occasional canvas which can be handled in the same way, there is, outside of picture galleries, little opportunity for such works of art in a residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Bartlett, who spent some weeks at their artistic lodge in the groves bordering that little known body of water called variously Lake Como or Mud lake, near Geneva, Wis., have gone to New York. They will ultimately land in their extremely attractive new house in Florida, south of Miami, where they usually spend their winters with Mrs. Bartlett's father, Hugh T. Birch.

Their many friends hereabouts will be interested to know that the Bartletts are planning to spend next summer in their Geneva house. Much of Mr. Bartlett's time during his recent sojourn in Europe was spent in Paris collecting examples of the latest productions of the most ultra modern artists. He spent not only time but money, and brought back with him a startling and interesting little collection of these. Matisse, Van Gogh, Picasso, and various others whose names I don't know, were represented in this gathering, which found room on the hospitable walls of the Art institute for a short time.

Opera Opens Nov. 3.

The opening of our Civic opera on Nov. 3 is awaited with more than usual interest. The new artists, the new operas, the new scenery, and all the other promised attractions await the verdict of the public. It is a strange thing that the judgment of the illiterate, uneducated public is so important and so final. Men who have made it their study for a lifetime are not as able to judge of the merits of a play or opera as well as the first three rows of dull looking folk who attend the opening performance of a new piece. Sometimes this first night judgment is reversed, but not often.

For many years the box selling committee of the Friends of Opera has found Thursday night the hardest to sell, but this year it is, next to Monday, the most in demand. The whims of those who buy opera seats and boxes are hard to follow. It used to be considered in the old days when Mrs. Arthur Caton (now Mrs. Marshall Field of Washington) and her beautiful sister, the late Mrs. Augustus N. Eddy, were among the most devoted attendants of the opera that seats on the north side of the Auditorium were, if anything, a little more desirable than those anywhere else. To be sure, the late Mrs. Franklin MacVeagh and the late Mrs. Pullman had theirs on the opposite side of the house, but, even so, it was a little easier to sell boxes on the north side. That was before the horseshoe circle was completed. Today the demand is for boxes on the south side.

In those same long dead days every one who could sat in the upper tier of boxes. You could see and be seen so much better up there under the blazing arches of light. Tiaras looked like tiaras up there; they even looked like crown jewels. To sit below, under cover, as it were, was to lose half the fun of going to the opera. The opera box buyers of today are apt to shy at those same upper boxes that once held the elite of Chicago's beau monde.

We really had a beau monde in that era, a beau monde whose leaders had ideals and standards and a sense of responsibility as to their duties to Chicago's social life. When noted people came to Chicago it was the leaders of this world who as a matter of course entertained them and showed them the best that Chicago had. Nor did the hosts and hostesses of that era think it necessary to ply the d. g.'s unduly with liquor to make them happy, which is not to say that there were not champagne and rich French wines to offer them. But our society had an elegance and also a coherent quality in those days which it has not now. This change is, of course, somewhat due to the fact that it is so much larger today. Similar changes have taken place in New York, London, and even, I am told, in Paris, that most conservative and withdrawn of capitals.

Allister McCormicks Coming.

There will be many festivities when Mr. and Mrs. Allister McCormick arrive in Chicago in December before Christmas. They expect to make their home here. She is a young and lovely blonde. They will stay at first with Mr. McCormick's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton McCormick, in the handsome old family mansion on Rush street. Hamilton McCormick has brought over and installed his collection of paintings and other art objects, and the house looks sumptuous today, as well as homelike and friendly. The dance Mrs. McCormick is planning to give for her new daughter-in-law will take place in the spacious ballroom at the top of the house, a large and cheerful place.

Mrs. Allister McCormick was Miss Joan Stevens, the daughter of the Hon. Mrs. Charles Melton Astley. It is to be hoped that Mrs. Astley will come over to see her new relatives some day soon. She looks almost as young as her daughter, having been married at about the same age, 18, and is exceedingly good looking. Her second husband is a brother of Lord Hastings (hence the prefix honorable).

The young couple met last July at a French seaside resort, Le Touquet, on a tennis court. Le Touquet is near Boulogne, and is a smart and gay place. The young McCormicks were married at the British embassy in Paris on Oct. 6, after a brief courtship of three months. They are spending their honeymoon in southern France.

Drama on the North Shore.

The first performance of the season from the North Shore Theater guild takes place tomorrow evening in Lake Forest at Durant hall when Henry Wagstaff Gribble's "March Hares" will be presented by a fine cast. The piece will be repeated the following two nights at Winnetka in the Skokie school, the next night at the Kenilworth Assembly hall, and then at the Evanston's Women's club. It will be a good show. Later plays by Shaw, Tarkington, Galsworthy, Barrie, and others are promised.

The Chicago League of Women Voters is getting up a big meeting for next Saturday at the Studebaker theater from eleven to one o'clock, when one of the foremost women in this country, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, will speak on "War or Peace—What Shall We Do About It?" The guests of honor invited to sit on the platform are the presidents of the American Legion auxiliary, the Service Star legion, the Gold Star Mothers, and the American War Mothers. Many local women's organizations are coöperating to make this meeting a success.

Among patronesses are Miss Jane Addams, Miss Julia Lathrop, Mrs. Henry W. Cheney, Mrs. J. Paul Goode, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Claire E. More, Mrs. William F. Dummer, and Dr. Julia Strawn.

Mrs. Willa B. Laird is president of the Chicago League of Women Voters.

Change of Address.

There are always changes of residence to be recorded each autumn. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brewster, for instance, have rented their apartment at 222 East Walton place to the J. M. Pattersons, and are going to keep their house in Lake Forest open until they sail for southern Europe some time after Christmas. A few doors farther west, Miss Muriel McCormick has leased furnished the apartment at 220 East Walton place, formerly occupied by the late Thomas S. Chalmers. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, who has been abroad for several years, has returned to Chicago and is living with their children at her home on Cass and Erie streets.

Mrs. John A. Carpenter and Miss Genevieve Carpenter, who went abroad last May, are planning to spend the winter in Paris. Their house on Rush street is rented until next May.

Mrs. Arthur Ryerson is opening her house on Lake View avenue, and will spend the winter there with her son, John B. Ryerson. She is at present at her country place on Otsego Lake, N. Y., and will not return to Chicago until the middle of November.

Mr. and Mrs. George Higginson have taken an apartment almost opposite the house they have occupied for so many years on Astor street. And so they come and go, and each year we have to remake our lists for balls and receptions, and the post office has to struggle with innumerable forwarding addresses.

Proceeds Go to Charity.

There is nothing smarter than a theatrical benefit as a means to raise money for a charity. The world that amuses itself loves to meet at a good play or musical comedy or "revue." Therefore the news that there are several of such evenings ahead will interest society and those who like to go to the theater in good company. The supporters of that excellent enterprise, Ell Bates house, have secured a night of the far famed "Chauve Souris" from Morris Gest, and are organizing to make a tidy sum out of it for their well known social service center.

In spite of the fact that everybody who has been to New York within the last two years, and who had the price of a ticket, went to at least one performance of these remarkable Russian singers and dancers and listened to the drolleries of that inimitable Balieff, they will all want to go again. The company has an entirely new set of songs, dances, costumes, and jests. It has had a wonderful run in New York, and has set a standard for entertainment which will be of value to us for years to come. It is encouraging to the student of our theatergoing public to study the growing capacity of appreciation of really artistic things, as manifested by the unfailing popularity of this highly artistic performance. One could not get tickets to it without applying weeks ahead for them. And yet the entertainment was an entirely Russian affair, with the words in Russian and the stories purely Russian.

Because the second Assembly Ball is set for Jan. 11, the ordanizers of the Twelfthnight costume ball have changed the date for this popular affair from Jan. 11 to Jan. 4. Every one is asking what will be the cast of this year's Twelfthnight dance.

It was told to me by some who had been in England this summer that they were saying over there that Queen Mary was a fine woman, only she "tees" her hats too high. This is not the day when hats can be teed high. They are worn more than ever pulled down over the face. It is hard to make out your nearest and dearest friend unless you stoop and peer under the encompassing shadows of the modern hat.

Still another interesting item was brought back to me from England by a returned Chicagoite, who cut it out of a London daily paper. At the second reading of the "matrimonial causes" bill in the house of lords last summer Lord Braye moved the rejection of the bill, "to the fundamental principles of which he declared himself opposed. He pointed to America as a terrible example. There was a statement of things in Chicago," he said, "which was no more than camouflaged bigamy and polyandry."

Well, well! So that's the way we appear to others! Why polyandry any more than polygamy? I suppose that it is just one more proof that woman is coming into her own. If man, as is often said, is "a polygamous animal," then woman is also "a polyandrious" one. What are we coming to, will you tell me?

MISS RUTH MICHAELS.
[Koehne Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Al Michaels of the Chicago Beach hotel announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Ruth, to Oscar G. Powell of Chicago, formerly of Kansas City, Mo., the wedding to take place on Nov. 7. Mr. and Mrs. Powell will reside in California.

MRS. GEORGE HOLMES.
[Schmidt Photo.]

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Helen Isabel Siple, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Siple of 3515 Wilton avenue, to George Leonard Holmes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Shenton D. Holmes of 2822 North Whipple street.

MRS. JAMES J. GARREY.

It All Lies in the SILK

IN the silk itself lies the secret of the beauty of this season's frocks. Brocades that glitter and glow with metal and color, or are softened by chiffon backgrounds, for formal occasions, Chiffon Velvets, graceful and supple, for afternoon and dinner gowns—these, in themselves, are sufficient to insure the success of the costume they compose.

These aristocrats among silks, and all the other high favorites of the season, are found in the complete Primrose collection, at Chicago's newest Specialty Silk Store; and, as usual, at prices consistently lower than elsewhere.

Of Particular Interest for Monday:

Satin Canton Crepe — $2.65 yard
A fine Satin Crepe in beautiful finish, and the new Fall colors, as well as black. All silk.

Crepe de Chine — $1.85 yard
All silk, in a splendid weight for dresses and lingerie; full color range, including black.

All-Silk Radium — $1.55 yard
An especially lovely, soft silk for lingerie and other negligee garments. In delicate tints and darker shades.

Imported Chiffon Velvet — $6.95 yard
All silk, a superb quality in twenty fashionable shades and black; only inspection can demonstrate its quality and exceptional value.

WOMEN'S CLUB PAGE

Home Makers' Day to Be Nationally Observed Oct. 31

By Kate Webber.

AN interesting event of the week, to women, the prime home makers, will be the annual breakfast in celebration of Homemakers' day, to be held on Wednesday at 12:30 o'clock at the Auditorium hotel, under the auspices of the Homemakers' council of Cook county. The annual meeting will precede the breakfast.

Among the speakers will be Mrs. Walter W. Seymour of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Mary Bartelme, Dr. Frances Dickinson, Charles S. Peterson, and Charles Dillon. The subjects under discussion will be "Why Homemaking and Its Allied Industries Should Become a Recognized Profession"; "What Is Disrupting the Natural Home Life of the Nation?" and "Is the Home Equally Important as an Educational Factor with the School in the Development of Character?"

New members of the Homemakers' National guild will be awarded life certificates, and Ald. Guy Guernsey will present gold stars to junior homemakers who have completed the first five years of educational effort in home and school.

Among the members of the council, of which Adolph Karpen is chairman, are Mrs. Timothy B. Blackstone, Mrs. George M. Reynolds, Mrs. Francis T. Johnson, Mrs. Frederick Tracy, Mrs. Gilman W. Petit, Mrs. Clarence N. Goodwin, Mrs. Charles S. Peterson, Mrs. Edward S. Tilden, Mrs. Charles Walgreen, Mrs G. L. Morse, Mrs. John B. Seymour, Mrs. T Vernette Morse, Mrs. David MacLean, Mrs. William L. Pretzel, Gardiner Lathrop, Peter A. Mortenson, Kneeland Ball, and Frank Millhening.

This program is one of several arranged by the National guild through its county councils, which will be given simultaneously wherever such councils exist. For several years the last day in October has been given over to meetings of a similar nature.

The object of the Homemakers' guild is to claim recognition for the home and its allied activities as a foundation of all state and national progress; to obtain for women the same recognition and honor for efficient home making that is awarded other skilled professions; to awaken in legislative bodies a larger sense of justice and appreciation for women who are engaged in home making; to demand that all educational institutions incorporate into their curriculum such fundamental teachings of art and science as are needful for the creation of greater efficiency in developing the physical, mental, moral, and social life of the home; to conduct an educational propaganda for the normal growth and development of children from broken homes so arranged that they shall have the advantage of both the home and public school life; and to observe the last of October as Homemakers' day in the schools.

The guild members sense that the broken home is a great problem of the present day, and that the children are victims. They feel it is the duty of the homemakers of the country to assume the responsibility of teaching the public how to create an educational home life suited to the needs of little ones. Several schools have been put into operation, where the pupils are taught that they are not dependents but coworkers, and others will be founded as soon as possible

Most of the Homemakers' councils of counties in the various states are federated with the state federations of women's clubs. They also cooperate with the National Educational association in uniting the home and school educational activities.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS

Charles M. Moderwell, president of the board of education, will address the Chicago Woman's club on Wednesday at 2 o'clock in Recital hall, upon the subject, "Increased Taxation for School Buildings." Immediately following will be a symposium on "The Woman's Club Movement and Its Influence on the History of the Past Half Century. What of Its Future?" On Tuesday at 12:30 o'clock the art and literature department will give a luncheon to welcome new members of the department. The English study class will meet in the assembly room on Thursday at 10:15 o'clock. The American speech committee will hold an open meeting on Saturday at 11 o'clock, to hear Wallace Bruce Amsbary speak on "America's Dialect." At the Saturday luncheon meeting of the home and public welfare and the education and philosophy departments, Mrs. Helen Thompson Dooley, Ph.D., will speak on the "Personality of the Child of Three."

Mrs. Walter F. Dodd, chairman of the municipal citizenship committee of the Woman's City club, has arranged a special meeting for the information of the club members on the coming judicial elections. The meeting will be held in the club lounge on Tuesday at 2 o'clock, when Francis X. Busch and Charles Barrett will speak, and candidates to fill the vacancy of coroner and the vacancy on the county board also will be heard. Eugene J. Taylor of the Chicago plan commission will present the bond issue for the LaSalle street bridge and a discussion will be held on the Zoological park proposition. This meeting will be open to all club members. The citizenship study course will continue every Tuesday at 10:45 o'clock. This week the subject of the lecture will be "Government in Chicago," with Joseph Cummins as speaker. At 11:30 Dr. W. A. Evans of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will present "Health of Various Racial Stocks." The full day Tuesday of lectures will come to a close with a lecture to the business and professional women of the club at 7 o'clock in the evening.

On Wednesday, the recreation committee will hold its regular monthly meeting. The 37th ward branch will meet at Holden park town hall on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Katherine Parliament will give the second lecture of a series on citizenship entitled "The Task of the Voter." At 8:15 on Thursday evening the Homewood branch will meet to hear Charles Ball give an illustrated lecture on zoning. On Friday at 2 o'clock the 37th and 50th ward civic league will meet. Mrs. Maurice Lieber will conduct the class in citizenship and Mrs. B. F. Langworthy will give a talk on "How the Club Woman Can Make Herself Effective." Saturday the 20th ward branch will meet at 2 o'clock at Henry Booth house. Mrs. Harry Kocher will speak on "Your Share in the Coming Election."

Edgar A. Mowrer will be the guest at a tea on Friday from 4 until 5:30 o'clock at the Chicago College club. The annual memorial for Florence Holbrook Poucher will be observed with a musicale on Saturday at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Charles H. Dennis of 1225 Michigan avenue, Evanston, will give a tea on Wednesday afternoon for members of the art circle.

MRS. CHARLES S. PETERSON.
[Raymor Photo.]

The Home Makers' council of Cook county, of which Mrs. Charles S. Peterson is a member, will hold its annual meeting on Wednesday morning at the Auditorium hotel, followed by a breakfast at 12:30 o'clock. Similar meetings will be held on that day by various councils of the National Home Makers' guild throughout the country, as it is aimed to make the last day in October nationally observed as Home Makers' day. Details of the meeting and of the organization's ideals are found in another column.

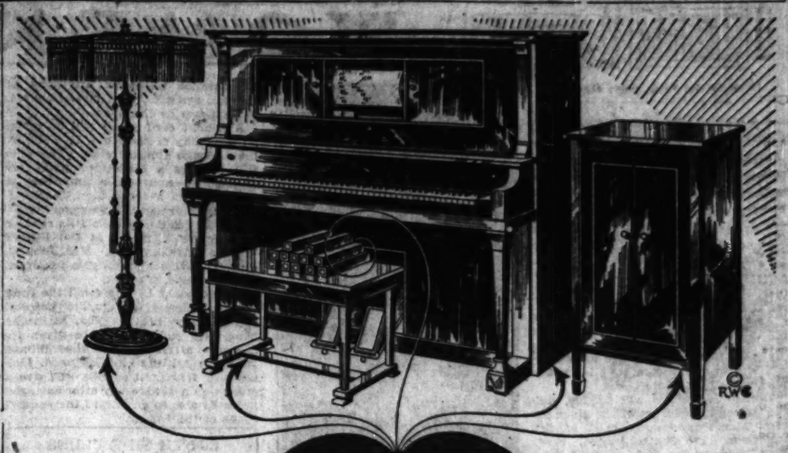

MISS ISABEL MITCHELL.
[Raymor Photo.]

Proof that members of the Woman's City club do not give their entire attention to problems outside the home is evidenced in a new cook book just off the presses, which bears the title of "The Woman's City Club Cook Book." Miss Isabel Mitchell, chairman of the library committee, has compiled the recipes, which have been given by prominent women whose kitchens are far famed, among them being the club president, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, Miss Julia Lathrop, Miss Jane Addams, Miss Mary McDowell, and Mrs. B. F. Langworthy.

MRS. JOSEPH FISH.
[Moffett Photo.]

Mrs. Joseph Fish will give the use of her apartment at the Windermere hotel for a sale of unique gifts and novelties to be held tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday. The proceeds will be given to the building fund of the Home for Working Mothers with children to support. The present home at 4206 Ellis avenue is inadequate for the many applicants for admission. Assisting Mrs. Fish at the sale will be Mrs. A. Donald Campbell, Mrs. Mark Trude, Mrs. M. E. Greenebaum Jr., Mrs. Charles H. Hoinville, Mrs. Edward Carson, and Mrs. James Greenebaum.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Addition and Subtraction.

Dear Mae: It has been so long since I attended any theater where they didn't have trick ushers that I really couldn't say how I would like the pork chops without a little sauce. However, let's see if we can dispense with any of the fixin's.

Let's retain the news reels. You know, yourself, seein' is better than readin'. Please let us keep the act from "Thais." Some of us cannot afford grand opera. You must be a busy person, indeed, if you have not time to set through a good rendition from an opera.

As for the comedy, there should be a federal law against transporting them from one state to another and from one block to another. When you've seen one you've seen all—a fall in the mud, then into a flour barrel, then shot in the back (you know where I mean) with rock salt, etc., etc., ad infinitum, until your poor mind has reached the saturation point with thrills, jolts and surprises. By all means can the comedies.

Keep the organist. You may hear something beautiful.

Keep the beauty pictures—little journeys to nature's picture gallery or whatever you want to call it. I remember them for months afterward, especially one of the Pacific northwest, "My Country" was the name of it. You know some of us get only a week's vacation, and places like Glacier National park and the grand cañon are beyond us.

Don't dispense with the rendition by the symphony orchestra. More beauty.

As for the feature pictures—well, most of them can be described by the way the people dressed during the "torrid dog days of Alaska" in "The Spoilers." I should judge the poor mad dog was frothing at the mouth because no one would let him in where it was warm. I feel better.

E. M. A.

Pleasing the Organist.

Dear Mae: Permit me to take my typewriter in hand to praise you and your department, and voice my humble thanks for the advertising (favorable or otherwise) you are affording me in my work as an organist.

I am sincere in what I say, Mae, as I am a great believer in the words of Barnum (or whoever it was) that:

If they praise you—fine.
If they roast you—also fine.
BUT
If you say nothing—you are dead and cheating the undertaker.

You have been more than kind to me in this respect, and I trust you will continue to take a poke at me whenever you feel so inclined, as I enjoy rousing the ire of such a great critic as yourself.

This is not a note for the "Kick Korner," Mae, as I have no kick, but now that the shortage of bananas is over, and we are entering into a shortage of beer, PLEASE don't encourage the shooting of beer runners by using the word "murder." I'm s'prised!

Yours 'til they elect Bryan.

Votes for Trimmings.

Dear Mae: You have thrown a monkey wrench into the midst of my day's enjoyment, and I have stopped the clock whilst I pick it out to hurl it back at you. No injury meant.

Your criticism of the enterprising movie magnates who put trimmings on a moving picture show does not get full approval from this writer.

I look forward each week to noon hour of the next Sunday, when I will be courteously conducted to a comfortable seat in a gorgeously beautiful theater.

I think the big exhibitors are idealists and I thank them for demonstrating that idealism is the only system truly practical.

Dear Miss Tinee: Did I see a good picture? Oh Boy — and not that "Shelky" stuff either. It was the "Merry Go Round." And can Mary Philbin act! I tell you [in slang] she sure is a "Knock Out."

And Norman Kerry. No flies on him either. For he is some lover. When Mary Philbin looks at him, and then that dazed look on her face, I tell you it just makes your heart go patoto, patoto. And as to looks, that little delicate look is certainly beyond the Pamps. I think she is just wonderful in that picture. You can leave it to Universal. [I think, don't you?]

The Best Joke I Ever Heard

Customer—Ouch! That towel is scalding hot.

Barber—Sorry, sir! I couldn't hold it any longer. J. D. N.

Brew Bit of Finance.

An old Scotchman who went to a horse race for the first time was induced to stake 5 shillings in the third race on a 50 to 1 chance.

The horse won, and when the bookmaker handed the old man his winnings he could hardly believe his eyes.

"Dae ye mean to say I get all this for ma 5 shillings?" he exclaimed.

"You do," replied the bookmaker.

"Ma conscience!" muttered the Scotsman. "Tell me, mon, how long has this thing been goin' on?" A. L.

Sure, and He Did.

A Dublin car driver was stopped for careless driving by a zealous constable. He refused to give his name.

"You'll get yourself into trouble if you don't give me your name."

Still the driver refused.

"Now, then, what is it?" persisted the constable.

"Better find out," retorted the driver.

"Sure and I will," said the constable, going around to the side of the car where the name should have been, only to find it rubbed off.

"Aha," said the constable, "now you'll get yourself into worse disgrace, for your name is obliterated."

"You're wrong," roared the driver; "'tis O'Brien." M. W.

NEWS OF THE CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS

Miss Dorothea Scheerer of 4611 Magnolia avenue will be hostess to the Ken-More club on Thursday.

A meeting of the Altrui club will be held on Thursday evening at the Jefferson Park Masonic temple.

WEST SIDE CLUBS

The civics and philanthropy department of the West End Woman's club will give a card party on Wednesday at 2 o'clock, the proceeds to go toward aid for ex-service men. A musical program will feature the regular meeting on Friday afternoon.

Mary Hastings Bradley will speak on "With the Woman on the Gorilla Trail" tomorrow afternoon at the meeting of the Austin Woman's club. There also will be music.

SUBURBAN CLUBS

Mrs. M. H. Lieber will speak before the La Grange Woman's club tomorrow afternoon on "The Changing World." On Tuesday afternoon Prof. James Weber Linn will give a talk on current American literature.

Dr. James Taft Hatfield of Northwestern university will give an address on James Russell Lowell on Friday afternoon before the Berwyn Woman's club.

At the meeting of the art and literature department of the Woman's club of Hinsdale, to be held on Tuesday afternoon, Donald Robertson will speak on "The Player's Calling and Its Relation to Life."

The Lake Forest Y. W. C. A. will be hostess on Thursday and Friday at an institute to be attended by associations from Highland Park, Waukegan, Freeport, and Sterling. Secretaries from the national board and volunteers workers from the various associations will speak, and on Friday evening the Lake Forest girls will give a pageant, "An Adventure in Friendship," to which the public is invited.

The Nurses' Alumnae association of the Oak Park hospital will give a benefit dance and card party on Tuesday evening at the Elks club of Oak Park. The proceeds will go toward the building fund of the hospital.

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans.

Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Jones joined the Civic club at about the same time.

From the first Mrs. Smith showed a disposition to help out wherever and whenever she could. She filled envelopes, worked on committees, and did numberless other jobs that must be done behind the scenes of a successful club—the kind of jobs that carry no glory with them.

"I enjoy the pleasures of the club," she said, "and I should be willing to do my share of the work. I don't mind it. It helps me to get acquainted with the members."

Mrs. Jones wasn't interested in anything that looked like work. When she was asked to do it she always found an excuse. She had an appointment, was rushed to death, or had a headache.

When her name was mentioned in connection with any position some one was sure to object by saying, "She won't work. We must have some one in that place who will."

After the two women had been in the club for several years, Mrs. Jones remarked to the chairman of the nominating committee: "I don't see why I'm never given any consideration in this club. Mrs. Smith and I came in at the same time. She is now an officer and a member of the board of directors and I've never even been put on a committee of any importance."

"Mrs. Smith has more than earned any honor she's been given," the chairman frankly told her. "She's not only done her own work but often that of others rather than to see a project fail. If it wasn't for women of her kind we wouldn't have a club."

Recital time this afternoon can be reasonably divided between Feodor Chaliapin at Orchestra hall and Harold Bauer at the Playhouse. Both are commanding figures in their respective arts, though truthful reporting compels the admission that the giant Russian basso numbers his adherents by the thousands while Mr. Bauer has always preferred to demonstrate his fine piano playing to the chosen few.

Following his custom, Mr. Chaliapin does not announce his program. He maintains a long list of songs, and, supposedly on impulse, chooses them after he gets to the stage. Mr. Bauer will play Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms; also Bloch, Ravel, and Chopin.

Grace Holst, a dramatic soprano with the opera company last season, will appear on Tuesday night as soloist with the Norwegian Singing society in its thirty-third annual concert. Otto Clausen is the director of seventy-five male voices, which will be heard, it is said, next year in Norway. This is the first of a series of concerts in which Miss Holst will appear under the auspices of various Norwegian societies about the United States.

Enrico Serrillo, tenor, will make his first Chicago appearance this afternoon at the Garrick in the Fiesta del Giardino for the benefit of Italian charities. Aldo Del Nessler and Sibyl Comer, both well known in Chicago, will also be on the program.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

The Gamma Kappa Delta society of St. Luke's, Evanston, will visit the Cathedral Shelter, 17 North Peoria street, today. Party will assist in the musical portion of the service. Kirk Taylor, president, will deliver the address.

There will be two services at the Seminary Avenue Federated church, 2744 North Kimball avenue, welcoming the Baldenites of yesterday, extending to them an annual greeting. Those who have been away for a long time, unable to attend, are urged to come today. Former leaders will conduct the evening Christian Endeavor service. An annual homecoming dinner is also announced for next Tuesday evening at 6:30 o'clock.

The Rev. C. J. Pernin, S. J., has announced that the first prize of $50 awarded in a city-wide poster contest has been given to Miss Genevieve Cook of St. Xavier's college. The contest was held in connection with "The Pageant of Youth," a musical masque to be held under the auspices of Loyola university during Thanksgiving week. Father Pernin is director general of the pageant. Several of the colleges and most of the Catholic academies throughout the city took part in the poster contest.

Anniversary services will begin next Sunday in the Bethany Baptist church, 3532-36 Hoyne avenue, the Rev. Frank McKeegan, pastor. The various departments of the church will participate in the different meetings each evening. Several other pastors will assist.

The People's Lutheran church, 118th and State streets, the Rev. I. W. Trostle, pastor, has let contracts for the erection of a new parsonage.

The Woodlawn United Presbyterian church, the Rev. R. C. Gibson, pastor, will spend $3,500 in church building improvements.

ART AND ARTISTS

"Decorative Portrait of Ann Lichlighter," by Gerald Frank, a recently completed painting that shows clearly the artist's increasing grasp of his medium. Gerald Frank is well known as a decorative painter, not so well as a portrait painter. In this canvas he combines the two with remarkable success. The painting probably will be exhibited at the Art institute this spring in the Chicago Artists' show.

Europe's Schools of Industrial Art Far Ahead of Ours

By Eleanor Jewett.

THERE is nothing so young but what it will grow older, and nothing so poor but what it may get better. Compared with Europe, America is exceedingly young; compared with European industrial art schools, American industrial art schools are nonexistent. However, the succeeding years are remedying our youth, and the efforts of numerous earnest citizens are gradually bringing into existence the ideal of the successful foreign school on native soil.

To be exact, we have here in the United States only two schools of industrial art. In Philadelphia is one that specializes in textile design, and at Providence, R. I., there is a school which confines itself to the designing of jewelry. However, to look for a minute on the bright side, Chicago has in its art school at the Art institute the greatest art school in the world. There is no reason why the increased interest in industrial art, which is one of the significant developments of this art school, should not lead to the establishment in Chicago of the greatest industrial art school in the world.

Already there is a movement on foot to ensure this development. The Association of Arts and Industries, an organization founded here, is backing the movement with all its strength. A number of men of importance in the business world are throwing themselves body and soul into the achievement of such a school. At present our manufacturers must go to Europe to find competent designers. Whether the object be furniture, textiles, wall papers, jewelry, or china, the answer is the same, if you seek a new pattern, a beautiful design, original and in good taste, you must import either the pattern or the designer.

Many of our furniture manufacturers import old French or Italian or English pieces in order to stimulate the creative facility in their design shops. The pieces are not exactly copied; they are adapted. One manufacturer in speaking of this said: "There is not a piece of furniture which I import that I could not improve in its making, but I could never get the design of any of them here."

Charles H. Whitsey, a Chicago business man, recently made a trip to France to find out first hand what their industrial schools are like and what they do. He tells of his trip thus:

"I wanted to know exactly what Europe is now doing in regard to the training of young people who have a genius for designing beautiful things, so I went abroad and visited school after school. Mr. Heessey, business manager of the European edition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in Paris, extended to me every possible courtesy in facilitating my study. M. Merlin, a member of THE TRIBUNE staff and a man of high diplomatic ability, was particularly gracious in arranging for me a number of introductions.

"My trip convinced me of this: America must take its rightful place in the industrial arts. We import things of beauty because we fail to realize that such things can be made in our own country. For generations the European countries have fostered the manufacturing of articles of the most exquisite taste. They have provided some marvelous schools for the training of men and women in the developing of their ability to design such commodities.

"America is seventy-five years behind England with respect to its industrial art schools and more than two centuries behind France. We think of France as a nation of small farmers, but it is essentially a trading nation. Paris enjoys the distinction of being the marketplace for the whole world. Where else may one find for sale such an extraordinary array of beautiful things? The industrial art schools have had a great influence in promoting this condition in Paris.

"Paris is now making elaborate plans for an industrial art exposition to be held next year, which will attract world-wide attention. Everywhere one finds the stress of emphasis upon the idea of making things of greater beauty than has ever before been conceived.

"In the schools there is a seriousness of purpose among the students. They seem concerned with the importance of their career and with its relation to the artistic development of the future. Perhaps the severity of the entrance requirements and of the examinations may account for the high quality of the students. I was told that a failure in any single examination would disqualify a man from continuing his studies. There is no "taking an examination over." In spite of this stricture—possibly because of it—few students are eliminated, one-half of 1 per cent is the average flunked each year, and the high standard has a remarkably stimulating effect upon those ambitious to succeed."

Mr. Whitney also remarked that a number of the schools have a limited attendance. The most important school in the world for the creating of exquisite porcelains and china is at Sevres. There are but twenty-eight pupils permitted to study a year. The course is four years in length, and seven new pupils enter each year as seven finish. The candidates are chosen with the greatest care, in addition to being required to pass stringent examinations. So high is the standard of work that many more pieces of china are destroyed than are finished. Only hand production of beautiful china is taught there.

In every school each part of the work is taught as a hand craft, even though in the actual manufacture machinery may be employed. This tends to develop a feeling for the material and a facility in handling it which no machine can give. For the most part French teachers only are employed in the schools. There is no such familiar importing of instructors as we have here. Each country for itself, is almost a slogan in the foreign industrial art schools.

The school of industrial art now proposed for Chicago is to be allied with the Art institute. The old Field Museum building in Jackson park has been suggested as a suitable location. Among the men interested in the project are Oliver Dennett Grover, Eames MacVeagh, B. F. Affleck, Harold Bradley, Colin C. H. Fyffe, John M. Glenn, Robert B. Harshe, Frank G. Logan, Lionel Robertson, Paul Schulze, Lorado Taft, Stewart Waring, and Henry K. Holsman.

A bit of news concerning the American paintings and sculpture exhibition, which opens Thursday of this week at the Art institute, is the following list of invited works of art: "Leaping Salmon," by Frank W. Benson; "South Sea Foam, Tahiti," by William Ritschel; "The Susannas," by Ivan G. Olinsky; "Miss Margaret Williams," by Lillian Westcott Hale; "Portrait of My Mother," by George W. Bellows; "Boy," by Lydia Field Emmett; "In the Valley," by Ross E. Braught; "Sun Dial," by Brenda Putnam, and "Girl Dressing Her Hair," by Frederick C. Frieseke.

Plans for housing the Arts club this winter have fallen through. Where that organization will set up its figurative canvas and hospital tea table rests still on the knees of the gods. The suspicion of a rumor suggests that possibly Mrs. John A. Carpenter may offer the shelter of her roof to the club this season.

DIFFERENT FROM THE OTHERS.

EGYPT is no more. Military son- quest under the Pharaohs brought in a host of slaves. They were the weaklings of their time, the ones who could not stand the gaff of the age. But it was they who were preserved, and not the masters.

The Egyptian is gone from Egypt, but his blood still lingers in other places. It forms a small but highly valuable part of the makeup of the American people. What are its characteristics? Look at Erkhanna. The blood of the past is still present in her. Erkhanna is of Semitic blood. Her eyes are Semitic, her teeth are long reserved and white, after the usual Semitic pattern, her profile is strongly aquiline, her mind is keen and introspective, and she is small and has delicate bones. But she is so different from the usual types of Semites that we stare at her in amazement.

Where do these features and traits of mind come from? Which oriental race does she most resemble? Arabian? No. Mediterranean? No. Nor Phoenician, nor Aegean. But Hamitic or Egyptian? Yes. How did she get here? What stories of wanderings and of holding true to traditions there are in her family, probably never can be told. Races are indestructible, and as long as they live, they will come back. In particular, Semitic blood always surges up again. It has great vitality. Erkhanna has a brilliant mind. She understands art in three dimensions. In her fancy, she makes buildings. She draws her plans in her mind's eye. They seem so real to her that she does

WHAT MAKES A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN?

By Selby Maxwell.

DIFFERENT FROM THE OTHERS.

EGYPT is no more. Military conquest under the Pharaohs brought in a host of slaves. They were the weaklings of their time, the ones who could not stand the gaff of the age. But it was they who were preserved, and not the masters.

The Egyptian is gone from Egypt, but his blood still lingers in other places. It forms a small but highly visible part of the makeup of the American people. What are its characteristics? Look at Erkhanna. The spirit of the past is still present in her.

Erkhanna is of Semitic blood. Her eyes are Semitic, her teeth are long enamel and white, after the usual Semitic pattern, her profile is strongly Semitic, her mind is keen and introspective, and she is small and has delicate bones. But she is so different from the usual types of Semites that we stare at her in amazement.

Erkhanna.

Where do those features and traits of mind come from? Which oriental race does she most resemble? Arabian? No. Mediterranean? No. Nor Assyrian, nor Aegean. But Hamitic or Egyptian? Yes. How did she get here? What stories of wanderings and of holding true to traditions there are in her family, probably never can be told. Races are indestructible, and as long as they live, they will come back. In particular, Semitic blood always comes up again. It has great vitality. Erkhanna has a brilliant mind. She understands art in three dimensions. In her fancy, she makes buildings. She views her plans in her mind's eye. They seem so real to her that she does not need to put them on paper to visualize them. Her art is elaborate and intricate. In this she is living again the life that Egypt once had.

We are inclined to think of the Egyptians as a gloomy, mirthless people, forever dwelling on the thoughts of heaven, death, and the hereafter. Such a picture is undoubtedly true of the Nordic Pharaohs. Their psychology as well as their blood was straight out of Russia, and they were like the present Russians in more ways than one. But the race of the Pharaohs was only a tiny part of Egypt, albeit a powerful part. The real people were the ones who labored to erect the beautiful buildings, and who enjoyed them and preserved them and cared so much for them that the land, even after thirty centuries of vandalism and time, is the wonder spot of the world.

The spirt of those far off times is in Erkhanna. She lives them over again without knowing where her thoughts come from. She is beautiful because it is interesting to hear her speak of this spirit.

INSECTS

THE MOST EVIL CREATURE.

THE creature that combines the greatest numbers of traits that man finds repulsive is a kind of insect, the cone nosed bugs. Ugliness, stench, slyness, venom, bloodthirstiness, conceit, and self righteousness, cockiness, and no pang of pity, all these are to be found in the psychology of the bugs. If the devil is to be personified in any material form it should be in the guise of a louse, a bed bug, a kissing bug or a belostoma.

Slams of Life

By J. P. McEVOY

TWO POINTS OF VIEW.

What is that horrid critter, Pa,
That just went rushing by?
It seemed to me that I could see
A gloating in his eye.
It seemed to me that I could see
A menace in his glim.
What, as the ancients used to say,
Is eating, Pa, on him?

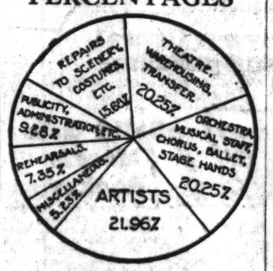

O, that, my small, expensive son,
As you might well have guessed,
Is just another motorist
With murder in his breast—
Is just another motorist
With mayhem in his heart,
Who loves to chase pedestrians
And bust 'em all apart.

What is that silly looking sap
That slinks on timid feet?
He seems to think he has the right
To walk across our street—
He seems to think he has the right
To live upon our sphere—
O, Pa, let's step upon the gas
And knock him on his ear!

My son, your perspicacity
Delights your father's soul;
You have devined with agile mind
The mission of yon mole—
You have devined with agile mind,
We should contuse his bun,
For that is a pedestrian,
An awful thing, my son.

PERCENTAGES

OPERA COST CHART.

Here is a graphic view of the way the Civic Opera company's money was spent last season. It shows that many other items besides artists' fees enter into the total. The company says that for every $1 taken in last season $1.547 was spent.

Activities of Women

The average woman of America outlives the man.

In at least forty sects women are now freely received into the ministry.

Women in Paris use an average of more than two pounds of face powder yearly.

Nemo Editorial on Corsets

THERE IS NO SMOKE WITHOUT FIRE.

If someone should tell you that you wouldn't have backaches nor that tired feeling, nor bearing down pains and dull headaches, nor that ghastly, death-like expression on your face if you would wear a certain corset, you would think it was ridiculous.

But that is exactly what can happen if you will wear a Nemo Wonderlift Corset which not only prevents those disorders, but gives buoyancy to your carriage and symmetrical lines to your figure.

Women do suffer whether they admit it or not. The remedy is a very easy and inexpensive one. Try a pair, and incidentally send for a booklet entitled "Why Women Should Wear Corsets." We'll mail it free upon request.

Nemo Wonderlift Back-Resting No. 889, illustrated, for women of slender and medium figures. Concealed handles give correct poise and healthful, restful support. Pink coutil; sizes 24 to 35—$5.00.

Sonora Motors Are Dependable!

AFTER all, it is performance that counts! Given perfect tone and attractive appearance, your phonograph, to create lasting satisfaction, must include the best motor obtainable.

Sonora motors, running and winding quietly, with perfect tempo, perform their tasks with unfailing accuracy and can be relied upon to give satisfactory service. They are made by Swiss artisans, the acknowledged leaders in spring movement manufacture.

Those illustrated above are typical of the high quality of Sonora motors. The "L" motor is the only phonograph motor made that plays forty-five minutes (15 ten-inch records) at one winding!

All other Sonora motors are of the same high quality materials and workmanship.

Any Sonora dealer will gladly tell you more about Sonora motors and demonstrate their mechanical dependability and simplicity.

Executives and Managers.

$15,000 A YEAR
TO THE RIGHT MAN.

Large mercantile corporation offers a big opportunity to a high class executive experienced in modern sales methods.

One of the largest Hosiery and Underwear Concerns in America needs a District Sales Manager to assume full charge of its Chicago activities.

These goods are sold direct to the consumer and long contain special selling features not found in any other line. Because of this salesmen who have sold other goods find that with this line they can double their former income. This can be verified for us the services of the best salesmen and salesmen in the surrounding territory now. We want a man big enough to organize, supervise and direct a crew of these high calibre representatives in Chicago and vicinity. This position will pay from $10,000 to $25,000, depending on ability.

There is no stock to be carried; no franchise to be sold; therefore capital is not needed, but the man we select must be a successful salesman himself, with the executive ability which enables him to organize and train others and to inspire their loyalty and respect. A high class man can win and prove to him that here is the opportunity of a lifetime in a connection that will be PERMANENT.

The president of this corporation will be in Chicago Tuesday and Wednesday to interview applicants. Give full details of your past experience, also mention telephone number. Our present executives and employes know of this advertisement so you need not hesitate to write us, as it will be held confidential. 2nDI, Room 905, 225 N. Michigan-av.

Monday.

Dear Betty:

I'm going to be a telephone operator.

Some one told me once that telephone work was hard—I know better NOW. I've been going to school, and the work gets more fascinating every day. My instructor is so careful to see that everything is explained so that I can't help understanding. She ought to know—she was an operator herself. I can hardly wait to go to the practice board.

Betty, aren't those lunches just delicious? I met some of the nicest girls on my noon hour—just out of high school.

Tomorrow my friend Ada is going to see Miss Burke. She had heard there were to be no more operators on account of the new Machine Switching System, but I told her differently.

We surely are lucky.

Love,
Peggy.

PEERLESS TOURING CAR—1923 "66" 7 PASS. This is a current model Peerless which came to us after but short service; its former owner, a man of high standing of Collins Blue, it cannot be distinguished from a new automobile. The service which it has had is only equaled by its perfect motor. As to its entire mechanical condition, it carries our standard New Car Warranty. Equipped with 6 cord tires, spare plate glass fitted to the Peerless Permanent Top, one has the comforts of a sedan. This is an exceptional opportunity to secure one of the new Peerless models at a remarkable saving. $2,300.

PEERLESS SEDAN MODEL 56. This late series "56" Sedan comfortably seats seven. Yet, it is in no sense a bulky, cumbersome car nor more expensive in operation than the eight which seats but five adults comfortably. It is the dignified conventional sedan that is desirable and the new dark Green finish which it wears is a car appearance. The driver's compartment is finished in leather, the rear in deep green broadcloth. Mechanically, you will give a good account of itself and long, satisfactory service. This Sedan, at its special sale price, is the ideal car for the man who wishes to buy a car without heavy investment, and absolute value for the money they spend. For this one, $1,650.

RICKENBACKER DEALERS.

The Pedigree Tag, adopted by us several months ago, has been of untold value to our customers. Many of them have told us, without solicitation, that it is the One Safe Way to Buy a Car, as the Pedigree attached to every car carries Guaranteed Data. Former owner's name, address, telephone number, year of car, model, condition and what you may expect in the way of service are all clearly set forth.
Call and inspect our Pedigreed cars, note the "thoroughbreds" we have, and tell us what you think of them. Many bargains are ready for your inspection.

Roamer Touring car. This car is in condition away above the average. Finish, motor, tires, top, etc., are very good. Do not let the low price frighten you. Only $125.

Buick 5 Pass. Touring car, with winter enclosure and in good condition. We would suggest your early inspection of this car as it will sell readily at our low price of $195.

Mitchell Touring car. This is an unusual car, having been carefully driven by the original owner and therefore in excellent mechanical condition. Fully equipped with bumpers, step plates, cord tires, spotlight, etc. An unusually quiet car. Good value at $250.

Nash Sport Touring car, equipped with 5 wire wheels and excellent cord tires, motometer, bumpers and other extras. This car is mechanically right and is sure to satisfy your demands for very little money. Only $525.

Ford Coupe, used but a few months and in new car condition. Every detail of this car will pass your most critical examination. Many extras and a car seldom offered for only $425.

Buick 4 Pass. Coupe. This economical closed car has just come from our shops and is refinished Buick Blue with Straw color wheels. 5 almost new cord tires, motometer, slip covers, etc. This car offers typical Marmon value, only $425.

Rickenbacker Sport Phaeton, which has just gone through our shops and now looks and like new. A very smart car with the famous Tandem flywheel motor, free from all periods of vibration. Refinished a beautiful color with disc wheels. This is a bargain seldom offered, only $975.

How Chicago merchants use The Sunday Tribune to make Mondays sunny instead of blue —

BLUE Monday was once universally accepted by merchants as an inevitable affliction. Saturday had always been the best shopping day, and it was assumed that this uneconomic sales peak must continue forever. Shopping for Sunday requirements, the Saturday half-holiday, the vast numbers of Saturday pay envelopes, the habit of generations, both in rural districts and in cities—all these combined to produce the enormous Saturday business. That a slump should follow on Monday seemed reasonable and is still accepted as reasonable by the merchants of many cities.

But the merchants of Chicago have taken this hostile situation in hand and licked it. The weapon they used was advertising. They had available for the purpose a marvelous medium in The Sunday Tribune with its vast prestige and its overwhelming circulation. In The Sunday Tribune these merchants used big space. They hammered away at Chicago's millions with a determination to kill off blue Monday and to make it the equal of Saturday.

Not only have they succeeded in building Monday to an equality with Saturday, but the great department stores and many of the specialty shops which use The Chicago Sunday Tribune in a big way find that Monday shows by far the biggest volume of sales of any day in the week.

Years ago, when this large use of The Sunday Tribune was getting under way, pessimists claimed that The Tribune had become so big that advertising in it could not pay. The Sunday Tribune has more than doubled in size since those days—yet advertising in it pays better than ever. In fact, the great size of The Sunday Tribune is due only to the fact that it is so enormously productive to advertisers. Its magnitude is an asset.

A few people may avoid department stores because they are big, but Marshall Field & Company, The Fair, Altman's, Filene's are positive proof that the multitudes are favorably impressed by the bigness of the big store. They like the variety of offerings—the assurance that they will find what they look for.

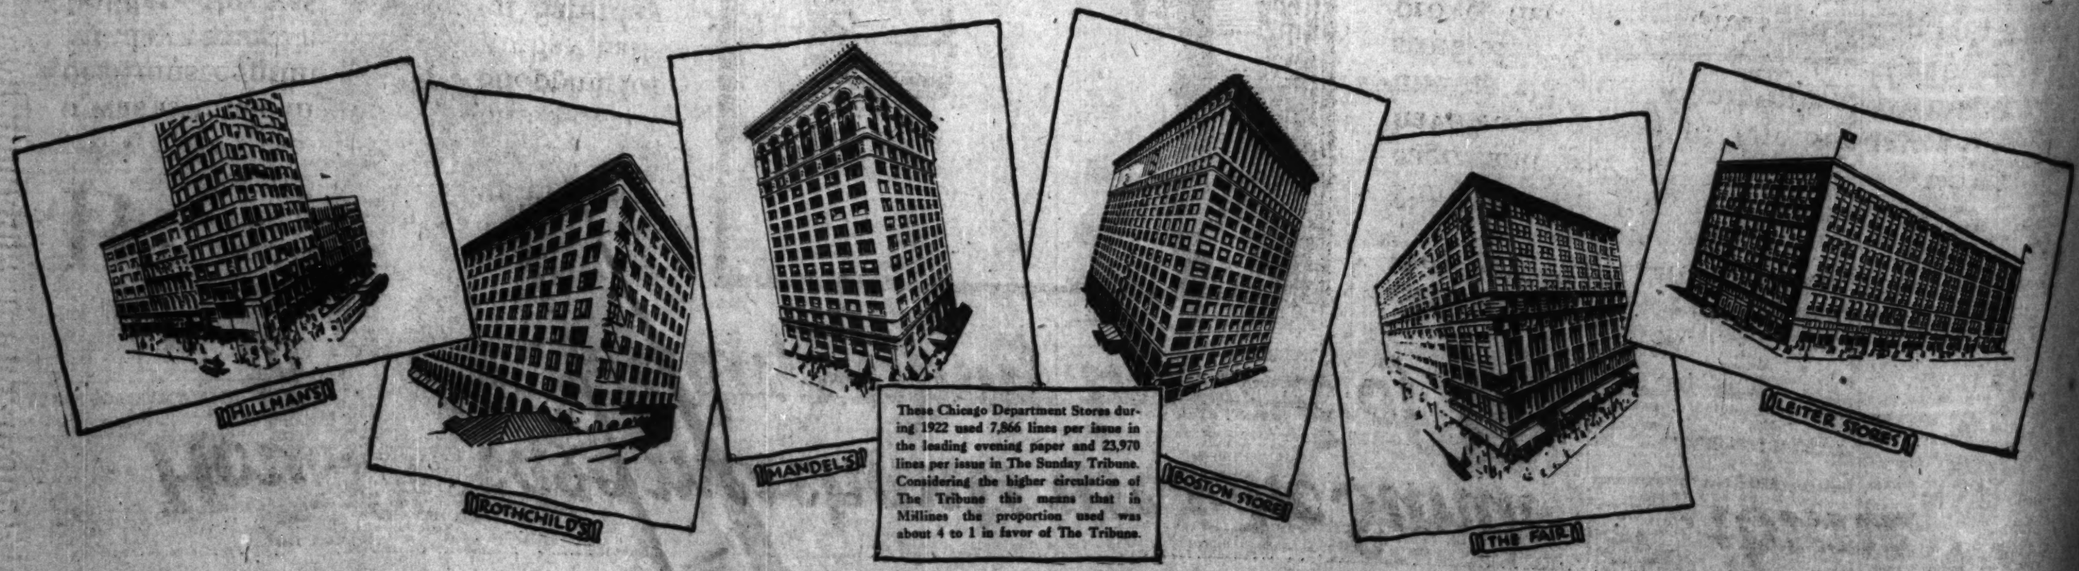

Similarly, the men and women of Chicago and of The Chicago Territory have come to regard The Sunday Tribune as the one mammoth department store of advertising. Our investigations prove that thousands of merchants throughout five states scrutinize it closely to see what new products are coming on the market and to see how their competitors in the metropolis are merchandising their wares. Men follow the financial and automotive announcements. Women make up lists for Monday's buying. And thousands are interested in the paper as advertisers themselves—users of Want Ads. Vast sums have been spent to build editorial features of commanding interest for every section.

The cumulative psychological effect of the big paper, the intensive interest in it, the day of leisure to absorb it thoroughly, and the tremendous circulation are such as to produce a tidal wave of results, not only for local merchants but also for national advertisers. Remember, that The Sunday Tribune not only has more total circulation than any paper, but also more local circulation. The Sunday Tribune, for instance, has 156,000 more readers in Chicago and suburbs alone than has the leading evening paper—and there is practically no duplication in The Tribune's total—one Tribune to a family.

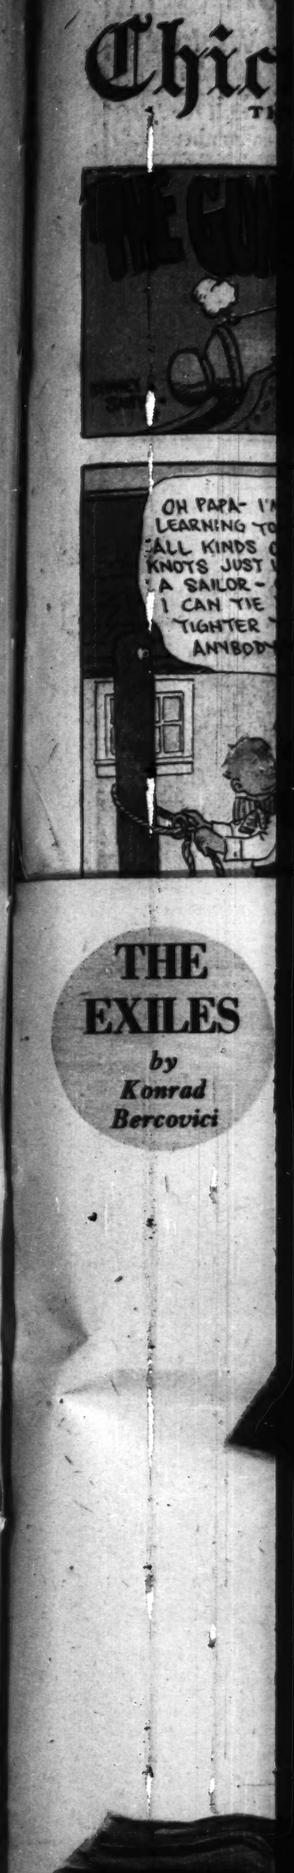

Ask a Chicago Tribune representative to call and discuss the possibility of swelling your profits through the use of The Chicago Sunday Tribune.

The Chicago Tribune

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

These Chicago Department Stores during 1922 used 7,866 lines per issue in the leading evening paper and 23,970 lines per issue in The Sunday Tribune. Considering the higher circulation of The Tribune this means that in Millines the proportion used was about 4 to 1 in favor of The Tribune.

Weighted Silk is full sister to shoddy. It looks good—but oh, how frail it is! Between the pure unweighted silk of Kayser and the poor and weighted silk of other underwear is all the difference between wearing and wearing out. All Kayser products are absolutely pure-dyed. No weighting; therefore, long wear.

Kayser Marvelfit Bloomers give double the wear of ordinary bloomers because Kayser Marvelfit stretches to every movement of the wearer and lasts as long as the bloomers themselves.

FRENCH CAVALRY QUELLS RIOTS in Dusseldorf by rounding up and disarming the Green police. At least sixteen were killed on Sept. 30 when 40,000 separationists attempted to hold a mass meeting in Dusseldorf. The Green police had been ordered indoors by the French, but the latter charge that the police returned to the meeting clad as civilians and ruthlessly fired into the great crowds that were shouting for a Rhineland republic.

REMARKABLE EXAMPLES of how Constipation—Skin troubles—Digestive disorders—can be overcome naturally and permanently

"A sedentary life," writes the Rev. James E. W. Cook, of Wilmington, N. C., "leads to torpidity of the liver and kidneys, to constipation, and to the misery of acute indigestion. No man in such a condition can feel bright and competent to face the duties of the day. He wakes in the morning with a bad taste in his mouth and a dull feeling in his head. Not only Monday but every day is painted a depressing blue. His life is threatened with failure.

"It was while feeling thus—for I write from experience—that I determined to investigate Fleischmann's Yeast. Today constipation, indigestion, and all their attendant ills have gone—like evil genii before a magic wand. The tales of the Arabian Nights contain nothing more wonderful."

"Try two cakes of fresh yeast every day,' said the specialist" (runs a letter from Frank E. Rice, of Ithaca, N. Y.). "I had eaten bran by the quart, tried special fruit and vegetable diets, consumed quantities of sour milk bacteria. But nothing mild ever had any effect. My constipation was of 20 years' standing, and I had begun to feel it would always be thus.

"That yeast treatment was started 15 months ago. Since the end of the first four or five weeks, I have not had the slightest need for purgatives of any kind. The benefits cannot be measured in money. Now I find I can eat any food or combination of foods without fear of a constipating effect; my appetite and digestion are perfect."

Innumerable boils on each of the three children was the experience of Mrs. Mary H. Lloyd of New Albany, Ind. All treatment seemed in vain. "Three medicine spoons went down three tiny throats twenty times daily. Boils still came. The little sisters still cried.

"When at last the doctor suggested Fleischmann's Yeast, the household laughed. But soon the boils came less frequently. And when three little girls began to spread Fleischmann's Yeast instead of butter on their bread, the boils disappeared entirely."

"Acne blotches had covered my face," writes Caroline Curtiss, a New York concert singer. "As my engagements to sing became frequent I felt more and more sensitive over my disfigured complexion. In desperation I used soaps, ointments, tried dieting, and even a series of 20 X-ray treatments.

"After every other measure had failed, I began eating 2 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast daily. Scarcely two weeks had passed before my complexion began to clear, the blotches fading and no new ones had appeared. At the end of a month my face had regained its youthful texture, and was free from blemishes."

"In March, 1920," says a letter from an Oklahoma M. M. Glauber. "I read your 'Yeast for Health' advertisement. Frankly, I did not believe it. For years I had been troubled with an acid condition of the stomach: 'heartburn,' constipation, so on. Merely out of curiosity I tried yeast—and was agreeably astonished. My digestion improved rapidly. That stuffy feeling caused by a heavy meal disappeared. My bowels function without artificial assistance. The acidity has not returned and my daily dose of soda is a thing of the past. In brief I was not merely relieved—I was cured."

THE burning misery of an "acid stomach"—the clogging poisons of constipation—the pain and disfigurement of an unsightly skin—they are all needless.

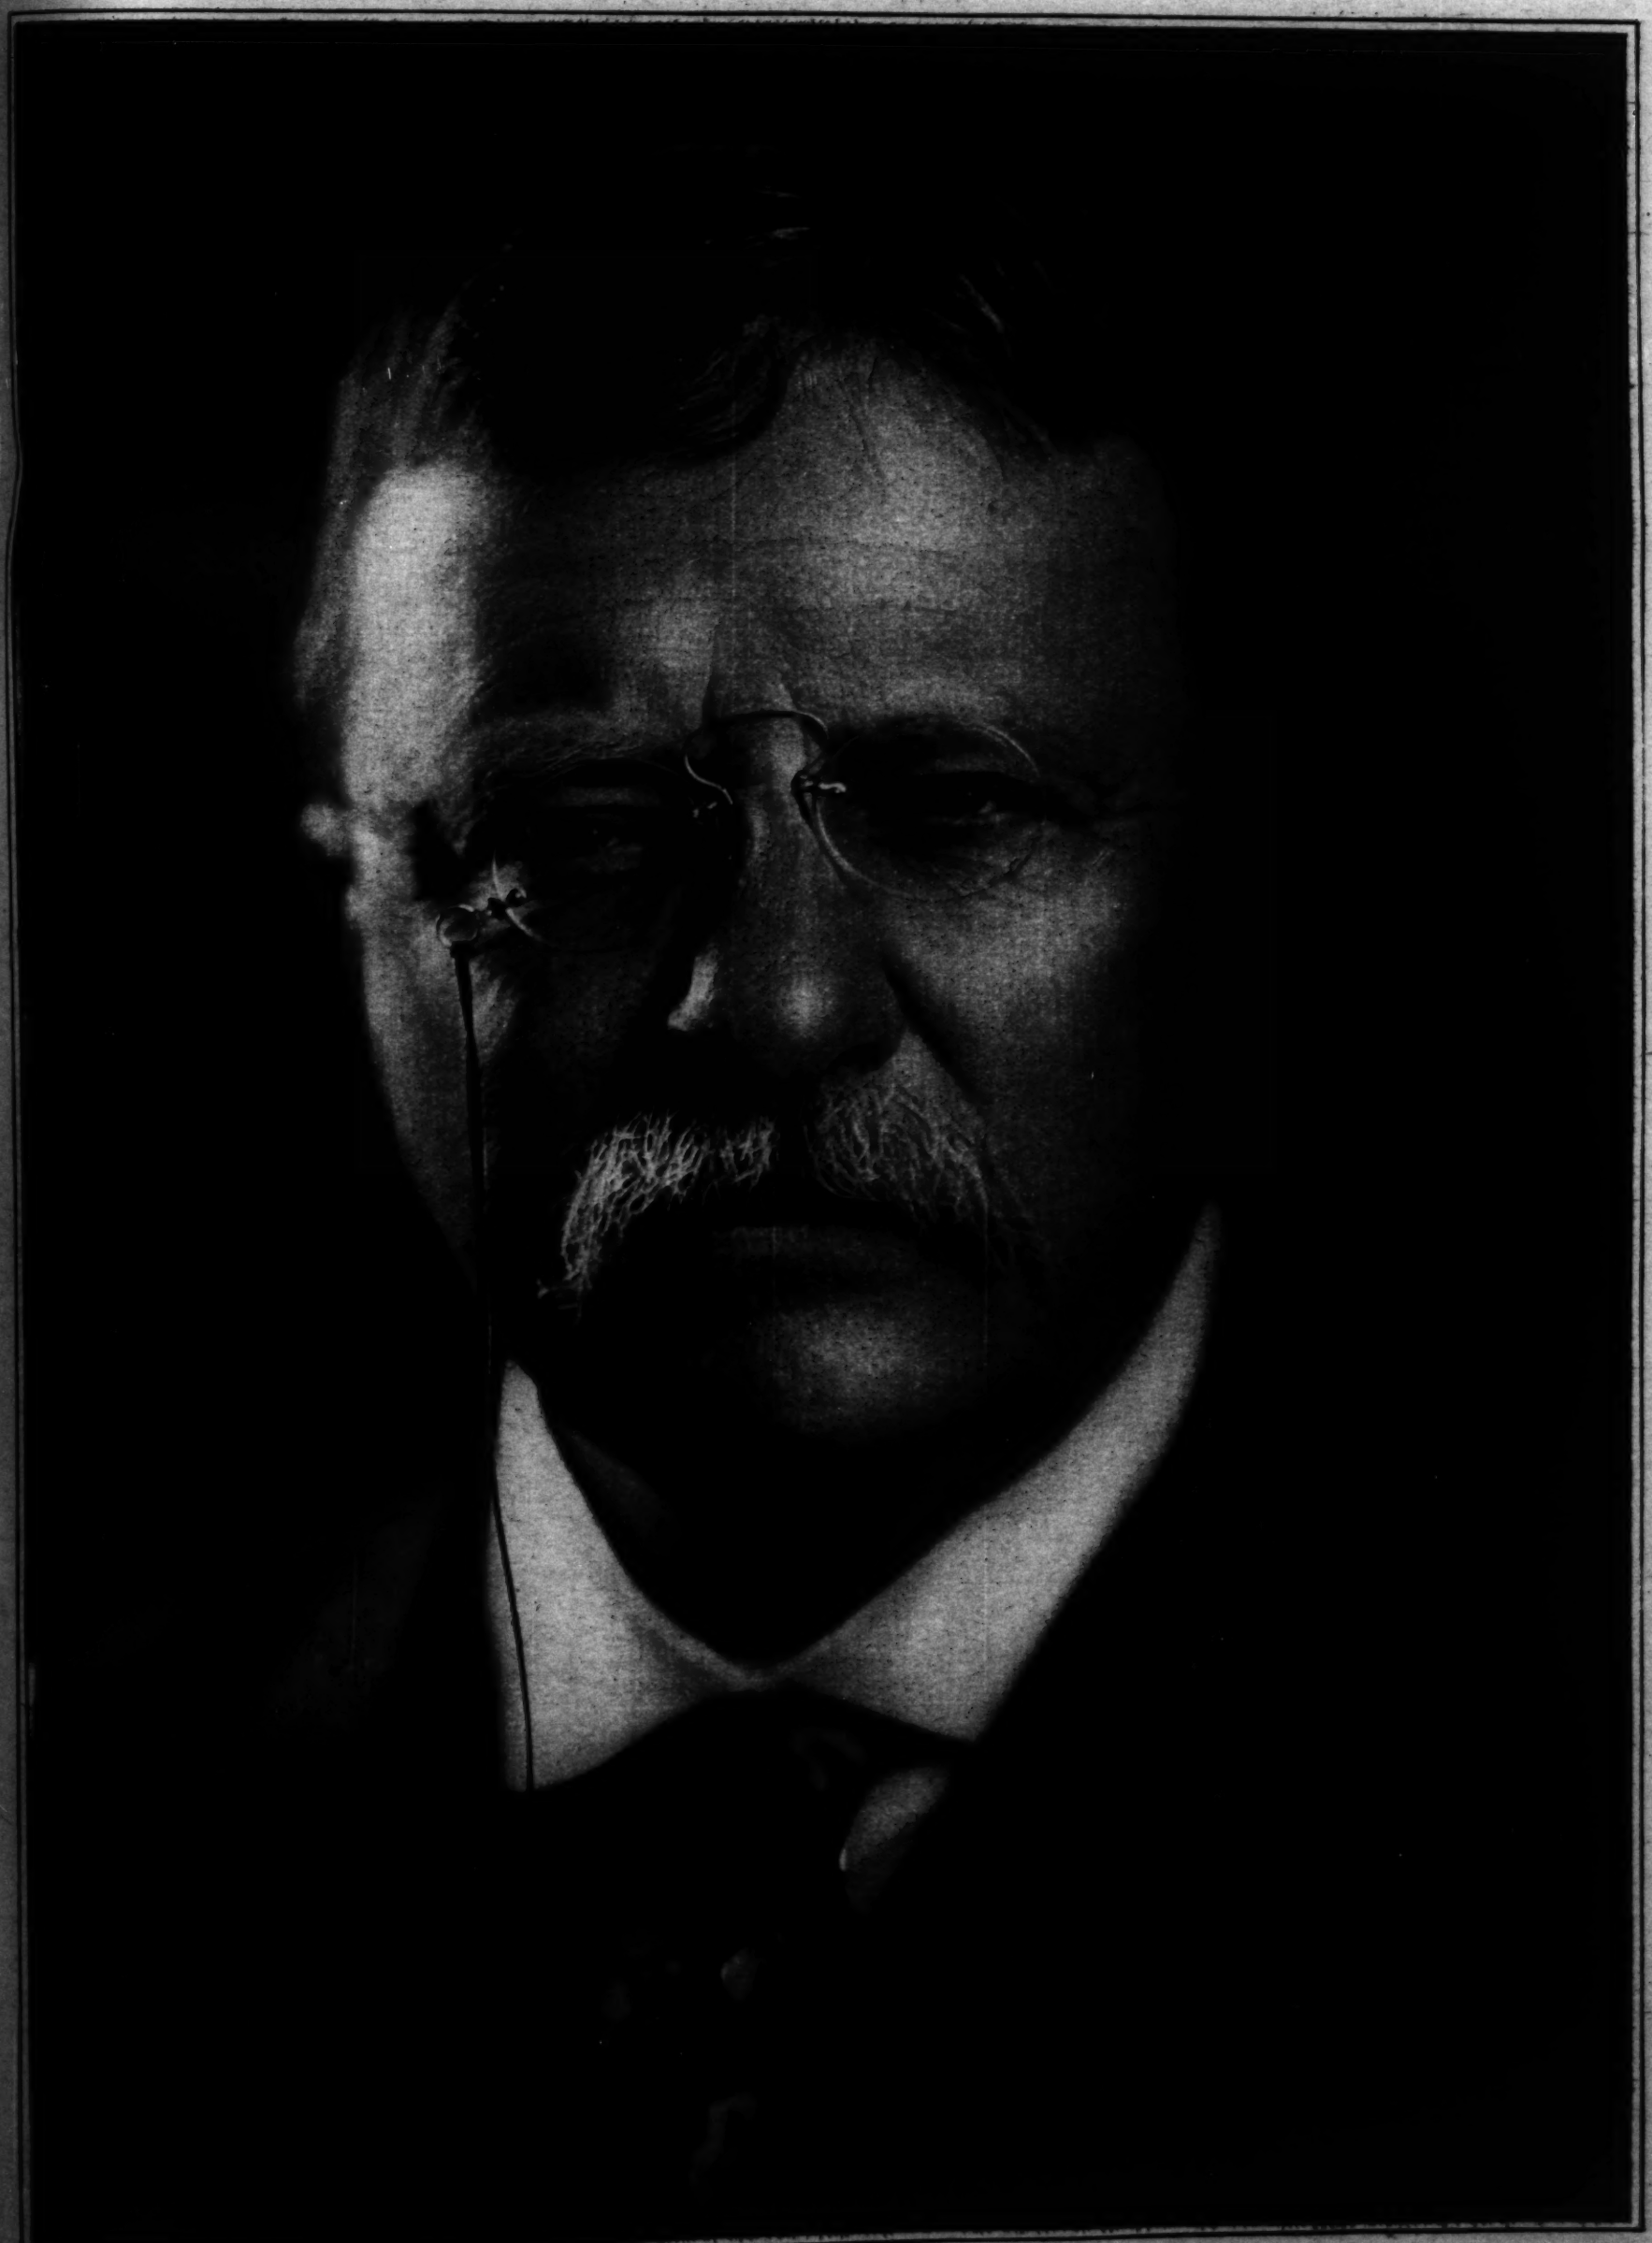

Gradually we are realizing the truth about such disorders: realizing that in the vast majority of cases they are due simply to wrong habits of living and eating, and that the body—given a real chance—can conquer these ills itself.

It is foolish to expect the impossible. Of course, cases that demand medical or surgical aid are not generally curable through the yeast treatment. But in 99 out of every 100 ordinary cases of constipation, skin eruptions, or digestive trouble, Fleischmann's Yeast can accomplish literally amazing results.

Its millions of tiny living plants make digestion easy and give the intestinal muscles regular, healthy exercise. Rich in Vitamin-B and proteins, it increases the white corpuscles in the blood. A fresh, clear skin—new life—new vigor—it is no wonder that many assert "I feel actually better and younger today than I did 20 years ago."

Remember that Fleischmann's Yeast for Health comes only in the tin foil wrapper and cannot be purchased in tablet form. All grocers have it.

Men of The Tribune Foreign News Service undergo privation and hardship to send you news of all the world.

The correspondent is far from his own kind. But he has been trained to recognize true values . . . he gets the facts!

During the past four months, The Tribune has spent over $10,000 for airplane service for the transmission of news pictures.

The foreign correspondent is a general who is also his own army. He faces personal destruction in many forms—but he loves it!

Through Famine, Disaster, Intrigue,— Come what may!

The Tribune Foreign News Service Sends You News of the Orient

RODERICK MATHESON

The Tribune correspondent at Tokio, whose story of the Japanese disaster was a masterpiece of news-getting under enormous difficulties.

WHEN THE TIDAL WAVE THUNDERED INTO TOKIO BAY

This is one of the pictures of the Japanese disaster secured by P. & A. Photos, The Tribune's picture service. By quick action at Yokohama, by the fastest mail steamers, by an epic cross-continent air flight, P. & A. beat other news picture services throughout the country, enabling P. & A. subscribers to publish the pictures before any one else.

YOU READ in The Tribune from day to day, of the events of all the world. As a Tribune reader you become a focal point for information of events taking place many thousands of miles distant.

When you read that Yokohama and Tokio had become twin infernos, at the mercy of quake, flood, and fire, did you think beyond the calm, serried rows of gray type and the paper on which it was printed?

Every news story from foreign lands has its background of difficulty overcome, of hardship, privation, of swift stratagem . . . .

RODERICK MATHESON'S story of the Japanese earthquake, of the havoc wrought, was an example of this. Suppose you had been in his place, just before the disaster . . . .

. . . . strolling in the sunny, somnolently tranquil streets of Yokohama. Then, within a few moments, an entire city rocking, buildings crashing, the swirling hordes of panic-maddened people, the roar of the flames, the thunder of the tidal flood . . . .

To tell that story—tell it right away—to get it to a point nearly seven thousand miles away . . . . to sift the wheat of fact from the chaff of wild surmise!

Yet it is all in the day's work for the men of The Tribune's Foreign News Service.

Stationed at points strategically covering the entire world, each one a trained, travel-hardened soldier of the news, these men sally forth at any "break" in events and report to you.

The bigger the story, the more widespread its significance, the harder the correspondent's task becomes of piercing the network of intrigue, racial misunderstanding, political bias, rigorous "official" censorship. But every time you see the line "Tribune Foreign News Service" above a story, you know that you can believe it, because Tribune men face danger, death, even, to get the facts for you!

NAVY DAY was celebrated yesterday because Oct. 27 was the birthday of the late Theodore Roosevelt, whose fighting interest in our sea forces started the navy to its present power. Plans for yesterday's celebration were arranged at a conference of the men pictured here. They are President Coolidge, Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby, Commander Marion Eppley, Admiral R. W. Eberly, and Theodore Roosevelt, son of the first T. R. and assistant secretary of the navy.

Rare beauty of color in this shingle —blended from tiny gems of slate

DID you ever stand close to a fine oil painting and see nothing but confused spots of pure color? Yet when you looked at it from across the room, these spots blended into the beautiful shades of a picture.

On this same principle nature has created a hitherto unknown roofing color in slate, and an entirely new slate-surfaced shingle is the result.

If you closely examine this new weathered brown shingle, you will see thousands of tiny flakes, each one overlaying the other to form an almost enameled surface. Stand across the room and you will see one inimitable tone, as beautiful as russet meadows in November.

Weathered brown, architects say, brings to the modern home a beauty of rare distinction. Especially effective is this new color when blended with other Richardson shingles of jade green, tile red or black pearl.

A super-shingle

THIS new weathered brown is used only on the Richardson Super-Giant Shingle—a unique roofing product which you should know all about, no matter what color you select.

For this shingle offers a new degree of serviceability in a roof, just as the weathered brown offers new beauty. First, because it is 37% larger than the ordinary shingle, fewer are needed to cover a given roofing area. Thus the cost of laying is 35% less.

Second, it is 50% thicker than the ordinary shingle and therefore lasts much longer. Incidentally this greater thickness casts a deeper shadow line that gives life and interest to the roof.

Third, because it is 100% stiffer than the ordinary shingle, it remains rigid under all kinds of weather and makes the whole roof twice as firm.

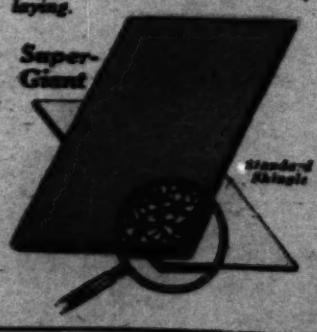

Its inner secrets

BUT, of course, the true measure of roofing service goes beyond the color or size of the shingle to the materials in it. As you know, slate-surfaced shingles are built on a base or core of felt impregnated with asphalt and surfaced under pressure with slate granules.

Exceptional quality in these three materials makes the Richardson Super-Giant the finest slate-surfaced shingle produced.

Take, for instance, the felt upon which depends the very life of your roof. Richardson felt, so architects or roofing dealers will tell you, has for fifty years been recognized as the best. The asphalt is refined exclusively by the Richardson process from the highest grade raw materials. And the flakes of slate surfacing, found only in the Richardson quarries, seal the shingle permanently against weather and fire hazards.

The Super-Giant Shingle—50% thicker, 100% more rigid, and 35% more economical in cost of laying.

Prove the facts yourself

A SUPER-SHINGLE indeed, when you weigh its points one by one! First—absolutely exclusive color effects. Second—unusual dimensions which give you added roofing protection at 1/3 less in cost of laying. And finally—exceptionally high-test standards in its three materials: felt, asphalt, and slate surfacing.

Go to your nearest dealer in lumber, hardware or building material, or to your contractor, and ask to see the Richardson Super-Giant Shingle in weathered brown. Feel it, weigh it, measure it, note the rare color. Then compare it with ordinary shingles—the difference will convince you.

WILD ANIMALS IN CHICAGO'S FORESTS as they will appear if the voters approve the new Riverside zoo project at the November election. Captives from jungle and mountain and forest will roam freely in surroundings duplicating their native habitats, but safely separated from the thousands who visit the city's magnificent preserves. Crags reaching 200 feet to the skies will afford homelike playground for the leaping mountain goat. Open air dens with hibernating quarters in rocky caves will be provided for the bears, with a moat of water to keep them from growing too familiar with visitors. The den will be modeled after those at the St. Louis zoo, where this bear picture was taken.

ROARING LIONS AND PROWLING TIGERS will feel right at home in the new zoo if the plans of the Chicago Zoological society are carried out. Wide ranging grounds will be provided for the jungle terrors, but rocky barriers will bar their escape.

THE EXILE BY KONRAD BERCOVICI

Prison in America, or Freedom in Gay Havana? Her Father Knew His Choice When the Wandering Yankee Could Not Win Beautiful Alva from the Romantic, Adonis-like Poet of Cuba.

"—— you'd think it right to marry six wives."

WE glided in at Havana on one of those balmy afternoons of September in which the city shows itself in all her glory. The soft blue of the horizon merged with the white sky line of the tall buildings. The picturesque wharf, with its old piers, ornate and colonnaded fronts, and stained glass windows and dilapidated walls seemed much more like churches in ruin than warehouses. Tall brown natives in white trousers and large straw hats, and large women wrapped in colored shawls stood on the shore, aimlessly watching the boats and the people. Back of the wharf rose the old Castillo del Moro, green, black, and golden like a dream island suddenly let down from above on a fairy wand.

It was as if we had gained entrance to a new world, a world bathed in gorgeous colors and sunshine. A wide piazza opened before us, band music played vigorous rhythms; men in starched white suits paraded arm in arm with stately, wide throated women draped in multicolored satins and silks. Languid songs, guitar twangs, and the gentle, steady, muffled murmur of the ocean mingled at a distance. Perfumes of a thousand kinds, subtle and obvious, floated in the air.

A letter of a friend of mine to Dr. Vincento Lopez on the Calle Sante Ignato opened the señor's home to me.

Señor Lopez spoke little English, but his large, hospitable gestures were so eloquent I understood him perfectly. A few minutes after my arrival I found myself installed in a room done in green and yellow with heavy hangings over door and windows. The matted floors and low divans gave to the whole an Alhambresque atmosphere, as if it were a corner of a Moorish palace in Granada; much more Spanish than anything in Spain: a dream city in Andalusia.

Having changed clothes and found my land legs, for I had been nearly a month on board a slow moving boat, I went down to make the acquaintance of the doctor's wife and young son. Madam Lopez was of a darker grain than her husband, although her features were of perfect Caucasian lines and her hair was soft and straight; but her son, tall, thin, twenty-five, and olive hued, with lips just a shade fuller than his mother's, was handsome beyond description. Near him stood a young lady so beautiful that I was dazed. Quite involuntarily my lips lingered a trifle when I kissed her hand after kissing that of the lady of the house. It was, I am sure, because of that shade of difference between what would have been the proper length of a hand kiss and mine that I realised when my eyes met those of the young man that we were enemies. Tino Lopez stood near his father, waiting to be introduced.

"Il poeto"—the poet—Dr. Lopez introduced him. "He has won every prize of poetry in this country," the father continued, while the curly headed, dark eyed, pale faced Adonis lowered his eyes a trifle too politely to avoid shaking hands.

When Dr. Lopez and I were alone again I asked, "Who is the young lady?"

"She is Americana," my host answered; "friends of my wife and son; she and her mother."

I could not help wondering at the information. The young lady looked so Spanish, was dressed and combed so Zelongish, that I had never seen any one more Spanish looking.

The doctor laughed at my astonishment. The American ladies, he explained, adapt themselves readily; specially those who can wear clothes well. But with the men it is not so easy. Mr. McPherson, the lady's father, was very much American.

It was all the information I could get out of him, for it was near dinner time and my host had questions about the friend who had given me the introduction to him.

I answered them as best I could while we sat on the patio sipping cold drinks and smoking. But my mind was away, taken by the beautiful apparition of a few moments before.

I lay awake the whole night listening to the noises on the street and the splashing of the sea waves. Nowhere does sound and odor travel as far as in Havana at night. Perhaps because of the overhanging moisture, or there may be other reasons, but it seemed to me I heard every gate and door open and close within miles and mingle with the sharp siren whistle of boats; every odor, the oily scent of overripe bananas, the heavy smell of tar and rope, and the ferment of brew pinched my nostrils and tortured me as I rolled this way and that in a vain attempt to invite sleep.

With all that, not for one moment had my thoughts been free of the Spanish young American lady and my host's son. I made many plans to meet her again, to win her: I was in love. But of all my plans I carried out only one the following day. I had my luggage brought to the American hotel. Tino Lopez was my host's son. I could not accept his father's hospitality.

WANDERING aimlessly through the streets, I found myself at the wharf where the boat in which I had sailed was still anchored. I tried to reason myself out of the ridiculous condition I was in. Many young ladies had before impressed me at first sight and disillusioned me afterward. I did not succeed. The rising sun, the picturesqueness of all that surrounded me, the gliding square boats, the happy laughter of the boisterous native longshoremen could not hold my attention. My mind was elsewhere. I had been sitting on that stone wharf and gazing at the foaming distance for hours when a soft hand touched my shoulder. I turned about.

"Good morning," greeted a middle aged, slightly stooping, clean shaven, blue eyed man.

"Good morning," I answered, as waked from a daze.

"Stranger? Just from the states?" he questioned.

"Yes," I answered, glad to hear friendly talk.

"Already longing back? What? I watched you sitting here. You'll be taking the next boat, I suppose. . . ." And, as an afterthought he added, putting out his hand, "McPherson is my name."

I shook that hand vigorously, and he returned the grip.

"So pleased to meet you," I exclaimed, wavering between telling him why I was so happy and keeping quiet. Before I had let go of his hand I added: "If I am not mistaken I have met your charming daughter at the house of Dr. Lopez."

I regretted it instantly, for the man's face darkened.

"O!" he exclaimed. He remained silent. His eyes rested for a while on my unbearded features. Suddenly, after a curious movement of his forefinger over his lips, he caught me by the arm.

"Are you going anywhere in particular?"

"No," I answered.

"Surely the heat will be murderous. Suppose we walk along?"

I accepted.

Before we had reached the piazza he had, by adroitly put questions, learned more about me than any man ever will from a own lips. All he had imparted about himself was that he hated Havana, loathed Cuba, including the climate; and considered the natives little more than impertinent savages who should never have been given their independence by his country.

"I was far from agreeing with him, but dared not contradict him. For here was the very key, fallen as a gift from the heavens, the very key to my happiness! I kept my opinions to myself, and wondered at his Spanish daughter, friend of the Cuban poet.

Walking side by side, we reached the American hotel, designed evidently by an architect who wanted to combine the American style—cold, square massiveness—with the warm fanlike lightness of Spanish buildings. We sat down at one of the little round white tables under the dark brown striped awning of the piazza.

"What will you have?" I inquired of my friend, acting as host.

"What will you have?" he retorted. "You are my guest."

"A glass of white wine," I selected from the printed list of drinks.

"I am sorry," my friend interrupted, picking up his hat, ready to go, "but I can't sit with you."

"Why?" I asked, alarmed.

"Because of the laws of my country, young man!"

"But see here, Mr. McPherson; we are in Cuba, we are not breaking any laws here."

"Then, by the same line of reasoning, if you went on a visit to Turkey you'd think it right to marry six wives," McPherson shot back loud enough for everybody to hear, and before I had recovered my bearings he was gone.

I could see him cross the square, stooping a little lower than before, mopping his sweating face while he hailed a taxi.

I had blundered. I had blundered. I had wanted to be hospitable, I had wanted to be cheerful, engaging; pleasantly amiable over a glass of cold wine. And I had blundered. And the people around me laughed at my discomfiture.

"Have a drink with us," invited a large shouldered Californian who had been on the same boat with me, "the silly fool!"—and they laughed some more. "Had I bought anything? Had I seen the dance at the opera last night?" They shot a thousand questions at me. At first I answered, then I merely smiled vacantly and filled my glass; filling it again and again and again! I had blundered. I had blundered. As everything else grew hazy before me only her face sharpened itself more and more as my mind focused itself only in one direction. She. She. She. Carved out of the moon and draped in lace wrought out of black ivory. And that stooping old man held the key to my happiness, and I—I had blundered.

THEY must have carried me to my room. I awoke towards sundown with a slight headache and a great desire for food. An hour later I sat alone at my table. My tourist friends trooped in and greeted me smilingly. "You certainly did revenge yourself." When I had again gone out in the lobby Dr. Lopez was just coming in.

"My son is reciting some of his poems at the 'Cercle Nacional.' Do us the honor to come with us."

On the spur of the moment I wanted to refuse. Yet I accepted with readiness, urged by a mad hope of seeing her.

The Cercle Nacional was but a few blocks away. Madam Lopez was already there. I remember large walls decorated with flags and palm leaves and flowers. Stout women in black, tight fitting gowns. Tall combs in black and ivory sticking out from high topped hair knots. Fans, fans, fans; waving to and fro and uncovering white teeth; sensual perfumes, and an uninterrupted murmur of soft voices over which rose clear crystal laughter; like a dash of white in a field of brown.

I was still bewildered, shaking hands and bowing to the people Dr. Lopez introduced me to, when a loud "Ah" and hand clapping made me turn my head toward the door. Tino, faultlessly attired, and followed by "Her," and a woman whom I rightly presumed to be her mother. Mrs. McPherson was as Spanish looking as her daughter. She was more beautiful than when I had first seen her. I cleaved my way to her. While Tino was being greeted I was introduced to Mrs. McPherson. Absent mindedly I kissed her hand while I looked at the daughter.

"Alva has told me she has met you," Mrs. McPherson informed me, "and at dinner Mr. McPherson told me how he had also met you. He likes to linger on the wharf mornings. It's a habit he has acquired."

He listened somberly to her explanations.

I wondered whether she knew!

Tino greeted me coldly when he saw me sitting down with the ladies. I talked and talked. "Don't you know any Spanish at all?" Mrs. McPherson asked me. I understood why she asked when I noticed our neighbors. There was no love lost for Americans amongst them.

"I do—a little," I answered, and proceeded to butcher the language of Cervantes. It made her smile and laugh. She was so amused by my ungrammatical use of the language that she could hardly contain herself. "Dios, dios," she laughed, hiding her face behind her fan. I surpassed myself, deliberately misusing words and crippling sentences to amuse her more, drunk with the warmth of her presence.

Of a sudden the hall was hushed in silence. The "Presidente" of the Cercle mounted the platform. In glowing, well chosen words he introduced the guest of the evening: Señor Tino Lopez. The applause was loud and long. Alva McPherson applauded louder than all. The poet acknowledged her outburst by a gallant little bow. I gritted my teeth as I saw how she and her mother hung on the poet's lips as he recited poem after poem; patriotic outbursts none too friendly to the United States. And I, who had thought Cuba an independent country, learned from these poems that it was far from being so. We still kept the country enslaved. Tino was singing the song of revolt. I don't know whether my patriotism or my jealousy was back of my hatred for that poet. But when he had finished and all were talking again I asked Mrs. McPherson in plain American, "How can you listen so approvingly to such poems?"

To which the lady answered with a shrug of her shoulders that dismissed me. Alva, who had overheard my remark, was a little kinder, just to palliate her mother's rudeness. But it was plain that I had blundered again. I was outside before I knew how I had got there.

I walked back to the hotel. As I sat musing there a half hour later, on the broad piazza, a procession came by. A band of music headed a large group of well dressed men and women carrying Cuba's flag and banners with patriotic inscriptions. Some of the faces looked familiar as they stopped in front of the hotel, calling out, "Cuba, Cuba libera!" I had just seen them at the Cercle Nacional. Tino Lopez was carrying one of the flags. Hundreds of idlers joined the procession as they passed on. From the rear end flew a dozen stones. Broken window panes crashed loudly. The scared women screamed as they overturned tables to rush into the lobby of the hotel. The noise grew. It seemed that the whole city was in revolt. The music played. More windows crashed. And the lusty lunged boys yelled, "Cuba, Cuba, Cuba! Cuba libera!" An hour later all was quiet again. The Cercle had had its protest meeting.

I had blundered. "Good God!" thought I, "McPherson refuses to take a drink because it is against the laws of his country, and his daughter is in love with Tino Lopez, who wants to war with her father's country. . . . And Mrs. McPherson!"

I leaned over the counter for a conversation with the bartender.

"Got you scared, eh? They do that every once in a while. No harm, you know. That's how them people amuse themselves. In the morning we sends in a bill for breakage to the mayor and they pays the damage. They do it just to make the darn hole interesting, you know," he added, rinsing his glass.

"'S that so! Well, well, well. Say, do you know a man by the name of McPherson?" I asked casually.

"I sure do, friend. He is one guy who'd kiss the stones when he gets back to the states."

"Well, why don't he?"

"Because he dassent. Trouble, you know. He ain't the only one in that boat. But he feels it kind of stronger because of his women, who have become so Cubish they won't talk to a white man. They think the U. S. has done 'em wrong, see?"

That was more information than I had hoped for in one interview.

Early the following morning I was again at the wharf. McPherson was already there, standing on the very edge, waving his hands to the passengers of a boat that was headed for Baltimore. I watched him wave until the boat was lost from sight by the crook of the canal. His eyes were full of tears when he turned around.

"You'll be sailing home in a week," he answered to my greeting.

"I am sorry for yesterday . . . . you see——"

"That's all right," he interrupted me with a wave of his hand, as he replaced the colored handkerchief in the back pocket of his checkered brown jacket. "I thought to call on you. It's good you came here. I come here every day. Suppose you have lunch at my house? Ha? What do you say?"

"Awfully nice of you to be so kind to a stranger."

"That's all right. They went on a rumpus again last night. Smashed windows and cursed the United States. I wonder why they are not taught to behave? Too small fry, I suppose?"

I tried to make him out. What had he done at home that forced him to exile himself? He looked like a small old fashioned town banker. Dry. Wrinkled. Scrupulously clean. I could almost visualize him behind a large mahogany table in an inner room on the glass door of which the word "Private" was printed in golden letters. There was shrewdness in his sad blue eyes. Unbending purposefulness in his thin lips. Only his chin was a little weak and sensual. One false step to the left of the law, and now he was pining away in exile. How anxious he must have been to put himself beyond the arm of the law! How Havana must have appeared like a haven of rest to the fugitive. Beyond prison bars and the pointing finger of his enemies.

The sun was high. The streets were quiet. Long shadows criss-crossed one another on the white asphalt pavement. We walked over the gray towers of churches and cupolas of buildings that quivered ghostlike underneath our feet.

Interest in the old man had me forget my beloved for a while, but the thought that I was soon to see her made me realise my curious position. We were almost enemies!

MCPHERSON and I walked on silently for a while. Another few minutes and we were on Calle Belvedere.

"Here we are," he exclaimed, as he led the way to a high vaulted stone entrance to an inner court. I blushed: I wanted to run away. I almost stumbled into the hallway when the Cuban servant opened the door when my host had rung the bell. "Chisuna la Señora," he ordered in bad Spanish, relieving me of my hat and leading the way to the heavily scented large room with windows that opened on an open patio.

"The women have taken to the heathenish ways of this country," he apologised, looking with contempt at the hangings on the walls.

Presently Mrs. McPherson appeared. She was even ampler than I had thought her to be.

She greeted me with a slight nod. It increased my uneasiness.

"I have invited the gentleman to lunch with us, Mary," McPherson announced.

"Very well, George," the lady answered, "but I have already told you to let me know beforehand when you invite some one. It's a habit he has to invite people without letting me know," she turned to explain.

"That's all right, Mary. Is Alva home?"

"She is home, but——"

"Well, that's all right. Tell her to come down," he interrupted her.

Mrs. McPherson left the room. I heard her speak to her daughter, recriminating against her father's bad habits of bringing strangers. No; she was not very hospitable, Mrs. McPherson.

Alva floated in, as on wings, into the room. I saw her father's smile when she offered her hand in friendly greeting. Her appearance made me forget her mother's unfriendliness. Did I eat? I don't know. I talked. I told funny stories. Anecdotes. I spoke of books and concerts and songs, of plays and actors. She smiled contritely at first, then, as her mother did not object, she laughed. And her mother laughed and her father laughed and slapped me broadly on the shoulders. I entertained. I was like that sultan's clown who was told that his head would be chopped off the minute the sultan stopped laughing.

We went out in the patio where the piano was. Nothing would do but I must sing and play. So I crooned "Old Black Joe." I was at the height of happiness when the Cuban servant announced Señor Lopez. I felt ridiculously out of place, undignified, singing "Old Black Joe." My entertaining abilities suddenly left me. Tino bowed politely, elegantly, as I could never hope to bow.

THE EXILE

"Go on; go on," urged McPherson; "sing h-t again."

But the ladies were already near the poet, their faces turned away from me.

McPherson passed his arm under mine. "We'll go up to my den for a bit," he said over his head to the women, without troubling himself about Tino.

Up in his den, where there was no vestige of anything Spanish, McPherson talked for a while against the natives; then, as the heat increased, his tongue became heavier, his head sunk on his chest, and he fell asleep.

I stole softly down the stairs, not to disturb him, to take my hat and depart. On the patio Tino sat near Alva. They were alone. He listened somberly to her explanations as to how her father had invited me for lunch. Mrs. McPherson saw me to the door. She was again severely polite, thanked me for the visit, but did not invite me again. I noticed that.

I was even more in love than before. O, if that curly young Satan had not come! I was furious. Furious because I realised I was playing a lost game. I had no chance against that poet. He fairly reeked of romance. A popular idol. A Spaniard. Young, handsome. What did my singing count against his serenading, guitar in hand, underneath her window!

That evening McPherson came to see me at the hotel.

"I am sorry I fell asleep. But why did you leave? I only dozed away a few minutes. I was furious when you had gone. Mrs. McPherson asked me to invite you to dine with us tomorrow. And you must accept."

"Listen here, Mr. McPherson. She did nothing of the kind, and I know it."

"But I want you to come. I want you. Can't you understand, man?"

I looked him in the eyes and we both understood.

"Show him, that heathen. He has bewitched the women. He goes about cursing my country and stealing my daughter. Show him. You are one of us!"

I HELPED myself to a generous glass of wine before dinner time the following evening. I sparkled. I let every chord there was in me vibrate. I was there to win.

After I had played and sung buoyantly I changed to softer tunes. I could feel her respond. I could feel her breath, softer. The soft colored light from the paper lanterns about the walls of the patio, the yellowish moon, and the monotonous splash of the waves of the sea aided me. We were alone. We talked softly of this and that. I spoke of happiness, of friendships, of my hopes and ambitions. She was interested. She spurred me on with her assenting silence. With the low flutter of her long velvety eyelashes. She listened to me as if my words were but a curtain about to be raised and behind which a play was going on. I knew it. I felt it. I had thrown a thousand seductive nets about her soul. I had her enmeshed. And like the fisherman who dares not haul in his ropes, I dared not fall on my knees as she expected me to. Why? Because I was conscious of the fact that I could not do it as well as that cursed poet; that it was not my style, that I should make myself ridiculous.

And thus my psychological moment vanished. I knew that, too. Tino Lopez arrived. He had brought his guitar along. McPherson called me to his den. We looked at each other. He eyed me critically. I felt guilty, as if I had not carried out my end of a bargain. I left soon afterward, for Tino's lilting romances beautifully sung and seductively accompanied maddened me.

"What makes your women so Spanish?" I asked between my teeth as I took leave.

"Cordiality, and what they think was unjust treatment and which—was—not——" he added slowly.

The following morning I was again at the wharf. McPherson was there talking to newly arrived tourists. And when they had gone he was waving his hands to a departing boat. I turned the corner of a warehouse before he had seen me and wandered aimlessly about. I, too, had become homesick, but I had no sooner thought of returning home than a lithe, pale faced apparition rose before me, and the waves murmured, "Coward! Coward! Quitter! Quitter!"

Invited for lunch again that day by a note sent to the hotel by Alva, the battle between me and Tino Lopez began. It really was not the competition of two men. It was one of method. I wooed her to become my loved partner—to share with me the game of life. He called to her to come into his gilded cage and be his precious bird. That is why I could not demean myself as he did. I don't know but that she dimly understood that. That she hesitated between us not because of wavering love but because of what each of us represented. Then, one day, unable to contain myself, I burst out: "I love you, Alva; I love you! Love you, love you!" She waited for more. She looked at my trembling knees. She fairly bid them bend. Every fiber in me resisted madly. I seized her hands and looked into her eyes. They looked at me severely, as if saying, "And your knees?" They did not bend. I could not ask partnership on my knees. Her hands withdrew from mine. I had lost out. Spain had won.

I WAS making my grip ready that evening when McPherson entered after knocking at the door.

"Well?" he questioned, bending over me and leaning on his cane.

I continued packing my grip without answering.

Suddenly we heard band music approaching and loud cries of "Cuba. Cuba libre, Cuba!"

McPherson listened and gritted his teeth. As the noise approached his face contracted and screwed itself into horrible grimaces, as if his whole body were tortured on the rack.

"It's the gang from Cercle Nacional," I said and continued to attend to the business on hand.

The procession, augmented by all the idlers of the piazza and the youngsters of the park, stopped in front of the hotel. "Cuba! Cuba libera!" they yelled, and shouted imprecations against the United States beneath my window.

Tino Lopez was carrying a large banner, the two ends of which were held, on the right and the left, by nationally costumed women. It was a Cuban national holiday. They were on the open square. Suddenly we saw Tino standing on the estrada that had been raised that afternoon and addressing the crowd. His strong, clear voice shaped the words distinctly and slowly. His large gestures were clean and elegant. They listened to him, in an almost religious silence. It was a beautiful spectacle; one never to be forgotten. It was folly to pit oneself against that handsome, idolized youth now standing high above the mass before him and kindling them with the fire that was in him.

When I turned around McPherson had left my side. I looked out and saw him running towards the platform with his cane raised in the air. A sickening sensation paralyzed my limbs for a moment; then I ran out, calling, "McPherson, McPherson." But I was too late. He was swallowed by the crowd. There was a stampede. People yelled, women screamed. I saw the tip of the cane rise above the sea of heads like a periscope above water and sink again. Tino had jumped down from the platform and was cleaving a way to where the wriggling mass seemed to smother something underneath. It all lasted but a minute. It seemed a marvel to see him alive when he was pulled out. His clothes were in tatters. He had lost his hat. His watch was smashed. His cane had disappeared. Tino Lopez was on the platform again. The band was playing.

"It was madness, madness, madness," I repeated. The other tourists also reproved him. "It was madness. Let them yell their heads off."

McPherson looked at me reproachfully. "I shall take you home now," I said, ready to go. "Put me in a taxi," he said. "I want to go home alone."

* * * * *

Early the following morning I was on the Ecuador bound for home. At the last call of "All aboard" I looked out from my porthole. A stooping little man was running at top speed and waving both hands, a small grip in one and a cane in the other.

"McPherson," I cried, coming towards him on deck, "Think of what you are doing!"

"It's only five years . . . at most, my friend," he answered serenely.

And I, feeling myself before a saint, reverently kissed the hem of his coat.

The Burnt Father By Samson Horn

Mather's Daughter Wanted to Marry Their Employer's Son, but Only for His Money; His Own Marriage Had Been Loveless; Should He Warn the Boy?

FOR the third time Mather was trying to add that column of figures; and he looked up with a start when Joe Welling interrupted the endeavor by stopping at his desk and displaying a playful smirk.

"Say, ain't this a good one on me!" Joe rubbed his dyed mustache. "It just slipped my mind till now."

"Yes?" Mather's worn eyes fluttered.

Everything was still. He looked around.

He was inclined to be jumpy that day. He smoothed his gray hair.

"Here it is." Mather's eyes fluttered again as Joe thrust a five dollar bill into his hand. "You know, I clean forgot. Why didn't you remind me, old boy?"

"O, it's all right." Mechanically Mather rubbed his nervous fingers over the bill. Snything was up. You always had to dun Joe Welling.

"Not that it really means anything to you," went on Joe, still with that kittenish grin. "You ain't going to worry about jack. You're just as good as on Easy street right now."

Mather stared; and he felt his chin relapse a little.

"Not with the way that girl of yours is mixing 'em with young Fenderson," Joe pursued, with the light of admiration in his eye. "She sure has the Old Man's son headed toward the wedding bells, all right."

He paused to examine his polished finger nails critically.

"And maybe you ain't got it coming to you!" Joe Welling went on warmly. "After working here more'n twenty years. Say, you must be about forty-five." He smiled innocently.

"Fifty-one," said Mather.

"Fifty-one!" Joe whistled. "You don't look it. That's ten years for every million the Old Man has got. Well, it's more'n he'll ever say up and it's no more than fair some of it should come back to you that slaved for him more'n twenty years and never got what he was entitled to—no, not half!" Joe reared his head in righteous indignation.

"And, say, you got to hand it to Ethel, all right. She's there! I never saw a smarter girl! That was a wise crack you made getting her a job here. Knows more right now than a lot of these birds that's been around here twenty years. Generally speaking, of course, I'm against woman bosses, but I don't mind working for her. And young Fenderson, he ain't been here in the home office but five months, and already she's got him for keeps. Say, you know what I heard?"

A shrewd grin showed on Joe Welling's countenance. He looked around quickly as he lowered his voice.

"You might pass this on to Ethel, and let her know I told you—let her know I'm trying to push her along—see? Say, I got it straight the Old Man is trying to run the kid along to Chicago to be western sales manager—see? He's tryin' to break him away from Ethel."

Mather's hands gripped each other.

"O, don't let that worry you!" Joe Welling expostulated. "The way she's got him, that boy ain't going to get farther away from her than a good loud whisper will carry. He ain't much of a fighter—he's so re—fined. Re—fined, ha! ha!—but it'll take a lot more'n his old man to grab him away from Ethel."

A sharp voice reached Joe's ears. He swung around quickly.

"Mr. Welling!" the words came again. Mather's weak eyes could barely descry the features of the girl who gazed peremptorily from the roll top desk in the far corner of the large room, next the row of private offices.

"Yes—yes'm!" Joe Welling answered, hastening toward her with long strides. As he went he straightened his necktie with hurried, fumbling fingers.

Mather was glad he wasn't in the electric fan sales division. Work for any woman—that would be bad enough; Mather couldn't help sharing the prejudices of most men. But work for his own daughter? He wasn't sure he could have endured it.

Even now he felt himself in a humiliating situation. Old Mather—a clerk for the Fenderson Electric company for more than twenty years. Young Miss Mather—risen in two years from stenographer to division head.

Wise! Joe Welling called him wise! As if he had wanted to get her the job two years ago! Hadn't she insisted that he take her down to the office and introduce her to Greene, the chief clerk? And was there any way of refusing when she insisted?

Well, there she sat at that roll top desk, making Joe Welling jump. There she sat now, but it wouldn't be for long—not if she married Gilbert Fenderson. That would be one result of the marriage, her father reflected. Her figure would vanish from behind the roll top desk, and he could breathe his days in peace if he remained.

But, of course, he wouldn't remain. Ethel would take care of him; she would insist on it. With a sudden leaping of his pulses he found himself living again the dream he had cherished for so many years. The severance of the ropes that bound him to the city—the Massachusetts farm, the sweet air straight from the skies—the whole simple life that of course he had failed to appreciate in his boyhood!

It had been an office courtship, chiefly. Only once had she permitted him to take her to dinner and the theater and a place to dance. Not that Gilbert had tried to view the white lights with her. He wasn't much of a stepper.

On the whole, young Fenderson seemed to be getting along all right as assistant sales manager. But perhaps the Old Man would succeed in shooing him off to Chicago. Mather remembered Joe Welling's message, and his adjuration to "pass it along to Ethel."

Curiously enough, Mather made no effort to pass it along to Ethel, although he had the matter clearly in mind when he paused at his daughter's desk at two minutes after five.

"Just a moment, father," she said, looking up with a brief smile.

Her fresh young face unflurried, she was quickly reading and signing several letters she had dictated, while a young stenographer, fourth hand reproduction of a debutante, waited at a respectful two paces to receive them, fidgeting the while with the ponderous masses of her ornate hair. Mather's eyes turned from her to his daughter. Ethel's frock, though not reactionary, had a way of eluding attention. Her face had just enough ornament to show it didn't need it. Her brow was smooth, her mouth firm. All her faculties seemed co-ordinated, and devoted to the uses of a magnified common sense.

A cosmic platitude surged in Mather's mind. This was the baby he had walked the floor with—this was the miracle he had doted over as it learned to toddle and to prattle! But then, as she took on inches, their incompatibility had quickly developed. Even as a child, he remembered, she had been aloofly practical and direct, in a manner that bewildered him. He remembered, too, the strange and perfect understanding between Ethel and her mother. Their tastes had always coincided. Between these two there had never been a ripple, while he had remained an outsider under his own roof—an outsider kindly treated, but of no importance.

A last dash of the pen. The stenographer gathered up the letters, while Ethel pinned on her hat.

"Tired, father?"

His eyebrows twisted into a frown. "No—not at all." It was his invariable answer. Why should she always regard him as a child? He walked hurriedly beside her. Her firm young stride was a few inches ahead. At the subway her white fingers dropped two nickels. She always paid his fare.

"He doesn't understand us, Ethel."

THEY went home first, to their three-room flat in an elevatorless apartment building. They would have lived elsewhere if Ethel hadn't been so thrifty. A few minutes later they were in the clattering neighborhood restaurant where they always had two of their daily meals. He disliked the place. Restaurant cooking met a stale appetite. But she had persistently refused to move into a boarding house, and "be fed with a mob all at once like the animals in the zoo."

"But Ethel," he had pleaded, "we might find some family where the cooking is good and we'd be the only boarders. Or we could live by ourselves and go there only for meals."

She had shaken her head definitely and, of course, there was no way for him to follow his own inclinations. Perhaps it was kind of her to breakfast and dine with him here, and to lunch with him every day downtown, seeing to it that he always ordered the proper food; but he could not repress a suspicion that she simply wished to exercise her authority.

Tonight he was hesitating over the bill of fare.

"Don't forget to order boiled potatoes," she said.

"But I don't like boiled potatoes" he protested.

"Nonsense! They're good for you."

He ordered boiled potatoes. Midway in the meal, he pushed them away half eaten.

"If they were cooked right," he pleaded. "There's no flavor in this restaurant cooking."

She smiled suddenly, in unexpected good humor.

"Well, you won't have to stand it long, father." In business-like locution she added an explanation: "Matters are progressing well between Gilbert and me. Then you can have that farm you're always dreaming about."

He flushed, and it was not until then that he realized how much of late he had been secretly building his hopes on this prospective marriage. Yes, he could have some one there to cook for him at the farm. It wouldn't be such a big place—just enough to hold his interest and keep him out in the air. He would sit down to table in his own home——

His lips were parted as he dreamed; and suddenly Joe Welling's message filled his mind. The Old Man was trying to send

London's famous pipes have come to town

A SASIENI pipe is the crowning glory of every true Londoner's pipe collection—like a Stradivarius among violinists.

For a Sasieni is both artistic and serviceable—a finely grained, richly toned briar with the perfect balance that is companionable in both hand and mouth; the genuine "processed" pipe with the patented six weeks' baking that makes it sweet from the first bowlful; the perfected self-cleaning pipe with the exclusive Sasieni stem extension, an aluminum device that stops all juice and crumbs. Pulling out the stem cleans the pipe.

At all the best men's shops in town, tobacconists' and the stands of clubs and hotels, you will find a variety of imported Sasieni models—a style to suit any liking.

The Burnt Father

Gilbert west. "Pass it along to Ethel." But at this memory, curiously enough, Mather tightened his lips and simply looked at his daughter.

"There's a new development," she announced. "Mr. Fenderson is trying to send Gilbert to Chicago as western sales manager."

So she knew! Mather's eyes fluttered.

"Mr. Fenderson has heard about Gilbert and me," she continued. "He wants to rush Gilbert away, and he's very proficient at getting what he wants." Her tone was judicial. "However, Gilbert has a backbone, and I'm sure he'll stay. He loves me, although I haven't let him propose to me yet. I want him to know always that he has acted after full reflection, and that I have been the pursued, not the pursuer."

Her father wet his lips. He felt his throat constricting to prevent his utterance.

"Do you love him?" he asked in a low voice.

She eyed him quickly. "I like him. He's very nice to me. But, of course, if he weren't Mr. Fenderson's son——" she shrugged.

"He's so foolish," she went on musingly after a moment. "Sometimes I can't understand it."

"Foolish?" her father echoed vacantly.

"Yes. He's so thin skinned—sensitive. Expects people to be as polite as he is, just as if there were a thousand hours in the day. Of course, he doesn't have much trouble like that around the office. But he runs into it when he goes out with some of the salesmen to try to make a big sale, and he meets somebody who isn't subordinate to him and who's never polite except when he's trying to sell something to somebody else. Then Gilbert gets an example of some plain, coarse manners."

She smiled as if the picture pleased her. Her father fumbled with his napkin.

"He tells me—I'm the only one he explains his feelings to. Of course, I listen to him and sympathize, and understand," she continued, with lips curled. "Well, that's how sensitive he is. It will be the same way after we're married—at the start. But when he finds out I'm just a practical human being he'll persuade himself he's heartbroken for a while. Then he'll come down to earth and be all right. Sensitiveness like his—in a man—is just plain nonsense!"

"Nonsense!" The word recalled her mother. The word recalled her mother. Up to her dying day, ten years before, Mrs. Mather had used the word "Nonsense!" sharply, like a sword.

It occurred to Mather that his daughter's views were remarkably similar to Joe Welling's. Both had the same derisive attitude toward Gilbert—yes, and toward Mather, too. He knew that his daughter regarded his longing for a farm as a half-mad obsession. He began thinking of the farm again. He had in mind the white frame house he wanted, with a screened porch and a hammock for the evenings. A corncob pipe and shirt sleeves, fresh eggs and milk—O boy! He'd feel like a boy anyway——

"Now that Mr. Fenderson is beginning to fight me," Ethel was saying, "I think it's about time for Gilbert to propose. I think I'll let him do it tomorrow."

IF Mr. Fenderson was beginning to fight Miss Mather,-he did so in a manner that was outwardly calm, almost casual. He rested that evening in a cavernous leather chair in his library, and he said to his son:

"Why don't you want to go to Chicago?"

Gilbert sat up straight. His thin, dark face was set.

"I don't know enough to take charge of the western territory."

His father drew again on his cigar. "Would you feel the same way if it weren't for Miss Mather?"

Gilbert answered without hesitation. "Yes." He began to add, "Would you——"

But his father interrupted swiftly. "Your fondness for Miss Mather, however, makes an additional reason for not going west?"

"Yes," said Gilbert again, almost defiantly. And this time he asked his question without interruption.

"Would you want me to go to Chicago if it weren't for Miss Mather?"

His father looked up at the ceiling and considered. "No. You don't know enough to take charge of the western territory."

Gilbert viewed Mr. Fenderson's shrewd, ruddy face, and felt a beat of pride. This was fair fighting. Not many a father would have been so frank.

Mr. Fenderson sank deeper in his chair and asked:

"What attracts you to her?"

"Well," answered his son honestly, "in the first place, she's pretty."

"Yes," his father conceded.

"And in the second place, she's courageous; doesn't imitate others; has a vivid self-assurance."

"Yes," his father assented heartily. "I've noticed that myself. Self-assurance. Has a great deal of self-assurance. Others have noticed it, too. I don't—considering the matter judicially—I don't really believe she tries to conceal it. I wonder," he asked blandly, turning his mild eyes toward his son, "I wonder if one mightn't call it conceit."

Gilbert felt himself reddening. His voice was stiff. "I call it the self-assurance of a sweet, finely sensitive working girl, who has faced the world courageously."

"You haven't actually proposed to her yet?" Mr. Fenderson asked.

"No, but I mean to very soon," Gilbert answered. Then, slowly, he added, "Father, what is your attitude toward our marriage?"

"My attitude?" his father asked from the doorway. "I'd like to have you run away to Chicago, but I don't how to persuade you. I think your marriage to Miss Mather would be just about (you notice that modification, for I wish to be conservative) would be—just—about—the most miserable you could make. I think it would spoil your life, and I don't know how in hell to stop you. So I suppose I'll have to trust to luck."

AT a few minutes before five o'clock the next afternoon, Mather sat at his desk and stared at the trembling hand that held his pen. It had been a wretched day, and it was not yet over. All day his mind had been a pell mell of conflicting desires, which gave way occasionally to a vague resolve to act decisively and wildly. He raised the pen and began chewing the holder.

And why hadn't Joe Welling and his like let him alone? Just a little while before, Joe had nearly maddened him by ten minutes more of soft soap. Luby, too, had come pawing around, grinning sleekly and proffering on him a pompous fifteen cent cigar. Now that he thought of it, he perceived that there had been a change in Greene, the chief clerk; during the last few days Greene's manner had been smoother and he had given Mather less work to do.

The handshakers! Mather sucked in a swift breath. He despised them all. He wished the whole crew of them, everybody in the office—yes, everybody—would vanish from his sight. And by a quick transition, he saw himself on the farm of his dreams—just standing there, that's all. In his dreams he never saw himself working his farm. Always he was just standing there, taking it all in with shining eyes, his lungs nearly bursting as he breathed deeply in pride of possession.

Something impelled him to look up, and he saw his daughter rising from her roll top desk in the far corner. There were some papers in her hand. His eyes narrowed. He knew where she would go—he knew the very route. And he watched her taking it now—behind Reever' desk and along the row of stenographers, and then, by a swift diagonal, to the glass door marked with the name that at this distance was a blur to his feeble eyes—"Mr. G. A. Fenderson."

Mather knew, too, a synopsis of what would occur. At first there would be a few words on office business; and then, in a manner that Gilbert Fenderson would never be able to recall precisely, the conversation would shade off to the personal. Mather wondered by just what method his daughter would lead young Fenderson to make that declaration which she had always hitherto shunted off. Would Fenderson ever imagine that, at lunch, Miss Mather had told her father:

"Don't wait for me this evening. I'll be delayed. I'll meet you at home and we'll go out to dinner then."

How consummate she was! Even after the proposal she wouldn't let Gilbert Fenderson take her anywhere. Gently she would disengage herself from his arms, and softly she would say:

"No, I'm sorry, dear—I can't. Father is waiting for me. I must rush to dine with him. The poor thing will be starved."

There was a clatter of passing feet, and Mather raised his gray head and listened. It was after five. Nearly everybody had gone.

With deft hands he made order out of the confused papers before him, and then

"MOTHER OF GOLD"

MADRE d'ORO

by EMERSON HOUGH

"There's their trail!"

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

JOHN PALMER, a veteran engineer; "Pug" Hallock, Don Silsby, and Barry Allison are in Mexico seeking "Madre d'Oro," the mother lode of the world's gold, which Palmer has located. The prospectors meet a beautiful girl, Luisa Martinez, sister of Palmer's dead wife, and take her with them.

Back in Deneville, O., Allison had confided his secret to Mary Westlake. She promised to wait a year for him. But Randall Trent, the richest man in town, loves her and follows when Dr. Blakely sends Mrs. Westlake to Mexico for her health.

Mary discovers that Palmer learned the story of Madre d'Oro from Pedro the Old, ancient servant of the Martinez family. She tries to pry the truth from old Pedro, but his surprise at her knowledge of the great Aztec secret kills Pedro.

Armed followers of Villa overtake Palmer's party and demand that Luisa go back with them. Palmer and his friends kill eight Mexicans, but Silsby is slain in the battle. The Americans come at last to Palmer's home in the valley of La Luz. Palmer dies in his chair, mourning his dead wife. Allison and Hallock decide to try to find the Mother of Gold. An earthquake interrupts their planning.

Trent charters a United States army airplane and flies in search of the golden valley. His pilot, Billy Townsend, lands in Guadalajara for petrol, but they resume the flight without interference.

FOURTEENTH INSTALLMENT.

Love Finds a Way.

BELOW the two sky travelers now spread the great panorama of the Sierra Madres. A tiresol of steel, winding in long curves, lay discernible below them from time to time. Trent studied always his map, and Townsend his compass. They knew they were following the general course, southeastward, of the main railway, and Trent was satisfied also that that course substantially was the same as that of the highway which he most sought—the ancient Spanish road, built long before the railway was dreamed of in any corner of the world.

The great city of Guanajuato was passed far to their left, Trent dreading lest his harum scarum guide might wish to land here also for further prosecution of his studies in female love interest. They did not, however, vary from the general southeastern course until late in the evening, when they were well toward the great city of Mexico, capital of the republic. Here Billy Townsend without warning appropriated to himself a little field which lay far out at the extremities of the great interlocking canal system which feeds the old city. Once more the inhabitants left their landing place to themselves and scattered pell mell, praying to all the Mexican saints.

"Thought I'd come down to get a little rest," said Billy Townsend. "Time to have another look at the map—we're getting pretty well south."

Trent spread the map upon a wing of the plane before them and they both bent above it.

"Just what is this proposition?" demanded the young pilot. "You say you're after a mine and an old mine. Will you tell me how to find a mine with an airship? Do we go into the mouth of it and prowl around? Maybe our wings would be a little wide."

"Well, I don't suppose it's a mine as much as a sort of valley with an open lode running across it. That's how the story came to me. It's far down in the wilderness country."

"Wilderness, eh? Well, how do you get gas in the wilderness, and how do we land if we feel like it? We've done fine so far, and maybe we have got gas enough to get back with—I don't know. We might drop in at the big city over yonder."

"That's just what we won't do," said Trent hurriedly. "You take too many chances. If they asked us what we're doing here we couldn't make any answer. They have a fashion down here of shooting you on suspicion or locking you up on the least pretense. That has been their treatment of Americans for the last hundred years. We're not going to stop anywhere now, I'm telling you. We want to go below Mexico City, down toward Vera Cruz. We've got fuel and oil enough to put us through. As to going back, that's another matter."

"O, I suppose," the young man nodded, smiling. "All right. Well, lots of good times are spoiled by worrying about how you're going to get back. It's easy to follow the land so far. We leave the big city yonder, towards the canals, eh?" Trent nodded.

"All right. Then when we get in below here we'll pick up the railroad if we can, and swing off until maybe we can find your old Spanish mule road, eh? And then, I take it, we follow right on beyond here——"

His finger was following along the map, following the black line marked by the ancient maker of the map more than two centuries ago— "Ha hum! Here's where you say the mine ought to be but maybe isn't! How do we know when we leave the road?"

"We'll have to guess at that," said Trent. "We can't talk much up there. But I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll watch along the map when we leave Mexico City, and when we run down a hundred miles or two I'll have one more look at the map, and then I'll give you a tip where to pull off to the south. After that we'll be over the rough country for fair, as I understand it."

"You see," he explained to his young companion, "we're after something which has been lost for hundreds of years, which indeed maybe was never found at all. But what I mean to tell you is, if we do find that old mine you and I won't have to worry about spending money all the rest of our lives."

"When I get my money," said Billy, grinning, "I'm going back to Guadalajara and stay there the rest of my born days." It looks to me as though you could get real fine water and human food. And as for human beings—O boy!"

A certain seriousness none the less underlay the light demeanor. "You reckon we two can get her off the ground together?" he inquired of Trent. "You'll have to get aboard mighty fast."

"Not me," said Trent, "I don't want to be left here."

"In that case," responded his pilot, "the best thing you can do is to go and hunt for two or three grasses. Try that house over there, and you'll find some one in it."

Trent wandered over and about by main strength managed to drag to the side of the plane two or three of the villagers. Laboriously they explained to them what needed to be done in spinning the propeller. Horrified beyond measure, the natives would once more have taken to flight excepting for the threatening muzzle of a revolver. Crude work enough it was, but at last sufficiently good. The natives fell on the ground in terror when the roar of the exhaust struck them and when, gently bounding over the level of the shorn field, the great ship at length took the air and rose once more into the blue. What stories of them remain along a thousand miles of Mexico no one may know.

For reasons prudential they swung wide of the City of Mexico, leaving a long track of green lined canals below them. Now at length they caught again the wide expanse of a highway making to the southeast.

An hour passed, an hour additional; how long they did not know. Neither could they tell the distance they had traversed. Had they been advised of the nature of the country they must have known that the great Pinzaos of Anahuac lay to the left, to the south; that the bald cone of Orizaba now lay before them, slightly to the left; that presently they would leave the gentle plateaus of the Tierra Templada and drop down over the steep mountains through which the railroad with difficulty had threaded, to the hot levels of the Tierra Caliente. Distance was annihilated in their means of travel, and the great variations in altitude were unknown to them as they droned on and on in the evening of a brilliant day.

Now to their right lay a rugged, broken country, spread like a map done in black below them. Trent touched the pilot on the arm, turned to him a face become white, drawn. The other nodded. The nose of the great plane swung off to the south and slightly to the westward, held its course straight to the compass line. Trent tapped with his finger point upon the map. Billy Townsend knew the words, for he had seen them previously as marking the "supposed location of the Madre d'Oro."

ONWARD and still onward, running by the compass over an uncharted sea of broken volcanic country—a wild journey, a mad one, surely. Even Trent's abounding confidence in his star waned and failed. He knew the folly of it now, but was too proud, too angry, too much humiliated to take any action.

The twilight approached. Billy Townsend began to make wide spirals, condor-like, seeking for some variation in the vast expanse of black country that lay below them. At length, when they had but little remaining daylight, Trent touched his elbow and the pilot nodded.

Below, there, in the dip of the mountains beyond a long volcanic slope, lay a little open glade or savannah, wide enough to afford a precarious landing, perhaps a quarter of a mile in length in all, with a short level midway. Risky enough landing it was, but Billy Townsend, cool and wary, made the difficult negotiations in perfect form.

"Welcome to our home!" said he, climbing down from his seat and stretching his cramped limbs. "This is about the farthest away from home and mother I ever got in

Two Rows of Pretty Teeth

Belong to every smile
Learn now how millions get them

There is a way to prettier teeth, and millions now employ it. You know it, for those whiter teeth are seen everywhere today.

Now we urge you to learn the way. Send for this free test. Watch the delightful effects. Why be content with clouded teeth when others' teeth now glisten?

That cloud is film

You feel on your teeth a viscous film. Much of it clings and stays, for no ordinary tooth paste can effectively combat it.

Soon that film discolors, then forms dingy coats. That is why teeth lose luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

There are 49 chances in 50 that you will suffer film-caused troubles, so you should fight the film.

Dental science has in late years found two film combatants. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Now leading dentists the world over advise this new-day method. And millions of careful people in some 50 nations are enjoying its delights.

Other discoveries

Dental science has found that other things were needed. So Pepsodent multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth.

Every use of Pepsodent gives manifold power to these great tooth-protecting agents in the mouth. The result is a new dental era to the homes which adopt this method.

You'll see and feel

You will see and feel the Pepsodent effects. No one can doubt them. And every result is a joy.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

Do that for ten days, then decide for yourself if you and your family desire such help. Cut out the coupon now.

The New-Day Dentifrice

Advised by dentists everywhere.
Now used by careful people of some 50 nations.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

slowly. A minute later he was out of the office and wandering past the row of elevators. He came at last to the stairs and began descending, without reason. His mind was dull and sleepy.

But suddenly, several floors below, he stopped himself with a jerk. Without knowing why, he swung around and began ascending the stairs energetically. He breathed fast on arriving at the office again.

Everything was still. But he knew that if he should creep closer to Gilbert Fenderson's office, he would hear voices murmuring. He looked around. At his desk in a distant corner sat Arthur, the head office boy, who locked up at night. He was arranging a stack of mail.

Mather's hand groped in his pocket for a coin. He walked toward Arthur.

AT that moment Gilbert Fenderson was asking Miss Mather, in as impersonal a tone as he could muster in her presence:

"How about our Baltimore campaign?"

For an instant she hesitated, her eyes fixed on the miscellany of papers in her hands. Then she looked up, and he saw that the color was running high in her cheeks.

"There's no use discussing that now—not until things are settled."

"Settled?" He was puzzled.

"Yes." She eyed him frankly, though he noticed the slight tremor of her lip. "There's no use making plans if you're not going to be here to carry them out. Are you going to leave us?"

"No!" he shot out. The violence of his emphasis surprised him. "There's no reason why I should. I haven't the experience to take sole charge of the western territory."

She was sitting very still and straight. "But your father insists?"

"Yes," he answered more quietly, "but not for business reasons."

He could see her trembling slightly, as if a wind were beating against her. The pink surge in her face accentuated her youth. Her wide eyes, intent on him, were childlike.

He continued in a low voice. "My father said that he had heard I was in love with you. He wanted to send me west to prevent our marriage."

Her lips parting, she leaned back in her chair, as if faint. He sprang to his feet and bent over her, his dark face grimacing, and his voice quivering with emotion.

"He doesn't understand us, Ethel—that's the trouble! If he could realize the true quality of our feelings for each other, he couldn't possibly be trying to rush me away from New York. If he could——"

A rap at the door startled them. He stepped back, breathing fast, and ran a hand through his hair.

"Come in," he called.

Arthur entered, his face a little red. Miss Mather buried herself with the papers in her lap.

Arthur said stumblingly. "A call for you—long distance call for you, sir. Mr. T. A. Fenderson's private wire. Can't connect with our switchboard."

"All right, Arthur."

The door closed again. Gilbert looked at her distractedly. "O—I'll be right back," he said. He left the room hurriedly.

When he pushed open the door of his father's office he stopped short at sight of a man sitting in his father's arm chair at his father's large, bare desk. He peered forward, for the room was in twilight. Then he saw that the intruder was Mather. The gray little clerk seemed out of place indeed in this environment of modern priced furniture and oak framed engravings and Bergamo carpet. Besides, he was Ethel's father. It was all very strange.

Gilbert stared at Mather. Then his eyes sought the two telephones on his father's desk. Their receivers were in place.

Gilbert asked in a puzzled voice, "A long distance call for me?"

"No—I just told the boy to say that." Mather's voice had a strange, apathetic quality. He was resting his elbows on the desk and his chin on his hands. He seemed tired.

"I've got something to say to you," he resumed. "Something important. Sit down, will you?"

He shut his eyes and knotted his brows as Gilbert lowered himself stiffly into a chair. Gilbert could feel his heart beating quickly. He clasped his hands. They trembled. He did not know what he feared.

Mather opened his eyes. "It's hard to say; I'm trying to get the words right in my mind," he half apologized. He dropped his hands and began toying with a rubber band. Gilbert tried to restrain his furious breathing.

Presently the clerk shrugged and sighed, as if giving up the difficult attempt. He said wearily:

"Listen—do you know why my smart girl Ethel is trying to marry you?"

Gilbert clasped his hands tighter. He stared. Mather said:

"Why, your money; that's all." He broke the rubber band.

Two or three seconds passed.

"It's a lie!" declared Gilbert

The words sounded hollow in his own ears. Mather nodded indifferently.

"Thought you'd say that. I'd have said the same thing if somebody had told me the truth twenty-three years ago. I got married then. The girl didn't love me—just grabbed me to spite another fellow, who'd married some one else. She didn't love him either; she was just piqued because he didn't notice her. And after we were married she explained to me how it was."

"O!" said Gilbert involuntarily.

"Yes. I can remember how she spoke—all so calmly—and how peeved she always was because I couldn't get over it. She said love was nonsense. Here, I've got a picture of her. Want to see it?"

He flipped open the case of his heavy, old fashioned gold watch. The men leaned toward each other.

"Why—she looks just——" Gilbert stopped.

"Yes, so she does," Mather assented. "Just like Ethel. Same face exactly. And as for character, why——" He broke off. "Did you propose to her yet?"

Gilbert shook his head.

"Just going to, weren't you?"

"Why—yes——"

"Yes. She told me. Said she was going to let you propose to her this evening. Told me she was just marrying you for your money. Told me what a shock you were due for after the wedding, when you found out she was just a normal, practical girl—meaning she didn't care a damn for you. And then you'd expect sympathy for your broken heart—but she said that was just a delusion—all nonsense."

Gilbert said dully, "It's a lie."

The older man disregarded his words.

"Son, we're alike—you and I. We've got delicacy—sensitiveness—whatever you call it. Maybe we've got too much of it. Maybe we're abnormal that way. Anyhow, my girl Ethel hasn't got a drop of it. It's strange."

Suddenly Gilbert's head sank to the desk. Long sobs racked him silently.

After a minute Mather spoke.

"Ethel tells me your father wants to send you to Chicago."

Gilbert's shoulders shook. He nodded.

"Don't you think you'd better go?"

The young man raised a dry face. "No. I won't run away. I don't need to."

He got to his feet slowly. In the dim light his eyes seemed to burn fiercely.

"Thanks. Glad you told me," he said to Mather quietly. Then he left the room.

When he reached Miss Mather his features were composed. She was still sitting where he had left her. The same sheaf of papers was in her hands, and she seemed not to have moved an inch. He switched on the electric lights and saw the smile with which she looked up.

"Sorry to have kept you waiting," he said cheerily. "Let's get through with what we were discussing. What was it? O, yes, the Baltimore campaign. Well, as I said, I'm going to stay here. I'll explain things fully to my father. If he could realize the true quality of our feelings for each other he couldn't possibly be trying to rush me away from New York."

He paused for a deep breath. He flung his arms wide, like a man semaphoring. His tones became exuberant.

"If he could realize that our attachment is purely a platonic friendship, that we do not love each other and have never had the slightest thought of marriage he would desist from his interference, and we could continue indefinitely our charming business comradeship."

He saw the smile on her face freeze into a mask.

Her father at that moment was sitting at Mr. Fenderson's desk, his eyes blurred as he looked at the picture in his watch. And there through his tear dimmed lashes he saw the vision that would never come true—the Massachusetts farm, the sweet air straight from the skies, the little garden outside the window of the room that he'd call his library.

my whole life. Where do you reckon we are?"

Trent looked at him soberly. "First let me tell you who we are. We're the worst two fools in the world, I expect. But, if we're not, we can't be forty miles, maybe not twenty or ten, from this place on the old Spanish map marked plainly, 'Madre d'Oro.' Now, which way to go, how can I tell? If we ever can take off from here again tomorrow I don't know which way we are to head, any more than you do. It's a wild goose chase, looking for something which, as I said, maybe never existed at all. At the same time, if you have got plenty of fuel on board, we can spend a half day or so cruising around here. I'll bet we'll know more about the country then than any human being ever did before."

"Well, anyhow, this has got to be home, sweet home tonight," said Billy Townsend, wandering about with his hands in pockets, a little disconsolately. "Chocolate is all right if you've got nothing else. Makes you thirsty, but here's a creek. Blankets we've got. Fire we can do."

"Hello, look here!" he added presently, turning off to the right and beckoning to Trent. "Somebody's been here before and not so long ago at that. I give it up—there's no place in the world you can go where there isn't some one ahead of you! If these people didn't leave tin cans—at least they left horse and mule tracks. Here's where they had their fire—there's where they slept. And look, here"—he held up a strip of canvas—"is where they cut the cover off a nice chunk of American breakfast bacon. Can you beat it?"

"There's their trail," he continued. "But where it runs the Lord only knows! We might follow them, since we've got nothing better to do, if we live through the night. I suppose they made off through that gap—horses couldn't get through, like enough.

"Well, we've got plenty of time, nothing to cook and nothing to cook it with. I'll admit we might have outfitted a little better. But, of course, this game is just to stroll down here and pick up a valley full of gold which had been lost for three or four hundred years. We didn't need bother about any breakfast bacon of our own. Lord! If I had now, what has been in that canvas sack!"

In the scanty remaining light the young man strolled about the edge of the savannah with the purpose of studying the ground for the take-off in the morning. Once more he called out to Trent, who joined him at the edge of the savannah.

They stood now before a strange object which thrust up at the edge of the dense vegetation—a tall shaft of native sculptured rock. Old, old, very old, done by some Maya sculptor, no man might tell when. And yet, as they both agreed when they had made their brief study, there rose the broken steps of what once had been an ancient temple, its top now grass-grown, trees thrust out between the stones of the pyramid.

"I tell you," said Trent, with a renewed interest in life, turning to his young and carefree companion. "We may not be on such a bad bet after all! This proves to you that people have been here before—centuries ago, these things—two or three days ago, these other things. It looks as though we were coming to some sort of focus. As for me, I'm convinced the old Spaniards were right—they did know of that great valley of gold somewhere down in this country. If they knew of it, or knew close to where it was, why shouldn't we do as well as they?"

An instant later they both turned, gazed into the other's face. "Hello, what's that?" said Billy Townsend. "Am I getting dizzy?"

"No!" exclaimed Trent. "I felt it, too! It's—it's an earthquake shock, that's what it is! I have heard they have them down in this volcanic country."

They felt it once, twice, thrice—a gentle, soft, easy wave which passed over the surface of the earth.

And then came to their ears, although they could not be sure, a sort of a great murmurence, a sort of sigh of the mountains, passing down toward the lower levels on ahead.

The solidity of the earth seemed to disappear. A strange and new power seemed to lie about them in the air. Even the face of the young aviator grew serious.

"There might be almost anything in here," said he at length. He looked into the face of Randall Trent, who for once had lost much of his self-assurance.

THE Spanish girl was first of all in the house on La Luz to recover. The trembling of the earth, the long, gentle wave of the temblor passed once, twice, and thrice down the valley, and still she stood, her lips parted, waiting. But her color came back.

"Es nada!" she called out to her companions. "Muy bien. It is nossing."

The two young men stood looking at her, not more in fear than in wonder. The experience to them was altogether new. After the last trembling roll of the earth's surface had passed, Hallock for the first time found his voice.

"It's nothing? All I've got to say is, I don't want any more just like it."

Allison looked about the room, at the pictures which at length rested against the wall, the chairs which had found their equilibrium.

"I'll agree with that," said he. "I don't want any more if it's worse. But I suppose this young lady knows more about earthquakes than you and I. I hope it's stopped, so that we can get on with what we've got to do."

There was, indeed, work which must be done. The long figure, gaunt, wasted, that lay shrouded under the blankets, must be placed in its final resting place. Luisa showed them where that must be—close to the small headstone in the walled flower garden. Hither they bore all that was left of old John Palmer.

"You go try—that?"

A couple of hours, and it all was done. No priest was there, nor minister. It was simple, crude, matter of fact, savoring of the wilderness. He had lived, forgetting the world and by the world forgot; and now, by the side of the woman who had loved him, he might dream on through the long ages which rested so lightly here. Neither of the young men could say a word of any service, but, as they turned, Allison remembered a line or two of words which came to his mind:

Now dreaming through the twilight
That does not rise nor set,
Haply he may remember—
And haply may forget!

And so they left old John Palmer, and came back to the little house which he had built, huddled close down under the shoulder of the mountain in the valley of La Luz.

But now a sudden change had come to all those who met here. Doña Luisa's face had a new expresson, her attitude was changed. She was young, a young woman—and here were two young men. It was far, this country. What was she to expect?

Suddenly the girl turned and put her hands against the wall, bowed her head between them. They could see her shoulders tremble with her sobs—stood looking at her, stunned and helpless. John Palmer had been to her a protector, and, now she realized it—a father more than a brother-in-law. Always he had stood between her and the actual hardships and trials of the world; this little world lost here in the hills. On all the long journey home he had been her dependence. Now he was gone. What was left for her?

She knew herself utterly at the mercy of these two young men. Could she trust either—could she trust this one? Young as she was, she had learned certain lessons of men and woman in that far land.

Hallock looked at her in dumb distress, genuinely moved. "I say, old man," he began, turning to Allison, "what's to do? This has knocked us all sheap."

"It's sudden enough," replied Barry Allison. "I didn't realize until just now how much we all needed him. He has been our leader and our dependence right along. We need him now—and so does she."

"We can't stay here indefinitely, that's sure," said Hallock. "Neither can we go away and leave this girl. She'd perish."

Allison nodded soberly.

"Not that I'd ever think of that," broke out Hallock. "Barry, old man, let me tell you. I'm never going to leave that girl alone."

"I've had certain notions," rejoined his friend.

"All right, you've guessed correctly—as you said a while ago. She goes with me if I go; stays if I stay. I'm going to marry her as soon as we get out of here. I can't think of her staying alone here in this valley; and neither could I stay here. I'll take her out with me."

"You speak as though you know what we're going to do," replied Allison, slowly. "Go back—are we sure? Besides, we came here for a certain purpose. I'm not sure we ought to go out and leave that matter unsettled."

"You don't think I'd leave it unsettled, do you, Barry?"

"I hope not. I know that if anything held you out of it, it would be a woman—this girl. For myself, I'm going to take a whirl at it. I came down here leaving my promise to another woman that I was going to try to do something. I couldn't go back and face her, feeling that when it came to the last test, I flunked it. I'm going through."

"Of course, you know you're not going alone," said Hallock. "I'd never let you leave me."

"Have you spoken to the girl about this?" asked Allison—by now he had drawn his friend into an adjoining room.

"I hardly know a dozen words of her language yet, old man. I don't know that I need to. For two weeks, three, she must have known. For my own part, Barry, I've known my mind from the first day I saw her.

"You see, I've not many people of my own," he went on, "and there's no one to say me yea or nay. I've got a little money of my own—my lawyers take care of that for me. But I swear, even if I didn't love her the way I do, I'd be almost ready to say I ought to marry her, situated the way she is right now."

"I think you're right," said Allison, after a time. "I think you're going to be happy." Their hands met, their eyes also.

"She'll understand that before we leave her here for a day or so," went on Allison, after a time. "You'll make that clear? Then she'll let us go and finish what we still have to do. Our bargain with old John was to finish this—he wouldn't rest in his grave if he thought we didn't. We made our compact.

"Today, as you and I stand here, we are the only two people on the surface of the earth—unless that old man, Pedro, is alive—who actually know the secret of the Madre d'Oro.

"Do you suppose that she—the señorita—knows anything actually about the valley?" he added.

Hallock shook his head. "I doubt it very much. You know, John told us he never told even his wife what he had seen there himself. I hope she didn't ask him. I hope Luisa never will ask me. But here we go, talking as though we actually had found the place and had got out again. And we can't tell—we can't tell, not even now."

"We'll know by tomorrow night, or the night after that," rejoined Allison, gravely. "We came here to find the truth."

THEY returned to the main apartment. Luisa had shrunk back into the farther corner of the room, stood now looking at them, wide eyed, wet eyed, a sort of pathos about her figure which must have appealed to any man. The two young men approached her. What Hallock felt was in his eyes. He trusted to Allison, a trifle more versed in Spanish than himself, to try to serve as his interpreter. His well meaning friend did the best he could, explaining that it seemed well they should all rest here for the night, but that on the morrow they two must leave her for a day, or perhaps longer.

"You go try—that?" The girl did her best with her broken English. They knew what she meant and nodded.

Luisa beat her hands together, shook her head. They knew she had heard something at least of the ancient legend of the great vein of gold; knew also something of the fatalities attending its pursuit. For so the story always had come down.

Allison himself wandered out, leaving Hallock and the young girl alone. Perhaps love found its way. In a half hour they came out, hand in hand, both smiling, seeking him. Which of the two was the more tongue tied Allison hardly could have told, but he shook hands with both. Luisa broke away from them and ran to Serafina, throwing her arms about her neck and burying a tear stained face upon the old woman's shoulder. The young men walked again apart, leaving them to their own comfortings.

"By Jove! Barry" broke out Hallock, after a long time of silence, or semi-silence. "I can't tell you how I feel! Somehow, that Madre d'Oro thing doesn't seem as big as it once did. When you come right to the gate of big things, none of them seem so big, do they? I know when we had a big frontal, over across, it all seemed natural enough. Seemed natural enough when we got back. So I suppose, like enough, that—that thing we're after—is up there. All I'm troubled about is, what will we do with solid gold in case we do find it? As far as I can learn, John Palmer never brought out a stiver of it himself. If he was a miner, no one has ever suspected it, that's sure. Poor old John—to hide himself down here."

"I don't know," said Barry Allison, "but that's past and gone. None of that sort of thing for you or me, I'm sure. It's not so far from here down to Vera Cruz. We've got our passports, and we can make it out somehow."

"Agreed, then. If we live we will leave this place. Suppose we start out early tomorrow morning for the head of the valley? I want to get back as soon as I can. Luisa——"

Allison nodded. "Well, I think John would agree we've done the best we could so far. We'll finish on the same basis. It's on the knees of the gods. What would it all come to, anyhow, if it weren't for the women in the world? We always seek, I suppose, but they hold the last key."

Hallock flushed. "So you feel that way, too? I'm telling you, that's precisely the same thought that came to me, and you know I'm not so much of a fellow for thinking about things. By tomorrow," he added, and the gaze which he turned to his friend's somber eyes showed his own determination.

"Tomorrow," said Barry Allison.

Twice a day the poor musical director has to up and answer back the nut comedian. "And why," says he, "is an old maid like a tomato?" And for an encore he has to lend N. C. his fiddle.

Till ready. Bessie is waiting for the opening bar of "Why Should I Cry Over You" or its successor. After the second chorus all the words will be flashed up-side down on the screen, and then won't the audience enjoy itself?

Something pretty swell for an opener, showing McCabe and McCall in "Acrobatics a la Carte." Mr. McCabe plays the waiter very roguishly, as you can see, and Miss McCall plays a society girl who steps in for a bite to eat, to the life. Very snappy act.

"The Five O'Toole Sisters"—or maybe they're the "Five Wellesley Girls" on the billing—putting a great deal of melody into "You Know You Belong to Somebody Else, So Why Don't You Leave Me Alone"!

The pocket Melba's pianist, doing his bit on the ivories. He's playing "Three o'Clock in the Morning" the way Sousa would have written it.

"Oi, oi, yes, we got no bananas. I can't get over it"! is the Yiddish comedienne's opening remark.

"Why, you insignificant little whipper snapper. How dare you address a lady like I! I want you to know—" etc., etc. Joe and Letty La Tour have a pretty snappy dialogue, leading up to a subtle bit of comedy. The lady at the conclusion of her speech throws the young man out in the wings. Whereupon from behind the drop the young man kicks the lady, and all is merry as the well known marriage bell.

This is the nut comedian being the well known scream he always is, pretending to pick a fight with the trap drummer.

I Have Found Out How to Get Rid of Superfluous Hair at Once

Here's the Secret

I had become utterly discouraged with a heavy growth of hair on my face and lip. I had tried every sort of depilatory and electrolysis and even a razor. But I couldn't get rid of it.

Then I made a wonderful discovery. I found a simple method by which I removed the hair at once and, most wonderful to relate, it keeps the hair removed. My face is now as smooth as a baby's, not only free from superfluous hair but from pimples and blemishes. I have explained this discovery to thousands of women who have had the same experience with it that I had and I will explain it to you if you also have superfluous hair. It isn't like anything you have ever used. It is not a powder, paste, wax or liquid, not a razor, not electricity. It causes no itching or burning and leaves no scars. As easy to use as your comb or brush.

MUTT — by MARC HARRAD

TABLOID SHORT STORIES

The Community Dog Lost His Pal when Jimmy Found a Bride, but Mutt Did Not Forget Jimmy.

Mutt pulled the golf pants from the pile.

TECHNICALLY Mutt was Smoke Allisee's dog, but Mutt was a poor technician. Belonging to one individual has its advantages, but on the other hand it has its drawbacks. Mutt had learned in a vivid, if not bitter, experience that individuals died and went to jail. Families might, in event of the landlord being too importunate, move so expeditiously and remotely that even a good dog's nasal detector would be of no avail in discovering their whereabouts. So Mutt, while remaining technically Smoke's dog, allied himself to a neighborhood. There was a permanency and an economic advantage in belonging to a neighborhood that appealed to Mutt's democracy of spirit.

The boundary of Mutt's neighborhood is as difficult of definiton as the shifting boundary between the French and German empires. He "roomed and boarded" within the well defined territory between Crawford avenue on the east and Cicero on the west; Washington boulevard on the north and Harrison street on the south. His business, however, radiated over a larger area, and frequently took him to remote regions, as far west, indeed, as Austin avenue and as far south as Twelfth street.

Mutt's neighborhood duties were self-imposed. The tending of Red McElenney's news stand at Kostner and Madison street, for instance; once having assigned himself the job, he tended it with a thoroughness that can be testified to by those who tried to put anything over on Red Mac or his helpers, small fry of the neighborhood, who served, like Mutt, gratuitously or for small favors and left over papers

It was at the news stand that Mutt first met Jimmy Greene. Jimmy had a pleasant way of saying, "Hello, old sport," that met with Mutt's approval; he had also a commendable habit of eating milk chocolate and sharing it with Mutt; but the thing that won Mutt definitely and eternally was when Jimmy Greene, who knows as much about dogs as the sultan of Turkey knows about chewing gum, looked long and earnestly into his sad and ugly face and announced: "Old boy, you're part Airedale." This recognition of family was the subtle stroke of diplomacy that made Mutt henceforth and forever more Jimmy Greene's adoring slave.

In the course of long walks taken on uneventful Sunday afternoons Jimmy confided to Mutt that there would soon be a Mrs. Jimmy. He even took Mutt into the little three room flat and showed him the kitchen where Mrs. Jimmy would cook delectable meals for Jimmy—and, it was assumed, for Mutt. Jimmy showed him the future Mrs. Jimmy's portrait, gorgeously framed, and Mutt, feeling that some mark of appreciation was due that intimate moment, put out his tongue and licked the picture.

"You'll help me take care of her, won't you, Mutt? You won't let anything happen to her while I'm away at the office all day?"

Mutt, with an excess of dog sympathy in his makeup, had played a symphony of agreement with his tail upon the floor, and so the pact was sealed.

When Mrs. Jimmy did come, however, things were different. Mutt automatically became a part of the scenery, as nonessential as the clouds painted upon the back drop. Mrs. Jimmy complained that Mutt dirtied up the back porch, and Jimmy was so unfeeling as to tell him to—"Beat it!" Several weeks elapsed in which Mutt stayed away from the Greenes—weeks in which, we must cruelly add, he was not missed.

ONE hot, sultry morning Mutt, having finished his duties at the news stand and being on the outside of a satisfactory breakfast, crawled into a clump of weeds in a vacant lot and settled himself for a nap. Peddlers came crying their wares, but Mutt slept peacefully on until Tony Cozy, the junk man, spilled a load of papers from the back of his wagon directly in front of him. Tony, coming back to pick up the papers, decided to rearrange the miscellany in his wagon, and began unloading it. Mutt, at first vaguely disturbed, opened one eye sufficiently to take a disinterested semi-somnolent view of the ensemble. He gave no sign of life, however, until something caught his eye, that something being a pair of gray trousers that were tantalizingly familiar. Mutt stealthily pulled himself along in the weeds until he was close to the pile of old clothes upon which the object of his interest lay—so close that his nose was the determining factor in his canine judgment.

Mutt sniffed, and sniffed, and sniffed; there could be no doubt—they were Jimmy Greene's gray pants, and Mutt couldn't account for them being in Tony Cozy's junk wagon. Cautiously Mutt pulled the gray pants from the pile of old clothes and dragged them with stealth back into the weeds, where he lay with his nose upon the familiar adjunct of his erstwhile friend until Tony had repacked his wagon and departed.

After a time Mutt and the gray pants emerged from the weeds and started down the alley toward Jimmy Greene's flat. They traveled with difficulty. Jimmy Greene was a tall young man and the length of his legs was a distinct impediment in Mutt's triumphal passage through the dust of the alley. Mutt had progressed about two blocks when he saw, coming from the opposite direction up the alley, Mrs. Jimmy with a band of small boys and girls at her heels. Mutt paused. He had seen delegations of this type before, and usually they had visited somebody's wrath upon his unintentionally offending head. Discretion, being not valorous but systemic with Mutt, he secreted himself behind an ash barrel until fate should show her willful hand. On they came running. Abreast of the ash barrel Mrs. Jimmy paused.

"It's no use," she said with something like a sob in her voice; "he's gone too far."

Mutt knew the outward tokens of human suffering — it was so Mrs. Kennedy had looked when an auto had run over Perkins, her white Angora cat; it was so Katie Mullins had looked when she had burned the steak that had been intended for company. Mutt hesitated no longer. With a world of dog sympathy in his eyes he walked from behind the ash barrel and laid Jimmy's gray pants in the dust at her feet.

Mrs. Jimmy looked for one amazed and glorified instant at Mutt and at the pants, then dropped upon her knees in the dust of the alley and buried her face upon Mutt's humble neck.

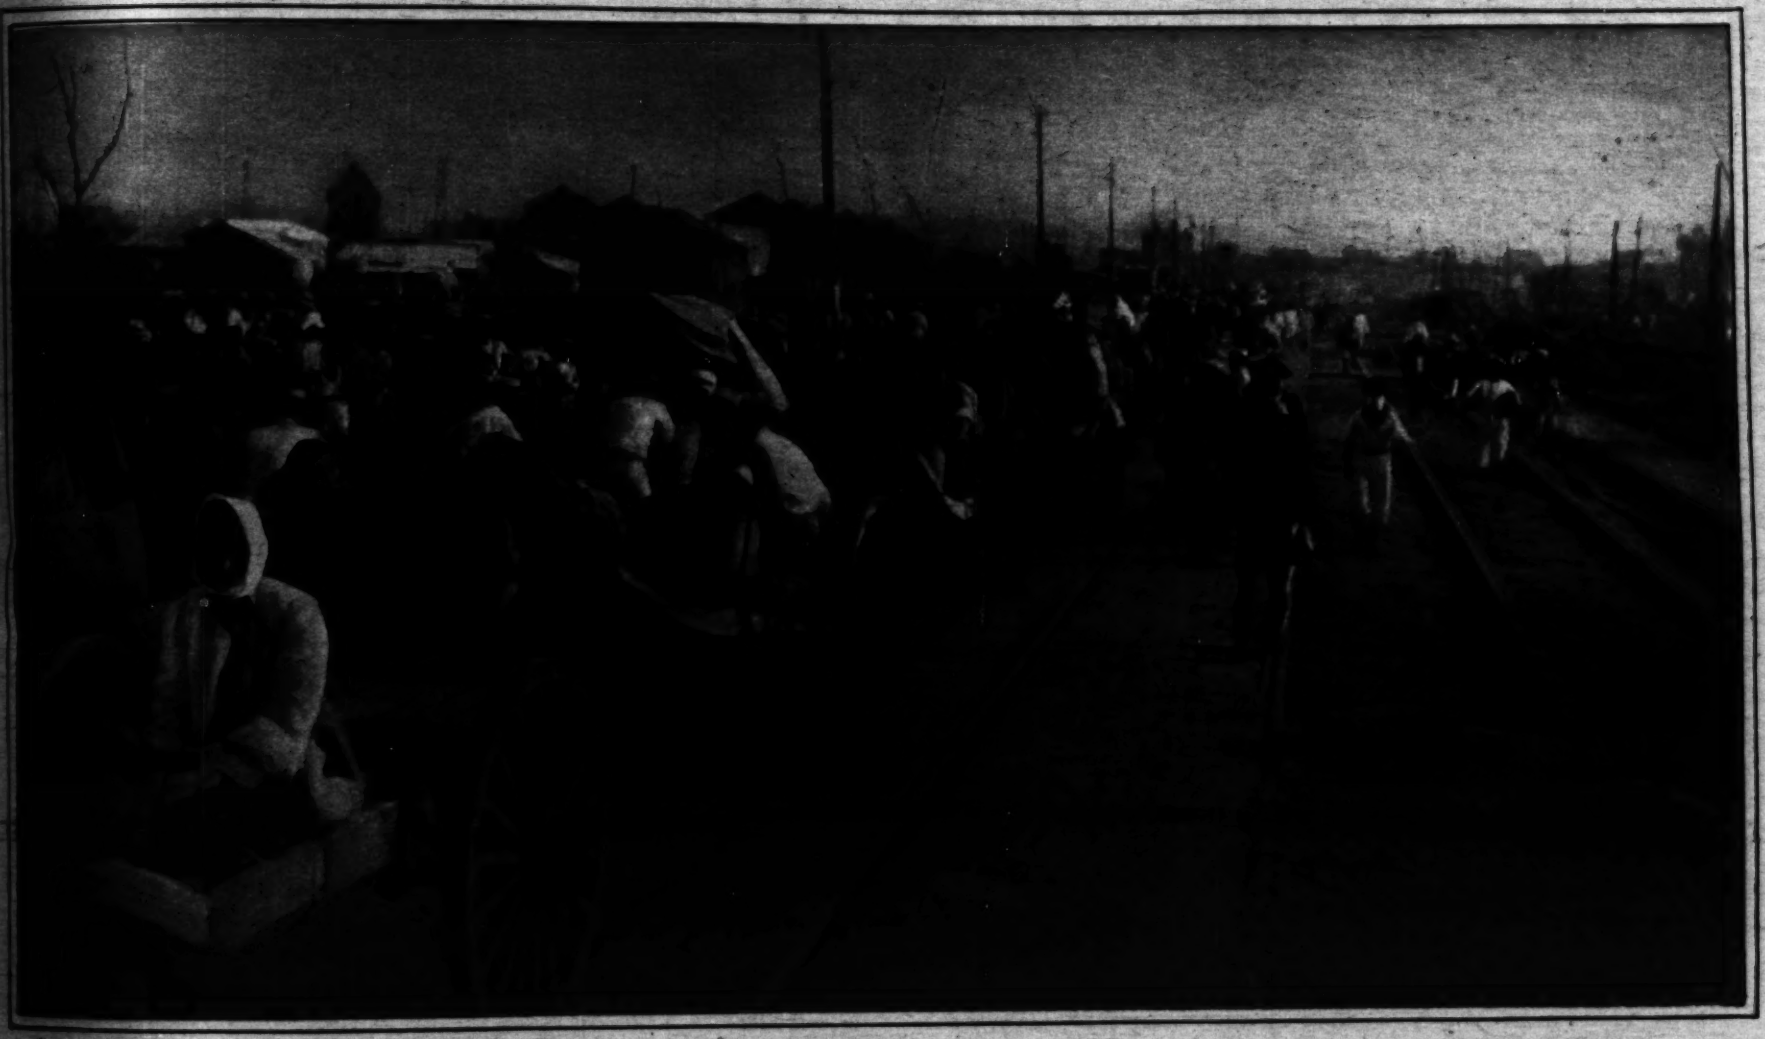

"You darling!" she sobbed. "You darling! You've saved my life. Look," she continued, with no great degree of coherence, to the small crowd gathered about, "Jimmy's got two pair of gray pants. He told me to sell one pair to Tony Cozy and send the other pair to the cleaners, and I sold the wrong pair."

She laid her soft cheek against Mutt's moist nose and sighed.

"Mutt must have known they belonged to Jimmy, and he loves Jimmy so he wouldn't even let the junk man have his trousers! Good old Mutt!"

As she looked at him a tear rolled down her pink cheek, and Mutt, being a little bit off his head with the heat, no doubt, licked it off. He had a feeling that Jimmy would have approved the act, and anyway she was a peach—just as Jimmy had said she was.

Mutt spent the long, hot afternoon enthroned upon the bathroom rug on Mrs. Jimmy's immaculate back porch. He had lunched upon chocolate cake served from Mrs. Jimmy's own pink fingers. Through sundry naps interrupted by flies, jealous of the frosting that clung to his nose, Mutt heard agreeable sounds coming from the kitchen and smelled promising smells. They were waiting for Jimmy to come home, he and Mrs. Jimmy. Mutt felt that he was again useful to Jimmy; Jimmy still needed looking after; a good dog's nose and a wife's devotion had each a place in the destiny of Jimmy Greene.

HOMELESS THOUSANDS pouring in an endless stream along the roads that lead from Tokio. Robbed of home and treasures by nature's upheaval, thousands upon thousands plodded from the ruined capital in quest of new quarters. The exodus continued for many days after the series of earthquakes had subsided.

(Photograph from International.)

AFTER THE EARTHQUAKE. An idea of the terrible damage done by the worst quake in Japan's history may be gathered from this picture. It shows all that was left of Tokio's busy retail district. Only a few buildings of the most modern steel and concrete construction survived the temblors and the fires that followed. The street at the right was known as "The Street of Silver," because of the vast sums which changed hands in its shops.

JUST ONE WAY to get that old-time Southern flavor—

GET AUNT JEMIMA'S RECIPE READY-MIXED

Worth while? Well, a number of people evidently think so; more than 500,000,000 Aunt Jemima Pancakes were eaten last year!

"I'se in town, Honey!"

Today it's so easy. Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour is Aunt Jemima's famous Southern recipe ready-mixed. You simply add water or milk to it, spot your batter on a hot griddle and you have 'em—pancakes just like Aunt Jemima's!

PROBABLY you know how it came about that we have Aunt Jemima's famous recipe—the very one she used when she was cook in Colonel Higbee's mansion in the days "befo' de wah". If you don't, send for the folder offered below.

Yet, having that recipe, it isn't easily that we retain the old-time Southern flavor for which millions buy Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour.

How we keep that flavor

Aunt Jemima never used ordinary flour in her pancakes; for them she always had on hand a special kind, an exceptionally fine grade of wheat flour.

And she added to it smaller quantities of other flours—flours that you can't buy in stores today.

It is only by milling these flours ourselves, by mixing them just so with the other ingredients of her recipe that we can keep that wonderful flavor Aunt Jemima got.

It isn't that Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour is ready-mixed, that you simply add water or milk to it and have your batter ready for the griddle. Many other kinds of pancake mixtures have been produced since Aunt Jemima was first put on the market over thirty years ago.

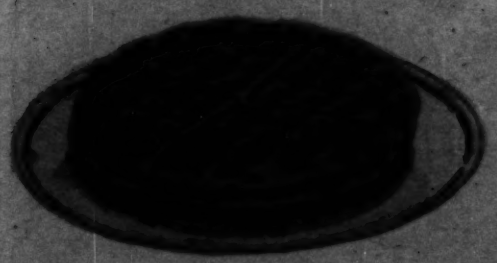

Nor is it the tender lightness of Aunt Jemima Pancakes which makes them so distinctive today. Many women can equal that at times—with work, and luck.

Today Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour is used in some ten million homes because it makes perfect pancakes every time, quickly, economically—pancakes with that inimitable old-time Southern flavor! And it's the only way to get that flavor.

Try it—see for yourself

If you've never tasted genuine Aunt Jemima Pancakes; or if the kind that you've been making haven't turned out just right every morning, then get a package of Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour from your grocer now. Or send the coupon for a generous sample.

Pancakes can be not only the most popular breakfast at your house—but the easiest to get. Aunt Jemima Pancakes one morning will prove that for you. Aunt Jemima Mills Company, St. Joseph, Mo.

Waffles, too

If you've never made waffles with Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour you've missed a treat and done a lot of unnecessary work. Notice the easy recipe on the back of the next package you buy

And muffins

Delicious muffins are also made with Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour—light, tender muffins that fairly melt in your mouth. The recipe is on every package; just try it!

Special offer

In return for this coupon and 6c in stamps or coin (to cover cost of special packaging and mailing) we will send you a sample package of Aunt Jemima Prepared Buckwheat Flour, a sample package of Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour and an interesting folder, "The Romance of Aunt Jemima," with recipes for special pancake treats. If you want the jolly Aunt Jemima family of 4 rag dolls, too—all in bright colors, ready to cut and stuff—send 30c in stamps or coin.

GERTRUDE OLMSTED won a beauty prize and went into the movies. She wasn't vurr' strong at first, but she's been plugging right along, and now, in "Cameo Kirby," she proves herself not only a beauty but a good little actress. —Mae Tinee.

JOHN GILBERT is now playing the lead in a new edition of "Cameo Kirby" issued by Fox. Mr. Gilbert was on the stage, and the screen has known him for some years. As yet he has never made a spectacular success, but if you ask me, he is one of the young men of the screen who will be much talked about some day. His work is intuitive and excellent. —Mae Tinee.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS MEIGHAN and MR. AND MRS. HAROLD LLOYD are here shown as snapped on a cross country tour. Mrs. Meighan is Frances Ring of the "legitimate." Mrs. Lloyd is best known to film fans as Mildred Davis—Mr. Lloyd's leading woman before she became his boss. —Mae Tinee.

COARSENED . . before you noticed it!

The women who must keep their skin young know how to combat that insidious everyday exposure

The air—hot or cold, moist or dry, carrying country dust, or city soot—is working slowly on the texture of every woman's skin. One day you may realize suddenly that something horrible has happened to your skin. It has grown thicker, duller—old and coarsened long before it should. Why didn't you give your face the two things it needed to keep it fresh and young?

The actress and the society woman who tax their faces extremely and yet have lovely complexions, have had to learn the right way to care for their skin. Night and day they keep it supple and fresh with this famous method of two entirely different creams based on the two essentials a skin must have to remain beautiful and fine.

TRY THIS FAMOUS METHOD

Every night. With the finger tips apply Pond's Cold Cream freely. The very fine oil in it is able to penetrate every pore. Let it stay on a minute—now wipe it off with a soft cloth. Do this twice. It not only cleanses exquisitely, but restores each time your skin's essential suppleness. This nightly freshening is essential for skin fineness.

Then in the morning, smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream very evenly—just enough for your skin to absorb. No exposure to dirt and weather can dry out your soft supple skin or alter its fineness. And this protecting cream has the power also of beautifying instantly. Notice how your skin is soft and velvety to the touch, marvelously fresh under the powder.

Use this method regularly. Soon your face will grow clearer, more transparent and smoother than you could have imagined—in spite of every day's exposure. Buy both creams today. The Pond's Extract Company, 131 Hudson Street, New York.

Miss Mayo Adams, Harold Lloyd's leading lady, says, "With the regular use of Pond's Two Creams I can keep my skin smooth, supple and unexpressively fresh. I can depend on them to prevent the coarsening effects of weather."

EVERY SKIN NEEDS THESE TWO CREAMS

Pond's Two Creams used by the women who tax their skin want and keep it lovelier

This new liquid polish won't peel off . . .

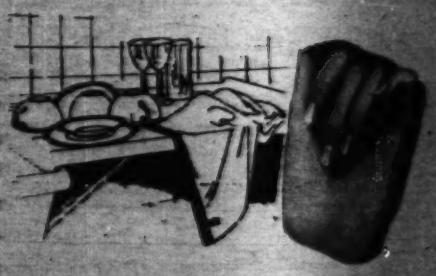

The most famous manicure house in the world has perfected a new convenience for the woman who wants a particularly high glossy brilliance for her nails. The ideal liquid polish.

One that won't crack or peel off.

That was especially formulated to spread smoothly and quickly and leave no ugly ridges or brush marks. This new Cutex Liquid Polish dries so quickly and goes on so smoothly, you will be surprised and delighted. The skinny little brush which comes with each bottle holds just enough to give a shining even polish for one nail. Then that nail is dry and firm before you turn to the second.

Best of all, Cutex Liquid Polish gives the most vivid brilliance everyone wants nowadays. Try it at the end of your very next Cutex manicure. You will be delighted at the way it keeps its brilliance. Even a week's dishwashing will not dim the lustre.

No separate polish remover needed! As just another convenience Cutex planned this new liquid polish so that it is complete in itself—requiring no separate polish remover. When you are ready for a fresh manicure, just put on a drop of the polish itself and wipe it off before it dries. This makes the nail smooth and clean, ready for its new application of its world-long lustre.

KEEPS ITS BRILLIANCE THROUGH A WEEK'S DISHWASHING

Cutex Liquid Polish is as splendid for a smooth, high brilliance as the other Cutex preparations you have always relied on us to keep your nails lovely. It may be had separately for 35c or in the $1.00 and $3.00 sets. Sets with other Cutex polishes are 60c and $1.50.

Special Introductory Bottle of Cutex Liquid Polish—only 10c

A special introductory size bottle of this splendid new Cutex Liquid Polish will be sent you for only 10c. Fill in the coupon below and send 10c in stamps or coin. Address Northam Warren, 114 West 17th Street, New York.

Blemishes

How you can free your skin from blemishes

Dust carries bacteria into the pores of your skin.

The result is an infection—a tiny abscess—and that disfiguring thing known as a skin blemish.

Free your skin from blemishes by this special cleansing treatment:

EACH night before retiring, wash your face with warm water and Woodbury's Facial Soap, finishing with a dash of cold water. Then dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy cream-like lather. Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this and leave it on for ten minutes. Then rinse, first with clear hot water, then with cold.

You will be surprised to see how quickly this treatment will clear your skin.

Get a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake lasts a month or six weeks for this treatment and for regular toilet use.

Even though you brush them well

Your teeth go on decaying if your mouth glands are not kept active

YOU brush your teeth—and forget them.

But while you forget them, the acids of decay go on forming in your mouth. Day and night these acids eat away your tooth enamel.

Ordinary brushing cannot stop them.

Brushing with Pebeco, however, can. For Pebeco does more than merely clean your teeth—it keeps the mouth glands active.

These glands have grown weak from lack of exercise. They can no longer flow normally without help. But as soon as Pebeco goes into your mouth, the glands at once begin to flush the teeth with their healthful fluids.

These fluids neutralize the acids as fast as they form, and wash them away, keeping the teeth always clean and sound.

That Smart Appearance

Even the most critical eyes will pronounce you well turned out if your clothes are cleaned and pressed the North Side way. For clothes that are well cleaned and carefully pressed, do look better. They wear longer, too, making North Side dry cleaning a double economy!

Dresses, suits, blouses, wraps, sweaters, coats, sports clothes—to say nothing of gloves, hats and spats—come from our workrooms looking like new and ready for longer wear than you dreamed they would give!

Our service is prompt, too—we call for things and bring them back when we say we will.

Read these startling figures! Sixty-two suits of clothes were sold last year to every one hundred men in the United States, and the same number of men bought fifty-two hats during the same period of time.

This proves that men, too, are learning how to make their clothes last longer. They are having them dry cleaned instead of casting them aside and buying new ones.

Three Trial Bottles of Perfume for Your Own Test

Try this most fascinating method of determining the real value of different perfumes.

Let us send you three miniature vials of perfume with instructions for duplicating the famous international perfume test. You can then choose for yourself the special perfume which will surround you with that individual atmosphere of fragrance that so delightfully portrays your personality.

This famous test was conducted by two prominent New York men, assisted by a jury of 103 women—famous actresses—college girls—society women—all fastidious about their perfume.

It not only demonstrated beyond a question of a doubt HOW the individual can safely select her personal perfume, but it developed some surprising facts about the REAL preference of these fastidious women. Every girl should read this interesting story; it is told in a little folder packed in each test equipment package.

These trial size vials of wonderful fragrance—a package of perfumer's test slips—full instructions for use and the story of the famous test—all packed to reach you safely for a two cent stamp and your address. Why the Holland Bond is kept with the other Valuable Papers

THE valuable papers treasured by all home owners are the visible evidence of the things that go into the making of a real home. Without the bank book there would have been no home. Without the deed there would be no proof of ownership. Without insurance policies there would be no safeguard for the money and time the home represents.

But is there anything as valuable as health and comfort? Isn't it reasonable to have written proof that the comfort and well-being of all the family have been protected?

The Holland Furnace Bond is a written guarantee to be kept with other valuable home papers. Being transferable it helps you get a better price because it is comfort insurance.

The Holland Bond is a signed agreement that the world's largest installers of warm air furnaces guarantee a bountiful supply of healthful circulating warm air—sufficient to keep every corner of your home comfortable in coldest weather.

Use the same care and diligence in providing comfort that you use in providing a home.

Buy Your Own Furnace

Buy your own home heating system, in your home or for the home you are to build. Buy it with care from a firm you can trust and demand a written guarantee just as you would demand a deed to property you had bought.

The man or firm who is willing to take undivided responsibility for the heating system he installs, should have no hesitation in giving you a signed guarantee of satisfactory performance. Then you only have to make sure that the one who guarantees the job is financially able to make good if you are not completely satisfied. Of course the side line installer can't well afford to guarantee the furnace—he didn't build it. Few manufacturers will guarantee performance for they do not know whether the furnace is correctly installed.

Isn't it safest all the way round to call in the Holland Furnace man. He is a trained man, competent to work with company engineers in determining your needs exactly. He is competent to install your system. He is authorized to deliver the well-known Holland Furnace Bond that insures your satisfaction in writing.

HEY HONEY! TO-NIGHT'S HALLOWEEN GIT ON YER FALSEFACE AN' LET'S GO OUT AN' TEAR DOWN SOME FENCES.

SHHHH- NOT SO LOUD. I'M TRYING TO PUT PAPA TO SLEEP.

WHY DONCHA CHLOROFORM 'IM ?

NOT SO LOUD - HE'S IN BED WITH A COMPLICATION OF VERTIGO AND LUMBAGO. YOU GO IN AND SIT WITH HIM AND SEE THAT HE'S NOT DISTURBED.

I'M GOING OUT AND GET A DOCTOR. MOON WILL STAY WITH YOU PAPA.

READ THIS BOOK ON EINSTEIN'S THEORY TO ME. IT OUGHT TO PUT ME TO TO SLEEP.

NO THANKS - BUT I'LL SPILL YOU TH' LATEST DOPE OUTTA THIS POLICE GAZETTE IF YOU DON'T MIND MY SKIPPIN' TH' BIG WOIDS.

BOOOOOOO

WOT TH'—?

CRASH!

GIT AWAY F'M HERE!

?!?!?!?

I WUZ AFRAID THEM KID'S WOULD WAKE YOU UP MR. BUGG.

I'LL FORGIVE YOU THIS TIME IF YOU'LL HELP ME INTO INTO HONEY'S ROOM. THAT DRAFT IS BAD FOR MY LUMBAGO.

YOU KNOW I'M SUBJECT TO DIZZY SPELLS - CATCH ME IF I START TO FALL..

I'M DIZZY MOON! CATCH ME!!

I'LL LEARN THEM BRATS TO KEEP AWAY WITH THEIR TICK-TACKS. THEY'RE LIABLE TO BUST A WINDOW.

OOP!

YEH! YOU BETTER RUN! IF I GIT A HOLD OV YOUR NECK I'LL TWIST YOU INTO A ANGEL!!

!!☆?!

NOW MISS BUGG IF YOU WILL KINDLY GO OVER TO THE PHARMACY AND GET SOME LINIMENT - I WILL RUN IN AND LOOK YOUR FATHER OVER

YES DOCTOR. YOU WILL KNOW PAPA BECAUSE HE IS IN THE FRONT ROOM WITH THE BLACK BED IN IT.

MY GOODNESS MISS BUGG! YOU'VE CERTAINLY GOT A MOST REMARKABLY YOUNG LOOKING FATHER!!

HELP! I'M GOING TO FAINT!!!

GIT OVAH - YOU GOOD FO' NUTHIN CAT!
